AN INTRODUCTION TO SCRIPTURE CHRONOLOGIE.

Sect. I. Scripture-Chronologie is not an uſeleſſe and vain ſpeculation.

IF a word ſpoken in ſeaſon be ſo delightfull unto the ear, that (as Solomon ſaith, Prov. 25. 11.) It is like apples of gold in pictures of ſilver; which are very grateſull to the eye; ſurely then the diſcerning of things, as ſtanding in their proper times and ſeaſons, cannot but be a very pleaſing ſatisfaction unto the minde. Tet neither can the Knowledge of Scripture-Chronologie be lookt upon (as I conceive) only as a matter of meere delightfull Speculation and pleaſing to the phanſie, but will appear alſo (to ſuch as are exerciſed therein) to be very uſefull for Spirituall edification. And certainly it cannot ſafely be accounted of as a needleſſe curioſitie, ſeeing the infinite Wiſdome of the Holy Ghoſt hath been pleaſed ſo carefully to carry along (as a golden chain conſiſting of many lincks, throughout the holy Scripture) the Series of years from the Creation of the firſt Adam unto the Death of Jeſus Chriſt the ſecond Adam. For beſides the raiſing of many profitable Obſervations hereby; the clearing of many places of Scripture, which otherwiſe would be obſcure; the Diſcovery much of the Truth, faithfulneſſe, wiſdome, juſtice, mercy, and patience of the Lord; the eſtabliſhing the hearts of Gods people in the Faith of his Promiſes, (when the accompliſhment of them have been a long time ſuſpended) by obſerving the exact fulfilling and performance of what had been promiſed formerly, notwithſtanding the Interpoſition of many croſſe occurrances, the ſupporting of ſuch as are exerciſed with manifold long afflictions and troubles, by beholding the ſeaſonable relief afforded unto the afflicted Church or Saints at one time and another; and alſo the certain vengeance and threatned judgements inflicted after much long-ſuffering (for many years together) upon the malignant and proud adverſaries; and the beholding alſo of the varietie of changes, which in certain ſeaſons have come upon the Church, as in regard of troubles and calamitis, ſo of peace and tranquility, with the durance and continuance of the ſame at one time and another: I ſay, beſides all theſe things with ſome others which might be pointed at, whereunto Scripture-Chronologie is very uſefully ſubſervient, this one thing alone (if there were no other) might be ſufficient to commend it unto us, and incourage to the ſtudie of it, viz. in that it doth (as the ſtar did the Wiſemen) lead and direct unto the Meſſiah, who was promiſed to come into the world: For CHRIST being the very ſcope and drift which the whole current of Scripture drives at, all the ſeverall ſtreames and vaines therein, as the Sacrifices and Ceremonies in the Law, and the Genealogies recorded, &c. ſo the Chronologie alſo therein do point at him, and center in him. For that there was a Full time ſet for the ſending of Chriſt, is out of all queſtion; and that that Fulneſſe of time was not onely ſet in regard of Gods eternall purpoſe and decree, but alſo ſet down in the Scriptures, ſeems to be apparent by the diligence of the holy men of God (before Chriſt came in the Fleſh) to ſearch and enquire for the time of the ſufferings of Chriſt, the which they ought not to have done, had not the ſame been revealed beforehand. Indeed it was revealed (though ſomething more obſcurely) by that Propheſie of Jacob, in bleſſing of Judah; ſaying, The Scepter ſhould not depart from Judah, untill Shiloh come: by Shiloh (which ſignifies his ſon, i. e. Judah's) is generally underſtood (and ſo the Chaldee Tranſlation, and the threefold Targum alſo do read it) the Meſſiah, or the Chriſt: although ſome indeed indeed understand It not so much of the time of Christs Nativity, as of his Kingdome and Dominion, viz. that It should endure for ever, and therefore do translate the words thus, The Scepter shall not depart from Judah, and the Law-giver from between his feet for ever, because Shiloh shall come; rendering the particle עד [semper] whereas our Translators do ordinarily render the 2. particles עד מתי [usque, or untill] and our ordinary reading I look at as the lesse strained. But more clearly was it held forth and intimated by that message which the Angel Gabriel brought unto Daniel, concerning 70. weeks of years, at the end whereof the Messiah should be cut off to finish transgression, and make an end of sins, and to bring in everlasting righteousnesse. For the Beginning of those 70. weeks from the end of the 70. years Captivity in Babylon, some reasons are alledged in the following Treatise, viz. in the beginning of the 7. Period, and therefore I shall forbear to say any thing that way here: But the beginning being pointed at, they that were studious to search after the times hinted in the Scripture, might pitch near upon the time of the Incarnation of Christ: And hereupon it was that the coming of the Messiah was so expected (as by Simeon and the people of the Jews generally) about that very time when he came in the Flesh. Now then I say, if the Scripture-Chronologie be helpfull to clear up the coming of Christ, and of the true Messiah promised, certainly it is not unusefull to enquire into it; although (as is alreadie intimated) it is also very profitable for many other purposes.

II. As for an exact account of the time and number of years from the Creation unto the Death of Christ, to me it seems not feazable punctually to determine for a year; how confidently soever some do seem to speak that way, not only to a year, but to a moneth, yea to a very day and hour; which they think they can conclude infallibly by their Astronomicall Calculations: For, besides that the Holy Ghost in Scripture is not so critically curious and exact herein, and therefore neither is it necessary for us to search after such a punctuall determination of the time; Let it be but considered whether it can be rationily conceived as probable, that the years of those Patriarchs before the Flood (whereby the number of years in the 1. Period is collected) were exactly so many many is all gathered (as suppose 1656 years current, or 1655 compleat) and not one year either over or under? (for when it is said, that Adam being 130. years old begat Seth, and Seth being 105. years old begat Enos, and so of the rest. 'Tis a question (wherein Chronologers do differ) whether these years (viz. the 130. of Adam, and the 105. of Seth, &c.) are to be accounted compleat, or else current only; Parœus (in Gen. 7. 11.) and so Ainsw. (on Gen. 5. 32.) think that they were not full and compleat, but only current, viz. that Adam was but 129. years old compleat, and going on his 130. years when Seth was born, and that Seth was but 104. years old compleat, and going on his 105. year when Enos was born, and so the rest. Some others, (as Helvicus in An. M. 1.) on the other side do reckon them all as compleat years.

But again, if it were granted and concluded, that those years were either compleat or current, yet still it is uncertain how much there was either over or under, (for if they were compleat years, 'tis not to be imagined, that it was just at the very end of Adams 130. year when Seth was born, and just at the very end of the 105. year of Seth when Enos was born, and so of the rest, and not a week or moneth over) possibly there might be three quarters of a year over or under in one, and half a year in another, and a quarter of a year in a third, and a moneth or two in the fourth, &c. whereby it might come to passe, that possibly there might be some years over or under in the totall Summe of that Period. And the like also may be said about the years of the second Period, which are gathered from the ages of the Patriarchs after the Flood. Again, let but the various account of years in the Computation of severall Ages be considered, and the uncertainty of an exact account of the years of the World, may yet further appear: E. gr. to instance only in the years before the Flood, in which time the year was reckoned to consist of 360 daies, (as appears by the 4. Sect. following:) whereas by exact Astronomicall account it hath been found that a year doth contain five days, and six hours, and some minutes, &c. over and above 360. days: whereby it will appear that in those 1656. years from the Creation to the Flood, there were above 23. years more then that account; for in an 100. years, the five days and a quarter quarter in every year with the odde minutes, will amount unto neer upon a year and an half, or thereabout; and therefore it may eaſily be gathered what years thoſe daies and hours and minutes which are over in the 1656. years will ariſe unto. Now upon ſuch conſiderations as theſe, I am apt to ſuſpect that an exact account of the number of the years from the Creation of the World, unto the Death of Chriſt cannot be certainly determined; but only thus far we may ſay, that according to ſuch grounds of collection as the Scripture doth hold forth, ſuch a thing ſeems to have been about ſuch a year of the World, and that accordingly alſo the years of the World unto the Death of Chriſt ſeem to be about ſuch a number.

Sect. III. The ſpeciall particulars wherein the difference lieth amongſt Chronologers about the number of years from the Creation, to the Death of Chriſt.

III. There are, I confeſſe, very many, (and ſome great) differences amongſt Cronologers in the Computation of Scripture-Chronologie, viz. from the Creation unto the Death of Chriſt: The reaſon whereof is their various apprehenſions about the time of ſome particulars, being led diverſly by appearing probabilities. And becauſe I ſuppoſe it may be ſome way uſefull, I ſhall here ſet down the ſpeciall and moſt remarkable particulars wherein there is any difference.

1. The firſt obſervable difference (though it be but little, and indeed one of the leaſt of all the reſt) is about the year of the Flood: for Scaliger ſets it in the 1655. year of the World; the generall received Opinion do account it to have been in the 1656. year; and Funccius (in his ſecond Edition of his Chronologie, differing from his own former thoughts about it) puts it in the 1657. year of the World, whereby there may come to be a difference of one or two years in the Computation of the time.

2. Such another difference alſo I finde about the year of Arphaxad's Birth, which ſome place in the 1657. year of the World, others in the 1658. year; and a third Opinion there is which makes it to be in the 1659. year, which ariſeth from the different underſtanding of that expreſſion in Gen. 11. 10. where it is ſaid, that Shem begat Arphaxad [two years after the Flood:] which may be underſtood, either of the ſecond year current after the time of the beginning of the Flood, and then his his Birth may be placed in the 1657. year of the World: or of the second year current after the end of the Flood, and then in the 1658. year, or else of two years compleat after the Flood, then 'tis to be set at the 1659. year. And hence also may arise a difference of two years in the account of Scripture-Chronologie.

3. A third (which indeed is one of the greatest) is about the time of Abrahams Birth; for some say he was born when his Father Terah was 70. years old; and others, when he was 130. whereby there comes to be a difference of no lesse then 60 years, concerning which, something is spoken in the ensuing Treatise, N. 23. and therefore I shall here forbear to say any thing at all of it.

4. Another there is about the year or time of the Promise made unto Abraham, which the Apostle mentions in Gal. 3. 17. for there are some that account It to be in the 70. year of Abraham, viz. when he was in UR, being called to go out of his native Countrey; others, when he was 75. years old, at his being in Haran; and there is a third Opinion, which affirms it to have been in the 85. year of Abraham, when he was in Canaan: for which see what is spoken in N. 25. And although all do generally agree, that the number of years from the Promise to the Law, were 430. yet the Chronologicall account of the years from the Creation to the Death of Christ, is by this difference, made to differ 5. or 10. or 15. years, accordingly as the Promise is made to be sooner or later: for so much as 'tis made sooner, so much is taken from the number of the years of that Period from the Flood to the Promise.

5. One years difference also then is made about the begining of the Temple, built by Solomon: some accounting It to be in the 480. year current after the Israelites came out of Egypt; others affirming that 'twas after those years were compleat, do reckon it to be in the 481. year.

6. There is great diversitie of Opinion about the time of the standing of the Temple, (which is that which I call, herein this Treatise, the V. Period.) viz. from the year of the Foundation to the year of the Destruction of it, in the last Captivity of Judah, and carrying away into Babylon: the different apprehenſions about it are various, and as much as from 412. to 432. and yet Luther (as it ſeems) doth far exceed all the ordinarie Opinions; for he makes the time of the Temple's ſtanding to be 460 years. The which differences do ariſe from the various account of the years of the Kings of Judah.

7. The beginning of the 70. years Captivity in Babylon, is alſo matter of no little difference; for there are who do begin them from the

- 3. year of Jehojakim, when they ſay Daniel and ſome of the Princes children were carried away. Dan. 1. 1.
- Captivity of Jeconiah, or Jehojachin, which was 8. years after the former Captivity (according to their account) when Ezekiel was carried away.
- 11. year of Zedekiah, which was about 11. years after the ſecond; viz. that in Jeconiahs time, and about 19. years after the firſt in the time of Jehojakim.

Whereby it comes to paſſe (though it be generally granted that the 70. years did end in the firſt year of Cyrus) that the account of years muſt in the iſſue, be more by 19. years, if the 70. years began in the 11 year of Zedekiah, and more by 8. years, if they began at the Captivity of Jeconiah, then there would be if they began in the third year of Jehojakim: and on the other ſide, the account, or Summa totalis of the years from the Creation to the Death of Chriſt, will be ſo much the leſſe, as the 70. years are made to begin either at Jehojakims or Jeconiahs Captivity. But touching the begining of thoſe 70. years, ſee what is ſpoken in the begining of the VI. Period. N. X.

8. The laſt (yet not the leaſt) remarkable difference, is about the 70. Weeks, or 490. years mentioned in Dan. 9. and various apprehenſions there are, both about the time of the beginning, and alſo the ending of them.

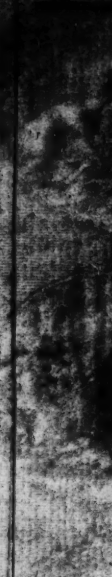
For



begin them from the
- 1. year of Cyrus just at the end of the 70. years Captivity.
- 2. year of Darius: either of Darius { Hystaspis, or, Nothus.

In some
- 7. year of Artaxerxes } surnamed either { Mnemon, or, Longimanus.
- 20. year of Artaxerxes } end them at the

- Baptisme of Christ.
- Death of Christ.
- Destruction of Jerusalem.

Now, accordingly as the beginning of the 70. weeks is set after the first year of Cyrus, so will the totall Summe of the years of the World be encreased: and again, accordingly as the end of those 70. weeks is set before or after the Death of Christ, so also will the number of the years of the World be lesse or more. But of this more is spoken in the Notes upon the VII. Period.

Sect. IV. The year in former time did consist of 12. Moneths and each Moneth of 30. dayes. 1 Chron. 21. 1. & c 1 King. 4 7

1 King. 6. 1. 38.

Exod. 13. 4

§ IV. The years mentioned in Scripture from the beginning, and so all along, did generally (as it seems) consist of 12. Moneths: for we finde mention made of the 1. 2. &c. and 12. Moneth, but never of a 13th. And we reade, that David and Solomon had 12. Captains, and 12. Purveyors, who were to attend and serve in their places each of them in their Moneth throughout the year, usually the Moneths were named amongst the Hebrews according to their Order and Number, viz. 1. 2. 3d. Moneth, &c. but whether they were never called by any other speciall or proper Names before the Captivity (which same do confidently affirm) I will not dispute; but sure we are that we finde mention made, not only of the 2. and 8. Moneths called Zif, and Bul, when Solomon built the Temple; and if it be said that those Names were added by the Historian, who wrote the History and Chronicle of the Kings after the Captivity, yet we finde also the 1. Moneth called Abib even by Moses himself, who wrote long before there were were any Kings amongſt the Iſraelites. The ſpeciall Names of the Moneths amongſt the Jews were, as followeth:

	1. Abib, or Niſan. *Exod.*13. 4. Neh. 2. 1.		March.
	2. Zif, or Ijar. 1 *King.*6. 1.		April.
	3. Sivan. Eſt. 8. 9.		May.
	4. Thamuz.		June.
	5. Ab.	which began	July.
	6. Elul. Neh. 6. 15.	about the mid-	Auguſt.
Viz.	7. Tizri, or Ethanim. 1 King 8. 2.	dle of the	Septemb.
	8 Bul. 1 *K.*8.38. and Marcheſvan.	moneth called a- mongſt us uſually	October.
	9. Chiſleu. Zech. 7. 1.		Novemb.
	10. Tebeth Eſt. 2. 16.		Decemb.
	11. Sebat. *Zech.*1.7.		January.
	12. Adar. Eſt. 9. 1.		February and although in later times they might (upon obſervation of ſome defect in their year) adde another Moneth ſometime to their year, a 13 Moneth, which they called Veadar: yet I ſee not ſufficient ground to beleeve that they did ſo of old, at leaſt untill after the Captivity.

The Moneths did commonly conſiſt of 30. dayes, as appears by the Story of the Flood, comparing Gen. 7 11. with chap. 8. 3. 4. whereby we ſhall finde that 150. dayes did make 5. Moneths: for from the 17. day of the ſecond Moneth, to the 17. day of the 7. Moneth, (which is juſt 5. Moneths, not a day more or leſſe) are reckoned 150. dayes, in which 150. there are juſt 5 times 30. Now then the year conſiſting of 12. Moneths, and each Moneth of 30. dayes (and not one Moneth of 30. and another interchangebly of 29. as ſome affirm, calling the one ſort of Moneths Pleni, or Full-moneths, and the other (of 29. dayes) Cavi, or Hollow-months.) Hereupon it follows that the year did conſiſt of 360. dayes: neither do I yet ſee (what ever ſome may think and ſay) that there was any Intercalation or Emboliſmation of dayes or Moneths in uſe before the Flood, or for a long time after: whereby the year ſeems to have been defective and ſhort about 5. dayes, and a quarter, and more, of the true and exact acount according to the courſe of the Sun: For according to the Julian year (conſtituted by Julius Cæſer about 40. years, or little more, before the Birth of Chriſt, by the advice of Soſigenis, a skilfull Mathematician, whence 'tis alſo called the Julian or Soſigenian year:) there are 365. daies, 6. hours, and ſome minutes in a perfect year: whereupon the ordinary year was allowed to have 365. daies: and as for the 6. hours over and above which are a quarter of a day, therefore every fourth year there is a day added to that year, (whereby it conſiſts of 366. daies) which is put into the laſt Moneth, called February (which that year hath 29. daies, one day more then uſuall) whence that year is called by the Engliſh, Leap-year, becauſe It doth as it were leap over one day; and by the Romans or Latines, Intercalaris, or Biſſextilis, becauſe that day was intercalated and put in on the 6. Calends of March, (as 'tis called) being the 24. day of the 12. Moneth, or February; and ſo that day, and the day after alſo were both called the 6. Calends; and then the day after them was the 5. Calends, &c. Now this exact Emendation of the year, being not long before the Birth of Chriſt, therefore it ſeems that the years of the World before were not ſo exactly calculated, and ſo neither were the juſt number of years from the Creation unto the time near our Saviour Chriſt exactly computed (as is before intimated, Sect. II.) for according to the account of but 360. daies to a year, in 4000. years, (for there were almoſt ſo many within near upon 40. from the Creation to the Death of Chriſt) there will be found above 57. years more then there would have been, if thoſe years had conſiſted of 365. daies and ſix hours.

But then the great Difficultie would be about the Annuall Feaſts of the Jews, for how could the Feaſts be kept continually year after year in their ſeaſons, becauſe if their years had not been exact, in proceſſe of time their Moneths (and ſo the Feaſts which were to be kept in them) would loſe their proper ſeaſons, the Spring Moneths would come to be in the Autumne, and the Moneths of Autumne to be in the Spring? Now for the avoiding of that great great Inconvenience; ſome do affirm, that there was wont to be an Intercalation of one whole Moneth at the end of the year, which Moneth they called Veadar; and that (as 'tis ſaid) they were wont to do ſeven times in the ſpace of nineteen years, becauſe in that ſpace the Sun and Moon did meet in the ſame point wherein they had been ſo many years before. I confeſſe indeed, that this courſe might help to make ſome agreement between the Solar and Lunare years, yet neither have I ground and light to perſwade me to beleeve that this was uſed in the daies of Moſes, or many 100. years after (as is ſaid before) nor yet do I ſee that this way and courſe would be a ſufficient way of accommodation for the right placing of their Feaſts: for upon the Intercalation of a Moneth in the end of the year, the Paſſeover in the year following, muſt fall about a Moneth or thirtie daies later then it did in the year that went before, and therefore if the Paſſeover did fall right in the year after the Intercalation, then how could it fall right in the year before, ſeeing it muſt be about thirtie daies before that ſeaſon? That way which Munſter tells us was taken for the ordering of the Feaſts, is ſomething, yet not ſufficient without ſome other help: he ſaies that the Jews did keep the times of their Feaſts according to this Rule, viz. the Feaſt of Pentecoſt was fiftie daies after the Paſſeover, or that day of the Paſſeover, wherein the Sheaf of the Firſt-fruits was offered (for the Paſſeover was the Feaſt which was to be the guide for all the reſt, from thence they were to reckon ſo many daies to the next Feaſt, &c. Lev. 23. 15, 16.) From the Pentecoſt to the Feaſt of Trumpets, there were to be 113 daies. From thence to the Feaſt of Expiation ten daies. From thence to the Feaſt of Tabernacles five dies: and from thence to the Feaſt of Palms ſix daies. But ſtill all this time the difficultie doth remain about the right placing of the Paſſeover in the firſt Moneth, which was to direct all the reſt: for if that were not in its proper place, none of the reſt could be in their proper ſeaſon. Now, becauſe we have no certain knowledge of the way and courſe which was uſed a long time after the Flood, and in the days of Moſes alſo, for the regulating of the firſt Moneth and of the Feaſt of the Paſſover, which was to be upon the fourteenth day thereof, probably (if we conjecture) they might do it by ob- ſervation partly of the four quarters of the year, which they might finde out by the two Equinoxes, (viz. that in the Spring, and the other in the Autumne) when the daies and nights came to be of an equall length; and by the two Solſtices (the one in the Summer, when the Sun came neareſt unto them in the Tropick of Cancer, and the daies were at the longeſt, the other in the Winter, when the Sun was furtheſt from them in the Tropick of Capricorn, and the daies were at the ſhorteſt) and thus they had the four quarters of the years in their proper ſeaſons: and partly alſo by obſerving the changes of the Moon: for upon the fourteenth day, or Full of the Moon in the Equinox of the Spring, was the Paſsover to be obſerved.

Sect V. The ſpeciall ſacred Feaſts amongſt the Jews.

V. As for the Feaſts obſerved amongſt the Jews (to ſpeak ſomething briefly of them, becauſe they do, as we ſee, conduce to ordering of their years.) There were three ſorts of Feaſts kept by them:

viz. { Sabbaticall, or weekly. Monethly. Annuall.

1. The Sabbaticall Feaſts were alſo three fold.

2. The Sabbaticall year, which was every 7th. year, or the laſt of the week of years; wherein, 1. The Land was to reſt from tillage, for they were not that year to plough or ſow their ground, Exod. 23. 10, 11. and 2. Debts were to be releaſed, Deut. 15. 1, 2. and 3. Servants alſo were to be ſet free from their Maſters, Deut. 15. 12.
3. The year of Jubile, which was the 50th. year, viz. at the end of 7. Sabbaths of years, or of 7. times 7. years, which make 49. years, and the year following was the year of Jubile, Lev. 25. 8,9,10. wherein beſides the things to be obſerved and done in the 7. year, this was further added, viz. that lands and houſes which had been ſold or morgaged, were then to be releaſed, and men (though poor and unable to redeem them) were to return unto their Inheritances and Poſſeſſions, Lev. 25. 10. 13.

2. The Monethly Feaſts, called alſo the New-Moons, were kept upon every firſt day of each Moneth throughout the year. The firſt, or begining of them was in the Moneth Tizri, (which was the ſeventh Moneth from Abib, that being appointed to be their firſt Moneth and the begining of the year, in regard of their Annuall Feaſts:) for their Civill year did begin from that Moneth Tizri, and therefore the Feaſt of that New-Moon (being their New-years-day) was to be kept with ſome more ſolemnitie then the New-Moons of the other Moneths, viz. with Blowing of Trumpets, and was thereupon called the Feaſt of Trumpets, Lev. 23. 24. Numb. 29. 1.) and ſome ſpeciall and peculiar Sacrifices, Numb. 28. 11. with 29. 1. to 7. And although (as it ſeems) Trumpets were blown on other New-moons and Feſtivals, yet that was not to be done all the day long, as on the firſt day of Tizri, but onely in the time of their Sacrifices, Numb. 10. 10.

3. The Annuall or yearly Feaſts were divers; for beſides the Feaſt of Trumpets (which as 'twas one of the Monethly Feaſts, or New-Moons, ſo alſo it may be accounted as one of the Annuall Feaſts, in regard of the ſpeciall Solemnity of it which was but once a year, (as viz. the blowing of Trumpets, and the ſpeciall Sacrifices that were proper for that Feaſt) and not on any other of the New-Moons in all the year) there were theſe four following:

1. The Paſſover, called alſo the Feaſt of Unleavened-Bread, Exod. 12. 18, 19, 20. 2 Chron. 30. 1, 2 with 13. Mar. 14 12. Luk. 22. 1. The Paſſover it ſelf was to be kept on the Evening after the fourteenth day of the Moneth Abib, or Niſan, but the Feſtivity of Unleavened-Bread was on the fifteenth day, Numb. 28. 16. 17. which laſted ſeven daies, although only the firſt and laſt of the ſeven (viz. the fifteen, and twentie one daies of the Moneth) were kept as Holy to the Lord. It was for the continuall remembrance of the Iſraelites comming out of Ægypt; the Angel of the Lord having ſlain the Firſt-born in every houſe of the Ægyptians, but paſſed over the houſes of the Iſraelites: Whereupon they being driven out of Ægypt in haſt, not having time to leaven ven their Bread, were appointed to keep this Feast with Unleavened-Bread for seven daies, Exod. 12. 15, 16. The first of which seven daies, viz. the 15th. day of the Moneth, was the Holy-day or Sabbath (not the ordinarie Weekly Sabbath, but) the Sabbath of the Passover; and on the morrow after that Sabbath (being the 16. day of the Moneth) the Jews in the Land of Canaan were to offer the Sheaf of the First-fruits of their Harvest, for (as it seems) they had some Corn, viz. Barley, ripe about that time of the year; and if it were not then fully ripe, yet they were to reap so much as might make a Sheaf to offer unto the Lord. This Feast of the Passover was one of the three solemne Feasts which were to be kept yearly at Jerusalem by all the Males.

2. The Feast of Weeks (which was another of the three Feasts that all the Males were to go up to Jerusalem to observe) 'twas called the Feast of Weeks and of Pentecost, because it was at the end of seven Weeks, or fiftie daies after the offering of the Sheaf in the Feast of the Passover, or Unleavened-Bread: it was also called the Feast of Harvest, for about that time was their Wheat-Harvest, and two Wave-loaves were then at that Feast to be offered as the First-fruits (viz. of their Wheat; for they were to offer before, the Barley-Sheaf in the time of the Passover) in token of their thankfull acknowledgement of the Lords blessing, in giving them to reap their Harvest, and to sanctifie the whole lump of their corn for their use, Rom. 11. 16. The time of this Feast was in their third Moneth, and about the later part of that Moneth, which amongst us is called May.

Exo. 23. 6

3. The Feast of Expiation, if we may properly call it a Feast; for it was indeed a day wherein the Jews were to afflict their souls, and make an Atonement for their sins, the High-Priest being then to enter with blood into the Holy of Holies, and to sanctifie the Sanctuary, Tabernacle, Altar, and also the Priests and People, Lev. 16. This (as is generally acknowledged) was that Fast which is mentioned by Luke in the relation of Pauls voyage towards Rome [Sailing was now dangerous, because the Fast was already past] The reaſon of which danger in Sailing then might be, in regard that Winter was coming on; for the Faſt (or Feaſt of Expiation) was upon the tenth day of the ſeventh Moneth, which anſwers to the latter end of that Moneth which we call September; and Winter voyages (we know) are counted dangerous.

4. The Feaſt of Tabernacles or Booths: It was the third and laſt great Feaſt which all the Males were to keep at Jeruſalem. It did begin upon the fifteenth day of the ſeventh Moneth, and laſted ſeven daies, being alſo called the Feaſt of In-gathering, becauſe it was obſerved and kept when they had gathered in, not only all their Corn, but all their Frnit alſo. In this Feaſt the Jews were to make themſelves Booths of green boughs, wherein they were to dwell all the ſeven daies of It, in remembrance of their Forefathers dwelling in Booths when they were in the Wilderneſſe. The laſt day of this Feaſt (being the eighth day from the firſt) was kept as a very great Feſtivall and Holy-day, being (as it is conceived) that which is called by the Evangeliſt, that great day of the Feaſt. The day after this Feaſt (as is ſaid by ſome) they did compaſſe the Altar about ſeven times with boughs of Palm-trees in their hands, in token of the overthrow of the Walls of Jericho, and it was therefore called the Feaſt of Palms.

Theſe were the ſpeciall Feaſts of the Jews which were inſtituted immediately by the Lord on Mount-Sinai: ſome others alſo they did afterward obſerve upon ſpeciall occaſion, as the Feaſt of Purim upon the fourteenth and fifteenth dayes of the twelfth Moneth called Adar, in remembrance of their great deliverance from the malignant cruell plot of Haman; the annuall Obſervation whereof ſeems to have been in a civill way, Eſther 9. 22. And the Feaſt of Dedication of the Temple after it had been prophaned by Antiochus Epiphanes, which Judas Maccabeus inſtituted and appointed to be kept in the ninth Moneth, viz. Chiſleu, and the twenty fifth day thereof: and it is thought to be that which is mentioned in Joh. 10. 22. for it is ſaid there, that it was Winter.

VI. If

Sect. VI. There is a great difference between the Computation of the sum of the parcells of years, as expressed and set down in the Scripture; and the exact Chronologicall account; the former exceeding the latter: and the reasons thereof.

VI. If the totall summe of the years of the World were computed according to the severall parcels as they are set down in the Scripture, it would exceed the true Chronologicall account by far; as is apparent by comparing the computation of the years onely of the Kings of Judah and Israel: Ex. gr. In the Reign of the four first Kings of Israel, as recorded in the Letter of the Scripture there were fiftie years; for it is said, that

Baasha,	———	24.
		50.

Whereas, according to the account of the Kings of Judah (who reigned in the same time) there were not so many by three or four years: for from the first year of Rehoboam (which was the first year also of Jeroboam*) unto the twentie seventh year of* Asa, King of Judah (in which year Elah, the last of those four Kings of Israel died) according to the literall expression of the Scripture, there were but fourtie seven years.

for Rehoboam,	Reigned	17.	years.
Abijam,	———	3.
Asa,	———	27

and yet, neither was there full so many years in true Chronologicall account; for the third and last year of Abijam was but one and the same with the first of Asa, as is easily to be discerned by the Table of the V. Period. So that in true account there were but fourty six years from the first year of Rehoboam unto the twenty seventh year of Asa; yea, though that twenty seven years also be included in the account; and therefore there could not be fiftie years from the first year of Jeroboam unto the end of Elah's Reign; as the literall account of the Scripture seems to hold forth: whereby it appears, that there is a difference to be put between the Scripture-Literall account, and the Scripture-Chronologicall account of the years of the World, the former by far far exceeding the latter account. The which (that it may not ſeem ſtrange unto any) I ſhall here briefly give the ſpeciall cauſes and reaſons of: viz. Firſt, Sometimes the Scripture ſpeaks of a year that is but current, and begun but very little, as if it were an whole and full year: E.gr. 'tis ſaid that Jeroboam reigned 22. years, 1 King. 14. 20. When as his laſt year was but current, and only begun, and in very deed he reigned but very little more then 21. years; and the like alſo is to be ſeen in the ſecond and laſt year of his ſon Nadab, for that year was but little more then begun, and yet it is ſaid that he reigned two years. Divers other inſtances might be given to this purpoſe from the years of the Kings of Judah and Iſrael, both in regard of the firſt and laſt years of their reign: for it is ſaid, that time which was before the firſt moneth, when any of them began to reign, though never ſo little, as if but a moneth, or a week, was reckoned for the firſt year of his reign, and the time after was accounted the ſecond year. Secondly, the Scripture doth ſeem oftentimes to compute one and the ſame year twice: E.gr. Jeroboam is ſaid to have reigned 22. years, and his ſon Nadab two years; Now it is evident that the two and twentieth, or laſt year of Jeroboam is reckoned again in the firſt year of Nadab; for the 22. year of Jeroboam was in the ſecond year of Aſa King of Judah, and ſo was the firſt year of Nadab. Again, (to give but one inſtance more, though many might be produced to the ſame purpoſe) the four laſt years of Jehoſaphats reign ſeeme to be twice accounted; for his ſon Jehoram did reign whilſt himſelf was living, and the time that Jehoram did reign in all, was but eight years; yet four of them he reigned (as it ſeems) together with his father, and ſo they are reckoned twice. Thirdly, becauſe ſometime the Scripture doth mention a round and whole number of years, when as the juſt and exact number is ſomething either over or under: E.gr. when Jepthah told the Ammonites that the Iſraelites had poſſeſſed the land of the Amorites 300 years, there a round and even number is expreſſed, when as the exact number might be under and ſhort of it about thirtie years: and ſo when as one place ſaies that David reigned fourtie years, there a round and whole number is put in ſtead of an imperfect or broken ſumme; for in exact ac-

1 King. 2. 11.

2 Sam. 5. 5 count, he reigned fourtie years and ſix moneths: and verily the ſame may be conceived of the years of the Patriarchs, both before and after the Flood; and alſo of the years of the reign of the Kings both of Judah and Iſrael: for it cannot eaſily be beleeved, but that ſomething was either over or under, in the years aſcribed to each of them; but a round and whole number is mentioned in ſtead of a broken and imperfect number. Fourthly, There was alſo (as it ſeems) an Interregnum, or Interim, in the Kingdome of Iſrael (and ſome think alſo in the Kingdome of Judah) which the Scripture doth not expreſsly mention, but may be gathered by comparing the years of the Kings of Judah and Iſrael together which were contemporary: viz. from the death of Jeroboam the ſecond, to the time that his ſon Zachariah began to reign; for Jeroboam died about the twentie ſixth year of Uzziah or Azariah King of Judah (as will eaſily appear by the Table of the V. Period) and yet his ſon Zachariah did not begin to reign till the

2 Kin. 15. 8 thirtie eighth year of Azariah, whereby an error might eaſily be committed by the literall account of the years of the Kings of Iſrael.

Sect. VII. That there are great difficulties in the V Period, viz. in the time of the Kings of Judah and Iſrael, and the cauſes thereof.

VII. Of all the parcels or Periods in Scripture Chronologie, that about the time of the kings of Judah and Iſrael, (which is that which I call the V. Period) ſeems to be moſt knottie and full of puzling intricacies: the clearing of which to mine own ſatisfaction, was one ſpeciall occaſion of ſetting about this preſent Work; and I muſt acknowledge that I have not yet attained unto that full ſatisfaction in ſome particulars which I could deſire; and therefore neither can I expect that in every thing therein I ſhall fully ſatisfie all others. And indeed many things there are which may eaſily occaſion much difficultie in making an Harmony in the years between the Kings of Judah and Iſrael that were contemporaries: viz. theſe amongſt others; as firſt the reckoning ſometimes a peice of a year, as if it were a perfect and full year. Secondly, the accounting of ſome years twice over: thirdly, the joint reigning of the ſon ſometimes with the father, and yet mentioning the years of their reign, as if they reigned ſo many years ſeverally and ſingly: fourthly, the vacancy, or Interregnum, which (as it ſeems) was in the Kingdome of Iſrael, do help to increaſe the difficultie:

difficultie: and fifthly, ſo likewiſe do the varions and uncertain time and part of the year of the begining of the reign of the ſeverall Kings of Judah and Iſrael; for uſually upon the death of one King (let it be in what part ſoever of the year) axother did at the ſame time ſucceed him in the Kingdome; whence it might come to paſſe, that the begining a Kings reign, ſometimes might be near upon the later end of the year, and yet (as is ſaid before) that little part of the year be reckoned as the firſt year of his reign, as We know it hath Wont to be the cuſtome and manxer here in England: and thence alſo the begining of the reign of the Kings in the one Kingdome might be about the middle or later end of the year of the Kings of the other that Was contemporary: and very ſeldome, viz. not above once after the diviſion of the Kingdome of Iſrael from Judah, did the Kings or Governours of Judah and Iſrael begin together, and that was when Jehu had ſlain both the King of Iſrael, (in whoſe ſtead he reigned himſelf) and the King of Judah (in whoſe ſtead Athaliah uſurped the Kingdome at the ſame time.) By which means it is very difficult, (if not impoſſible) to carry on in a parallel line the years of the Kings of Judah and Iſrael together; and therefore in the Table of this V. Period, the lines for the years of the reign are not made to run parallel, except in the begining of the Kingdome of Iſrael, when Jeroboam began to reign about the very begining of Rehoboams reigning in Judah; and alſo in the begining of the reign of Athaliah and Jehu, which began about the ſame time together; and the firſt year of their reign is placed in one and the ſame direct line: but in the reſt the lines do differ, the line for the year of the one being higher or lower then the line for the year of the other.

Sect. VIII Some variation here is in this chain of Chronologie from the account of ſome others, and thoſe particulars are here expreſſed.

VIII. In ſome particulars here is ſome variation from the moſt common account and reckoning amongſt Chronologers; the reaſons moving thereunto are laid down in the ſeverall Notes upon them. Now the ſpeciall and moſt materiall are theſe that follow.

The firſt is about the time of Abrahams birth, Which I account to have been in the 130. year of his father Terah; I do freely acknowledge that it is conſiderble which is alledged for the placing it rather at his fathers ſeventieth year, viz. the admira- tion that Abraham expreſſed at his hearing of the Promiſe, that he ſhould have a ſon by Sarah when he was an hundred years old, which probably he would never have done, had he himſelf been born when his own father was 130. years old: yet the reaſons for the former are more prevalent with me, which are alledged in N. [23.]

Again, the year of the Promiſe made unto Abraham, I have ſet at the 70th. year of his life, viz. when he was called to go out of UR of the Chaldees (his native countrey) whereas the moſt generall Opinion is that It was made when he was 75. years old, being in Haran, which was five years after he came from UR: but the reaſons leading to the former, are ſet down in N. [25.]

The 70. years Captivity in Babylon, I do begin from that Captivity in the 11. year of Zedekiah, when the City of Jeruſalem was deſtroyed, and the Temple burnt: I confeſſe the more common account do begin them ſooner, viz. either from the Captivity of Jehojakim, or elſe of Jehoiachin (who is alſo called Jeconiah:) why I am inclined that way in my apprehenſions, may be ſeen in N. [X.]

Dan. 9. About the begining alſo of the 70. Weeks, (or 490. years) mentioned in Daniel, I do ſomething vary from the generall current; for I begin the account of them juſt from the end of the 70. years Captivity, or from the firſt year of Cyrus; whereas it is generally concluded, that the begining of them was ſome time after Cyrus, viz. either in the ſecond year of Darius, or the ſeventh, or elſe the twentieth year of Artaxerxes; but what is ſaid about this particular, is to be ſeen in the begining of the VII. Period.

Sect. IX The times of ſome remarkable things, whoſe years are not determined, are here mentioned & gueſſed at. Gen. 11.

IX. Divers remarkable things mentioned in Scripture, are not inſerted and put down in theſe Chronologicall-Tables, by reaſon the certain time of them cannot be determined, but is onely to be gueſſed at with ſome probability; and therefore I ſhall chuſe rather here to mention ſome of the chief of them, viz.

1. The Diviſion and Confuſion of Languages at the building of the Tower of Babel, is thought to be about the time when Peleg was born, his name ſeeming to point at ſomething that way.

2. Abrahams going into Ægypt when the Famine was in Canaan, ſeems to have been not long after his going into Canaan, which which I conceive was about the seventie fifth year of his life. Gen. 12. 10.

3. The rescue of Lot by Abraham, when he overthrew the four Kings, might probably be about eight or nine years after he had been in Canaan. Gen. 14.

4. The casting of Hagar and Ishmael out of Abrahams Family, was after the birth of Isaac (for it was upon occasion of Ishmaels mocking of Isaac) 'tis like it was about five or six years after. Gen. 21.

5. The offering up of Isaac by Abraham, is thought to have been when Isaac was upward of twentie years old. Gen. 22.

6. Isaac went into the Land of the Philistines, and sojourned in Gerar by reason of the Famine in Canaan, within some few years after the death of Abraham. Gen. 26.

7. Dinah (Jaocbs daughter) ravished, and the slaughter of the Shechemites thereupon by Simeon and Levi, might be when Jacob was about an 100. years old. Gen. 34.

8. Job (who is so famous for his extraordinary afflictions and conflicts, and great patience under them) is thought by some to have lived in the time of Moses, and even then when the Israelites were in the Wilderness, after they had passed the Red Sea, and accordingly do expound that expression in Job 26. 12. He divideth the Sea with his power, i.e. The Red Sea (as they think) which Job might have heard of; but that Exposition, I look at as too much streightned in restraining It to the dividing of the Sea for the Israelites to passe thorow: for Job in that Chapter is speaking of the power of God in his works of Creation, as in vers. 7. &c. and therefore It may be understood of his dividing the waters from the dry Land, and gathering them into one place, which he called Sea: or if we will understand it of the works of his Providence, wherein his power appeareth, then he may mean It of the great power of God manifested upon the Sea in the time of great storms, when there are such dreadfull Breakings of the Sea; and so indeed the word signifies, to break: and so also the dividing of the Sea is used in Scripture, for to set out the great power of God appearing in the Sea in the great Breakers or Breaches that are made by stormie windes; as in Jer. 31. 35. where the same expression is used to that intent, as Expositors do acknowledge, Diodat.

acknowledge, which divideth, or troubleth (as ſome tranſlate it) the Sea, or breaketh it, &c. Others (more probably in my apprehenſion) have conceived that he was before Moſes; and about the time when Jacob went down into Ægypt by reaſon of the Famine that was in the Land of Canaan, which was about 130. years before the birth of Moſes; and that he was of the Poſteritie of Nahor (the brother of Abraham) which they conjecture from the name of the Land where Job dwelt, viz. Uz, or Huz, which might have its denomination from the eldeſt ſon of Nahor, who was ſo called, Gen. 22. 20, 21. yea, ſome go ſo far, as to conceive that he was that Jobab mentioned in Gen. 36. 34. but that the difference of the names of Job and Jobab in the Hebrew (how ever they are ſomething near in ſound and letters according to our Language, yet they differ far in the Hebrew letters) will not bear; and that Opinion of his being of the kindred of Abraham (though ſome deſcents after him) is confirmed by the Stock and Lineage of his Friends (who might be his near kindred) that came to viſit him in his affliction: for (they ſay that) Eliphaz was of the Poſteritie of Eſau; being called the Temanite, and Teman was a chief place that did belong to the Edomites: and ſo Elihu alſo is called the Buzite, and ſaid to be of the kindred of Ram, Job 32. 2. which Ram they think, might be he who is called Aram, Gen. 22. 21. But if any roome may be left for conjecture, I ſuppoſe there may be as good probabilitie gathered from his age and years which he lived, that he was rather before Abraham then after him: for certainly he muſt live above two hundred years; whereas Abraham, who lived but 175. years, was accounted (for that generation of the World wherein he lived) to be old and full of daies: Now that Job lived far longer then ſo, even to be 210. years old at the leaſt, may be gathered thus: it is probable that he was well in years before his affliction, for his children were all grown up to be men and women; his ſeven ſons had families and houſholds by themſelves, and therefore could not well be leſſe then 80. years old; or ſuppoſe he was then but 70. for poſſibly the Lord might double his years afterward, as well as his other bleſſings, and the years which he lived after his affliction, were 140. wherein he had ten children more, and ſaw his ſons ſons. I ſhall not determine any thing, thing, but leave others to conjecture according to the probabilities which they do apprehend. As for his afflictions, as they were very great, ſo I do beleeve they were very long alſo; for he complains of Moneths of vanity which he was made to poſſeſſe; yea, it is like there might years alſo paſſe over him before there was a full return of his Captivity, for the reſtoring of his ten children could not be without many years. Job 7. 3.

9 The Oppreſſion of the Iſraelites in Ægypt, is thought by ſome, to be about an 100. years before their deliverance. Funccius.

11. The begining of thoſe twentie years, wherein it is ſaid that the Ark did abide in Kireath-jearim, is thought to be about the time of Eli's death; for the Ark being then taken by the Philiſtines, and after ſeven Moneths ſent back, was brought to Kireath-jearim. 1 Sam. 7. 1, 2. 1 Sam. 6. 1. 21.

12. David ſlew Goliah (as it is apprehended) about five or ſix years before he began to reign, which time after, he was (for the moſt part) perſecuted by Saul. 1 Sam. 17.

13. Samuel died (as ſome think) about two or three years before the death of Saul, and the begining of Davids reign.

14. The time when Eſther was married unto King Ahaſuerus, cannot certainly be determined; yet I am apt to conceive that it might be within the time of the 70. years Captivity, and towards the later part of it; though I confeſſe 'tis generally affirmed to have been a great while after, viz. in the time of the Perſian Monarchie, but the reaſons of mine apprehenſion are ſet down in the Notes of the VI. Period.

Sect. X. The order and place of the Books of Scripture, according to their times and Chronologicall account.

X. The ſeverall Books of Scripture as they are placed in our Bibles, not ſtanding in their order according to their times, I ſhall here therefore endeavour to ſhew the Chronologicall order of them:

1. Geneſis, is (as it is rightly placed) the firſt Book of all, in regard It doth contain the Storie of the Creation and Begining of the World; and ſo carries on the time to the death of Joſeph, which was about 2360. years

2. Job, It may perhaps ſeem very ſtrange, that the Book of Job ſhould in order of time, come next after Geneſis; yet in regard of the time wherein he lived (which to me ſeems to be rather before Moſes then after him, as it is ſaid before, Sect. IX.) I conceive It is to be placed before Exodus, which begins with the Story of the birth of Moſes.

3. Exodus,
4. Leviticus,
5. Numbers,
6. Deuteronomie.

Theſe Books are uſually ſaid to be written by Moſes (although there be ſome expreſſions and paſſages in them, which give occaſion to queſtion It) and do contain the Story of about 180. years, viz. from the death of Joſeph, unto the time of the death of Moſes, when the children of Iſrael were about to enter into the Land of Canaan.

7. Joſhua: The Book which bears that Title, is next in time after Deuteronomie, for It begins from the Death of Moſes, and the Iſraelites preparation to enter into the Land of Canaan, (where that other left) and continues the Story all the time that Joſhuah did govern the people, which ſeems to have been about ſeventeen years.

8. Judges: This Book takes up the Story of the Church, from the death of Joſhuah, and carries it along from one Judge to another, to the death of Sampſon, which is about the ſpace of three hundred years.

9. Ruth: The Story contained in that Book, fell out in the time of the Judges; and more particularly about the time of Ehud (who was the ſecond Judge) as is probably concluded before, (Sect. IX.) and therefore is next in order after the Book of the Judges.

10. I. Samuel: This Book goes on with the Story of the Judges

Judges after Sampſon (where that Book left, for what is mentioned therein after the Storie of Sampſon, was in time long before him,) viz. with Eli and Samuel, and then ſhews the change of the Government, in ſetting up of Saul to be King, and the end of his reign and life: ſo that the Hiſtory in this Book is of about 80. years.

11. II. Samuel: Therein is related the whole reign of David, who ſucceeded Saul, which is an Hiſtorie of 40. years.

12. Pſalms: They being generally acknowledged (at leaſt the greateſt number of them) to be compoſed by David, are to follow (in order of time) the Storie of his life.

13. I. Kings: This Book begineth where the ſecond of Samuel endeth, viz. at the later end of Davids reign, and ſo goes on to Solomon, with the buiding of the Temple by him; and thento Rehoboam, in whoſe time hapned the Rent and Diviſion of the Kingdome of Judah and Iſrael, and ends with Jehoram the ſon of Jehoſaphat King of Judah, whoſe contemporarie was Ahaziah the ſon of Ahab King of Iſrael; ſo that the Hiſtorie in this Book ſeems to be of about 120. years.

14. II. Kings: The Storie of the Kings is here continued, viz. from Ahaziah King of Iſrael, and Jehoram King of Judah, unto the finall Captivity of Judah in Babylon, yea, and ſome part alſo of the 70. years Captivity is mentioned in the ſame: for the enlargement of Jehoiachin in Babylon is ſpoken of, which was in the 37. year of his Captivitie, and the 26. year of that in Zedekiah's time: ſo that in this Book is a relation of the Story of 330. years.

15. I. Chronicles: } Theſe two Books of Chronicles are 16. II. Chronicles: } but a reheurſall of the Story of the Kings of Judah and Iſrael, and therefore may well be placed immediately after them: only indeed, the ſecond Book of Chronicles reacheth a little further then the ſecond Book of the Kings doth, viz. to the end of the 70 years Captivity in Babylon.

17. Proverbs: }
18. Eccleſiaſtes: } Theſe three Books are accounted to be Solomons, and therefore may come after
19. Canticles: } thoſe of the Kings and Chronicles, and not ſo wel before, becauſe the Hiſtory of Solomons reign is not recorded in any Book intirely and alone by it ſelf, as Davids is in II. Sam. otherwiſe (if it were not for an Interruption) they might be placed after the firſt Book of the Kings.

20. Jonah: Of all the Prophets (whoſe Propheſies are gathered up in a Book) he ſeems to be one of the firſt; for although it be not expreſſed in the Book of his Propheſie at what time he lived and did propheſie, yet we find him mentioned in another place, where intimation is, that he propheſied in the time of Jeroboam the ſecond, if not before: It being ſaid, that Jeroboam reſtored much of the coaſt of Iſrael, according to the Word of the Lord, ſpoken by his ſervant Jonah. And it is probable that he propheſied (at leaſt, if not before) in the former part of the reign of Jeroboam (who reigned 41. years, which was the longeſt time that any of the Kings of Iſrael did reign) for thoſe words do ſeem to imply, as if that Word of the Lord had been ſpoken by Jonah ſome time before It was accompliſhed. How long he continued to propheſie, we cannot ſay, ſeeing we finde nothing hinted to give light that way.

2 King. 14. 25.

21. Amos: He (as it is probable) might propheſie much about the ſame time wherein Jonah did propheſie, or not long after: for he had his Viſion in the daies of Uzziah King of Judah, and of Jeroboam King of Iſrael, two years before the Earthquake, which Earthquake (as is intimated in the N. upon Uzziah) might in probability be about the 22. year of the reign of Uzziah, and conſequently within ſome three or four years before the death of Jeroboam, for he died about the twenty ſixth year of Uzziah; therefore, according to this account, Amos did begin to propheſie about the twentieth year of Uzziah King of Judah, and about the thirty fifth year of the reign of Jeroboam King of Iſrael the ſecond of that Name.

Amos 1. 1.

22. Hoſea: He did propheſie in the daies of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah Kings of Judah, and in the daies of Jeroboam (the ſecond of that Name) King of Iſrael; whereby It ſeems that he was much about the time of Jonah and Amos, or but very little after them. 'Tis not indeed expreſſed in what year either of Uzziah, or of Jeroboam, he did begin to propheſie, or in what year of Hezekiah he ceaſed, whereby the certain number ber of years of his propheſying cannot be determined; it is probable that he might begin to propheſie about the later end of the reign of Jeroboam, and might ceaſe not long after the beginning of Hezekiah's reign, ſuppoſe about his ſixth year, and that was the time when the Kingdome of Iſrael ended: for the King of Aſſyria carried Iſrael away Captives in that ſixth year of Hezekiah: Now, if we do reckon from the very laſt year of Jeroboam, (or twentie ſixth year of Uzziah King of Judah) unto the ſixth year of Hezekiah, when Samaria was taken by the King of Aſſyria, it appeareth that there were above ſixty years; and yet ſo much as he did begin to propheſie before the laſt year of Jeroboam, ſtill ſo much the longer was he imployed in that Work.

23. Iſaiah did propheſie about the ſame time in Judah, as Hoſea did in Iſrael (viz. in the daies of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah) or a very little after him. If we ſuppoſe that he began about the middle of the reign of Uzziah, and continued but to the begining of the reign of Hezekiah, or but two or three years after it, yet the time of his propheſying muſt be near about 60. years. Iſa. 1. 1.

24. Joel: The time of his propheſying is altogether uncertain; for there is no mention at all of it, either in that Book or any other in all the Scripture. I am apt to think that probably he might not be very long after the Prophet Amos, becauſe he ſeems to touch upon ſome things mentioned by him: compare Joel 3. 3. to 9. with Amos 1. 6. to 11.

25. Micah propheſied in the daies of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, Kings of Judah; and therefore, though he began ſomewhat after Iſaiah, yet he lived together at the ſame time with him and Hoſea alſo. Mic. 1. 1.

26. Nahum: Though there be no mention of the time when he did propheſie, yet it is probable that it was after Senacherib King of Aſſyria had come againſt Jeruſalem in the daies of Hezekiah, whereby the people through the Land were hindred from coming up to Jeruſalem to keep their ſolemn Feaſts, as ſeems to be intimated by Nah. 1. 15. the whole Propheſie ſeems to be againſt Niniveh (the Metropolis of the Aſſyrians) and conſe- quently against the Whole Kingdome of them: and therefore probably he might propheſie toward the later end of Hezekiah's reign, or in the begining of Manaſſeh's.

27. Habakkuk might alſo propheſie about the ſame time as Nahum did; viz. in the daies of Manaſſeh, ſomewhat before Jeremiah, for he ſpeaks of the coming of the Chaldeans againſt Judah, yet not ſo plainly of the Captivity of the Jews in Babylon as Jeremiah did; and therefore I ſuppoſe he might be ſomewhat before him.

Hab. 1. 6.

28. Jeremiah began to propheſie in the 13. year of Joſiah King of Judah, which was about 40. years before the finall Captivity of Judah; he continued untill that laſt Captivity, but how long after 'tis uncertain.

Jer. 1. 1.

29. Zephaniah propheſied alſo in the daies of Joſiah, as Jeremiah did; yet (as 'tis conceived) a little after him: it is uncertain how long he did continue to propheſie, 'tis probable that not ſo long as Jeremy did.

Zeph. 1. 1.

30. Lamentations of Jeremie were written after the Captivity of Judah; the Calamities therein of Jeruſalem and the people of God, being the chief ſubject thereof.

31. Obadiah: Divers conjectures there are about the time of his propheſying; but to me it ſeems probable that it was after the taking of Jeruſalem, and the Captivity of the Jews by the Babylonians, becauſe he ſpeaks of the rejoycing of the Edomites at it, v. 11.

32. Ezekiel propheſied in the time of the Babylonian Captivity; he began to propheſie in the fifth year of Jehoiachins captivity, which was about 6. years before the finall and laſt Captivity in the 11th. year of Zedekiah; and continued propheſying a long time after, as appears by the time of that glorious Viſion of the New Jeruſalem and Temple, which was about 14. years after the laſt Captivity, Chap 40. 1.

33. Daniel: His propheſying was alſo in the time of the Captivity of Babylon; and he lived after the returne out of it.

Dan 7. 1. & 10. 1.

34. Eſter: The Story recorded in that Book, ſeems probably to have been in the time of the Captivity, and towards the later part of it. Indeed 'tis generally concluded to be a long time after the the Return from Babylon, in the time of the Perſian Monarchie, and that Ahaſuerus, there mentioned, was one of the Kings of Parſia; but the reaſons which perſwade me to think otherwiſe, are ſet down in the Notes upon the V. Periods.

35. Haggai propheſied after the Captivity of ſeventy years were expired, when the Jews were returned from Babylon in the time of Darius (one of the Perſian Kings) for then 'tis ſaid that he propheſied to the people, and encouraged them to go forward in the building of the Temple. Hag. 1. 1. Ezr. 5. 1.

36. Zechariah began to propheſie in the ſame year with Haggai, and but two Moneths after him; viz. in the eighth moneth of the ſecond year of Darius. Zech. 1. 1.

37. Ezra: This Book contains the ſtory of the Jews after their Return from Babylon; viz. from the firſt year of Cyrus till ſome part of the reign of Artaxerxes was paſt. Ezr. 1. 1. & 7. 1. 8.

38. Nehemiah: He had Commiſſion from Artaxerxes to go up to Jeruſalem, and ſet forward the building of it: and the Story of the Jews after their Return from Babylon is continued in that Book from the 20. year of Artaxerxes unto the end of the Perſian Monarchie; for Jaddua was High-Prieſt when Alexander the Great overthrew Darius the laſt King of the Perſians; and that Jaddua is mentioned by Nehemiah. Neh. 1. 1. & 2. 1. & 12. 11.

39. Malachy: The time when he propheſied is very uncertain (there being nothing expreſſed or intimated about it) yet it is moſt probable that he was the laſt of all the Prophets extant before Chriſt was incarnate; for he propheſied of his coming ſuddenly after his time: poſſibly he might live either in the later end of Nehemiah's time, or ſome little while after: for he doth expreſly teſtifie againſt thoſe ſpeciall ſins which were found amongſt the Jews, in the laſt Chapter of Nehemiah, notwithſtanding their ſolemn engagement before, Chap. 10. viz. their prophane and impure marriages, and withholding their Tythes and Firſt fruits, and holy Offerings. Mal. 3. 1. Mal 2. 10, 11. & 3. 8. 10.

XI. There

Sect. XI. That there are divers Chronologicall dislocations in the Historical and Prophetical Books of Scripture.

XI. There are also divers Hysterologies or Chronologicall dislocations in Scripture in many of the Historicall and Prophetical Books in the Old Testament: some things being set before, which in time were after; as divers instances might be given: but I shall not enter upon it here, it being a work fitter for an intire Treatise, then to be spoken unto in an Introduction. If any who have a genius that way would please to undertake such a work, I dare be bold to promise, that such pains will be very usefull and acceptable unto some.

Sect. XII. A brief account of the Treatise in this Book.

XII. The businesse of this present Treatise (to give a brief account of it, and some light and direction for the understanding of it) is to set out the Scripture-Chronologie, or the years from the Creation of the World, unto the Death of Jesus Christ; the which is carried on by dividing the same into seven severall Periods; partly, because the Scripture seems to point at them, as some remarkable parcels of time; and partly also, for the better help of the memory: for by the mean) of these Periods (which may be understood and remembred with the expence of but an hour or two) such an insight may be attained into Scripture-Chronologie, as suddenly to have a very near guesse at the time of any remarkable thing that is mentioned in the Scripture; viz. by considering in what Period it lies, and the years of the other Periods that were before. The years of each Period are here carried along in the margent, (one particular depending upon another, as one linck in a Chain takes hold of another) with the grounds and reasons of the years of one thing after another in the Notes, there being figures or marks for reference unto each particular; the summe of the years of each Period is collected and set down at the end of the Period: and the summe of all the seven Periods being counted together, will give the summe of the years from the Creation, unto the Death of Christ, which in this Treatise is computed to be about 3963. years.

And for the more easie and clear understanding of the particular time of such things as are recorded in the Scripture, here are divers Tables inserted, viz. A Generall one, containing the whole space of Time from the Creation unto the Death of Christ, wherein the seven Periods are expressed. Then there are also particular particular Tables for all the ſeverall Periods, in which divers things are ſet down which could not ſo well be digeſted in the Generall Table: and unto the firſt and ſecond Periods are added two little Tables, to ſhew both the ages of the ſeverall Patriarchs (before and after the Flood) when one and another was born, and the difference in years between them, and alſo how long any of them were contemporary together. The Table of the V. Period is larger then any of the reſt, in regard that every particular year thereof is expreſſed, for the better clearing of ſome great difficulties which are about the Chronologie of the Kings of Judah and Iſrael. And in the end and concluſion of all there is another Generall Table, to ſhew preſently upon the caſt of the eye, what number of years there were between the moſt remarkable things from the Creation, to the Death of Chriſt. Some more particular directions are alſo ſet down in moſt of the ſeverall Tables about the uſe of them. The year before Chriſts Birth or Death is not carried along in the Tables (as it might have been) for the avoyding of too many lines in the ſides of them; but the year before Chriſts Death or Birth may eaſily be found, by ſubſtracting the years of any particular from the Creation, out of 3963. (which is the year of the Death of Chriſt) or out of 3930. (which is the year of his Birth) and the number remaining is the year before the Death or Birth of Chriſt; E. gr. if one would know how many years the Flood was before the Birth of Chriſt, let him ſubſtract 1656. (which was the year of the Flood from the Creation) out of 3930. and the remaining number (which is 2274.) ſheweth the years before Chriſt was born: ſo the years before Chriſts Death at the Flood are found by ſubſtracting 1656. out of 3963. (the year of the World when Chriſt was Crucified) for there will appear to be 2307. years; and the like courſe will ſhew the ſame for any other particular.

A CHRO

A Chain of Scripture-Chronologie.

THe years from the Creation of the firſt Adam unto the Death of JESUS CHRIST the ſecond Adam, are diſtributed here into ſeverall PERIODS (which are certain parcels of time which the Scripture ſeems to point out) and accordingly are noted in the generall Chronologicall Table by greater Letters then the reſt.

Now, of thoſe Periods, there are ſeven eſpecially, which ſeem to be moſt remarkable; viz. theſe as followeth:

From the
- Creation unto the Flood.
- Flood unto the Promiſe.
- Promiſe unto the { Comming out of Ægypt. / or, / Giving of the Law.
- Law unto the begining of the Temple.
- Temple unto the Captivity in Babylon.
- Captivity unto the Return.
- Return from Babylon to the death of CHRIST.

The which Periods are alſo ſet out in ſo many particular and ſeverall Tables by themſelves, becauſe every thing belonging unto each of them could not be diſtinctly expreſſed in the Generall Table.

Here place the Table with this Mark [*]

The I. Period.

FRom the CREATION of the World unto the FLOOD (which is the firſt remarkable Period) are about 1656 years: as appeareth by the Geneologie of the Patriarchs recorded in Gen. 5.

Note: 1. That I account the laſt year of thoſe 1656. to be but current and not compleat: for it was about the begining of that year when the Flood began; therefore we are to reckon but 1655. years full and compleat for this 1. Period.

Note: 2. That 'tis very probable, there were ſome years over or under in exact account (if it were poſſible to finde them out) becauſe (as is expreſſed in the Introduction) it cannot rationally be conceived, that the years of all thoſe Patriarchs before the Flood were ſo exact and even, but that there might probably be two or three moneths (poſſibly more) either ſhort of, or elſe above the year mentioned, when one and another was born: as when it is ſaid, that Adam was 130. years old when Seth was born, can it be ſuppoſed, as moſt probable, that he was juſt ſo old, and not a moneth more or leſſe? and ſo of the reſt. For the Scripture ſpeaks of a year, when there is ſomething over ſometimes, poſſibly a quarter, or half a year: as when it is ſaid, that David did reign 40. years, 1 Chron. 29. 27. the laſt year whereof was more then compleat; for in exact account, he reigned 40. years and an half, 1 Chro. 3. 4. and ſometimes again, it calls that a year which is but current, and not long begun: as when it is ſaid that Methuſelah lived 969. years, the laſt year thereof was not compleat, but current; for it is generally agreed upon, that he died in the very year wherein the Flood began, and ſome little while before the begining of it, and that year was but the 969 year of his age. So again, when it is ſaid that Noah was 500. years old when he begat Shem, Ham, and Japhet, Gen. 5. 32. that is (ſays Mr. Ainſworth) he was going in his 500 year, not that that laſt year was fully ended; but ſee more of this matter in the Introduction. Therefore when we reckon 1655. years compleat for this firſt Period, we are to underſtand it not in a moſt ſtrict and exact account, as if in very deed there were juſt ſo many years, and neither more or leſſe, but only ſo far as we can collect and gather from the footſtep of that age recorded in the Scripture; whereas probably there might in an exact computation be ſome years ſhort of that number.

The years from the Creation.

THE time and day of the week whereon Adam was created, is expreſly ſet down to be the ſixth day after the begining of Time, Gen. 1. 26. 31. but the time of the year wherein that firſt week was, is not any where expreſſed; whether in the Spring or Autumne, Winter or Summer. There are, I confeſſe, probable arguments alledged by ſome, that it was in the Spring time, when the World was Created, but the moſt-probable to me, ſeem to conclude it rather to have been in the Autumne, and in particular, about the ſeventh moneth, called by the Hebrews, Tizri, or Ethanim, and ordinarily September, amongſt us in the Weſtern parts of the world (and ſo Scaliger alſo concluded, it ſeems, upon his ſecond thoughts, although otherwiſe minded in his firſt.)

1. Becauſe that is the time of the year, when moſt generally all kind of fruits, and moſt univerſally, in moſt places, are in their maturity and ripeneſſe; as they were alſo at the creation, being made in their perfection: as Adam himſelf was made in his perfect ſtature, ſo all the fruits in the Garden were ripe, of wh ch Adam had his liberty to eat, that only of the Tree of Knowledge being excepted. And although the Jews had ſome corn ripe in the Spring, and a reaping, which was called Harveſt-time, Joſh. 3. 15. with chap. 4. 18, 19. and 1 Chron. 12. 15. viz. in the firſt moneth, which was called Abib, ſignifying the time of ripe fruit; yet their great time of Harveſt called the In-gathering, was in the Revolution, or end of the year, Exod. 23. 16. and 34. 22. Lev. 23. 39. which was in the ſeventh moneth: for they kept the feaſt of Tabernacles on the fifteenth day of the ſeventh moneth, when they had gathered in all the fruit of the Land; as it is expreſſed in the place laſt cited.

2. Becauſe the year did begin at the firſt (as it ſeems) in that moneth which was afterward called the ſeventh, untill the begining of the year was changed (upon the Iſraelites coming out of Egypt) by the Lords own appointment, from the moneth Tizri, unto the moneth Abib, Exod. 12. 2. with Chap.

Chap. 13. 3, 4. which was alſo called Niſan, Eſth. 3. 7. yea, and after that change or tranſlation of the begining of the year, upon occaſion of the Iſraelites coming out of Egypt, for the remembrance whereof they were to keep the Feaſt of the Paſſeover, or (as it is ſometimes alſo called) of Unleavened bread, which was the firſt of all their Annuall Feaſts, and whereby all their other Annuall Feaſts were regulated, in regard of the ſeaſons of them: I ſay, after that change of the begining of the year, in reference to their ſacred Feaſts, yet ſtill the former begining of the year was in uſe amongſt them, according unto which their Contracts and Bargains about houſes and lands, and ſuch civill matters were ordered (which may help to ſatisfie and anſwer that which is ſaid by ſome; that the change of the begining of the year, was, becauſe that amongſt the Egyptians, where the Iſraelites had lived ſo long, the year began in the ſeventh moneth, not that it had done ſo from the begining of the World, but in the Spring; but why then ſhould they not have begun the Account of their year as well for all occaſions from Abib in the Spring?) for in the moneth Tizri (which was the ſeventh from Abib) the year of Jubilee, and alſo of the Sabbaths did begin, when their Mortgages were to expire, Lev. 25. 9, 10. And it is further obſervable to this purpoſe, that the Feaſt of the New moon in the ſeventh month was to be kept with more extraordinary ſolemnity then any other of the New Moons were, yea, even then that of Abib; becauſe it was their New-years Day: For then (beſides that they were to blow with Trumpets, and offer the ſpeciall ſacrifices, as on the other New-moons) they were to offer extraordinary ſacrifices over and above, Numb. 29. verſ. 1. to the 7. And we may eaſily obſerve, that Nehemiah did begin to reckon the moneths of the year from Tizri, by comparing Nehem. 1. 1. with 2. 1. In the former place, it is ſaid, that in the moneth Chiſleu, in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes, he heard of the ſad condition of his Brethren at Jeruſalem: and in the other place, that he ſtanding before the King in the moneth Niſan in the ſame year, he made requeſt for leave to go to Jeruſalem; whereby it appears that he reckoned the begining of the year, not from

Niſan,

Niſan, or Abib; for then the month Chiſlev had followed Niſan, and not have been before it in the ſame year, but rather from Tizri or Ethanim, and ſo Chiſlev was the third moneth, and Niſan the ſeventh, according to that account. The argument alledged by ſome godly and learned Brethren for the begining of the World to have been in the Spring, I deſire not to ſlight as not having any probability in them; but ſhall leave others to their liberty to follow that opinion herein which they ſhall apprehend to be moſt probable

The number of years which Adam lived, was 930. *Gen.*5.5. He ſaw eight Generations after him, viz. Seth, Enos, Cainan, Mahalaleel, Jared, Enoch, Methuſelah, Lamech. How long he lived either before, or together with any of them, the two Tables at the end of the Notes of this firſt Period marked thus [] will ſhew.

He died about the 56. year of Lamech, and 726 years before the Flood; in what year of the life of any of his Contemporaries his death fell, the Chronologicall Table [] at the begining of this firſt Period doth hold forth.

The years of the firſt Period from the Creation: 130

Seeth was born when his Father Adam was 130 years old, *Gen.*5.3. and 1526 years before the Flood (as appears by ſubſtracting 130 from 1656 which was the year of the Flood) he lived 912 years, *Gen.*5.8. and ſaw ſeven Generations after him: viz. Enos, Cainan, Mahalaleel, Jared, Enoch, Methuſelah, Lamech. The two little Tables [] at the end of this firſt Period, do ſhew the eye, in what year of Seth's life any of thoſe were born, and likewiſe how long he and any of them were contemporary.

About the 800 year of his life, his Father Adam died, and after that, about 57 years, was Enoch tranſlated, Seth being about 857 years old.

He died about the year of the World, 1042. as appeareth by adding adding the year of his birth (130) to 912 which were the years of his life. How old any of thoſe Patriarchs were, which were his contemporaries, at the year of his death, the Table will ſhew which is at the begining of this firſt Period. []

ENos was born when his Father Seth was 105 years old, *Gen.*5. 6. in the year of the World 235 as the adding the age of his Father Seth, at the birth of Enos unto the year of the World when his Father was born doth ſhew; and about 1421 years before the Flood, as appeares by ſubſtracting the year of the birth (235) from the year of the Flood.

The year from the Creation.

He lived 905 years, *Gen.*5. 11. and was contemporary with theſe, viz. Adam, Seth, (who were his Fathers) and ſeven Generations after him: as Cainan, Mahalaleel, Jared, Enoch, Methuſelah, Lamech, and Noah, how old Enos was at the birth of any of theſe latter, and likewiſe how long he and any of them lived together, may eaſily be ſeen by the two Tables [.] at the end of this Period.

In the time of his life, theſe things fell out:

viz.
- The death of his Grandfather Adam. 695 y.
- The tranſlation of Enoch. Enos being about 752 old.
- Seth died. 807

He died about the 1140 yeare of the World, as appeareth by adding the years that he lived, to the year at his birth:

His death was after
- Noahs birth. 84
- Adams death. 210
- Enoch tranſlat. 153
- Seths death. 98

Cainan

The years from the Creation. 235 90 325

Cainan was born when his Father Enos was 90 years old, Gen. 5.9. about the year of the World, 325. as appeareth by adding 90 (his Fathers age at his own birth) to the year of the World at his Fathers birth, and about 1331 years before the Flood.

He lived 910 years, *Gen.*5,14. and was contemporary with Adam, Seth, Enos, (his forefathers) and alſo with Mahalaleel, Jared, Enoch, Methuſelah, Lamech, and Noah (who were born after him) as by the two Tables [] at the end of this Period may be ſeen, both his age when any of thoſe were born that were his poſterity; and alſo how long he and any of his contemporaries lived together.

In the time of his life { Adam died / Enoch was tranſlat. / Seth died / Enos died } about his { 605 / 662 / 717 / 815 } year.

His death was about the year of the World 1235 as appareth by adding the year of his life (910) unto the year of the World at his birth (325) and { after the { Death of Adam 305 / Tranſlation of Enoch 248 / Death of Seth 193 / Birth of Noah 179 } before the Flood 421 } years.

The years after the Creation. 325 70 395

Mahalaleel the ſon of Cainan was born when his Father was 70 years old, *Gen.*5. 12. about the 395 year of the World, as appeareth by adding 70 to the year of the World at his Fathers birth, and about 1261 years before the Flood.

He

He lived 895 years, Gen. 5. 17. together in the time of his forefathers, Adam, Seth, Enos, Cainan; and alſo of his poſterity, Jared, Enoch, Methuſelah, Lamech, and Noah, by the two Tables, [x] at the end of this Period may be diſcerned, both how long he and any of his contemporaries did live together, and likewiſe how old he was when any of his poſterity were born after him. The year from the Creation.

While he lived { Adam died / Enoch was tranſlat. / Seth died / Enos died / Cainan died } about his { 535 / 592 / 647 / 745 / 840 } year.

He died about the year of the World 1290. as is evident by adding the yeare of his life (895) to the year of the World at his birth (395) and { after the { Death of Adam / Tranſlat. of Enoch / Death of Seth / Death of Enos / Death of Cainan / Birth of Noah } about { 630 / 303 / 248 / 150 / 55 / 234 } years. / before the Flood 366 }

JAred was born when his Father Mahalaleel was 65 years old, Gen. 5. 15. about the year of the World, 460: which appeareth by adding thoſe 65 years unto 395 which was the year of the World at his Fathers birth, and about 1195 years before the Flood.

He lived 962 years, Gen. 5. 20. In the time of Adam, Seth, Enos, Cainan, Mahalaleel, (his forefathers) and alſo of Enoch, Methuſelah,

The year after the Creation.

Methuſelah, Lamech, and Noah (his poſterity) the two Tables [] at the end of this firſt Period will diſcover, both in what year of his forefathers he himſelf was born, or in what year of his life any of his poſterity in his daies were born; and alſo how long he lived with any of them.

While he lived about his yeare.

Adam died	470
Enoch was tranſlat.	527
Seth died	582
Enos died	680
Cainan died	775
Mahalaleel died	830

He died about the year of the World 1422. as appeareth by adding the years of his life unto the year of the World at his birth:

His death was after the years. before the Flood

Death of Adam	492
Tranſlat. of Enoch	435
Death of Seth	380

Enoch was born when his Father Jared was 162 years old, *Gen.*5. 18. about the 622 year of the World: as appeareth by adding 162 (the year of his birth) to 460 (the year of the World at his Fathers birth) and about 1034 years before the Flood.

He lived and walked with God upon earth 365 years, after which he was tranſlated. He was contemporary with Adam, Seth, Seth, Enos, Cainan, Mahalaleel, Jared, (his forefathers) and with Methuſelah and Lamech, (his Son and Grandchilde.) The year after the Creation.

By the two Tables [] at the end of this Period, may be ſeen in what year of his forefathers he was born, and in what year of his life any of his Poſterity were born; and likewiſe how long he was a contemporary with the one or other of them.

About the 308 year of his life, his and our Firſt-father Adam died.

His Tranſlation was about the { 987 year of the World. / 57 year after Adams death. / 669 year before the Flood.

Although his own life was the ſhorteſt of all the Patriarchs before the Flood, yet his Sons life who followed him was the longeſt that ever any lived before or after him in this World.

Methuſelah was born when his Father Enoch was 65 years old, Gen. 5.21. about the 687 yeare of the World, as appeareth by adding the 65 years of his Father to the year of the World when his Father was born, and about 969 years before the Flood.

He lived the longeſt life that ever any man lived in this world, viz. 969 years, Gen. 5. 27. and was contemporary with Adam, Seth, Enos, Cainan, Mahalaleel, Jared, Enoch (which were his Progenitors) and with Lamech, Noah, Shem; who were born in his time.

The two Tables [] at the end of this Period do hold forth both in what year of any of his Forefathers he was born, and in what year of his life any of them after him were born; and alſo how long he was contemporary with any one of them before and after him.

Lamech was born in the 187 year of his Father Methuſelah, Gen. 5. 25. about the 874 year of the World, as doth appear by adding thoſe 187 years to the 687 year of the World at his fathers birth, and about 782 years before the Flood.

He lived 777 years, Gen. 5. 31. together with his Forefathers Adam, Seth, Enos, Cainan, Mahalaleel, Jared, Enoch, and Methuſelah. In what particular year of any of them he was born; born; as also how long he was contemporary with any of them, may be seen by the two Tables at the end of this first Period.

The year after the Creation.

In his life these died, viz. Adam 56; Enoch translat. about his 113 year.; Seth 168; Enos 266; Cainan 361; Mahalaleel 416; Jared 548.

He died about the 1651 year of the World; as appears by adding 777 (the years of his life) unto 874 (the years of the World when he was born.)

His death was after the Death of Adam 721; Enoch 664; Seth 609; Enos 511; Cainan 416; Mahala: about 361 years.; Jared 221.

His death was after the Birth of Noah 595; Shem 93.

His death was before the Flood 5.

NOah was born when his Father Lamech was 182 years old, Gen. 5. 28. and about the 1056 year of the World; as appears by adding 182 years to the year of the World at his Fathers birth, viz. 874. So that his birth was { after { Adams death 126 / Enoch's tranſlat. 69 / Seths death } about 14 } years.

was { before the Flood 600 }

He lived 950 years, Gen. 5. 28, 29. and was contemporary with theſe ſix of his Forefathers;

viz. { Enos 84 / Cainan 179 / Mahalaleel who died 234 / Jared about his 366 / Methuſelah 600 / Lamech 595 } year.

Theſe 9 Generations alſo following were born in his time:

viz. { Shem 502 / Arphaxad 602 / Salah 637 / Eber 667 / Peleg about the 701 / Reu 731 / Serug 763 / Nahor 793 / Terah 822 } year of Noah.

In his time the Ark was built, which he began about 120 years before the Flood; viz. that generall Flood which overflowed the whole Earth; whether that be true which Funcious expreſſeth; viz. That there was ſcarce one a more miſerable man born, in regard of what he ſaw and met withall: I leave to others to judge.

How long he was contemporary either with any of his Forefathers, or of his Poſterity, the two Tables [] at the end of this Period do ſhew.

He died about the 2006 year of the World, as appeares by adding his 950 years unto the year of the World at his birth; ſo that his death

THe Ark was begun to be built about 120 years before the Flood came: for about that time, the Lord gave Noah a Commandment and direction for the building of it, *Gen.*6. 3. 13. 14. and therefore the begining of it ſeems to have been about the 1536 year of the World, becauſe the Flood came about the 1656 year, which was 120 years after.

[12]

Japhet (whom I conceive to have been the eldeſt ſon of Noah, by *Gen.*10. 21.) was born when his Father was about 500 years old, *Gen.*5. 32. about the year of the World 1556. and about 100 years before the Flood. He was in the Ark all the time of the Flood, being one of thoſe eight perſons that were preſerved therein, Gen. 7. 13.

He lived after the Flood, Gen. 8. 18. but it is uncertain how long, the Scripture being altogether ſilent therein.

Shem was born when his Father Noah was about 502 years old; for he was an 100 years old two years after the Flood, Gen. 10. 11. and at the Flood, Noah was 600: Gen. 7. 6. 13.

So

So that the birth of Shem seems to have been about the 1558 yeare of the World; as appears by adding 502 (the age of Noah at Shems birth) unto 1056 (the year of the World when Noah was born.)

He lived 600 years, *Gen.*11. 10. 11. and was contemporary with

So that he lived in the daies of ten Generations after him, as by the two Tables [] at the end of this Period may be seen, what time there was between him and any of his contemporaries (either before or after him) and likewise how long he and any of them were contemporaries together: See also the Table [*5.] at the end of the second Period.

A second TABLE of the I. PERIOD, shewing how long any of those Patriarchs before the Flood were before each other.

The Use whereof is as followeth.

If one would know how many years there were from Adam to Enoch, let him look on the line upon the right hand, noted [From Adam] and descend to the number which stands against Enoch on the left hand, which is 622. and so many years there were between them. Again; If I desire to understand how long Enoch was born before the Flood, I must go down the line From Enoch on my right hand, and that number which stands against the line To the Flood, on my left hand, is the time; viz. 1034 years.

THe Flood wherein all the World but eight persons (who were preserved in the Ark) was drowned, began about the year of the World 1656. as appeareth by adding 98 to the year of the World when Shem was born; for he was an 100 years old, two years after the Flood, Gen. 10. 11. So that according unto our account (carried all along in the margin) there were 1655 years compleat in this first Period, viz. from the Creation of the World unto the generall Flood; and the last year of the 1656 was but begun and current when the Flood began, and therefore that year is to be accounted as the first of the next Period; but of the year of the Flood, more is spoken in the first Note in the following Period.

THE II. PERIOD.

THis ſecond Period (from the Flood unto the Promiſe to Abraham in Ur of the Chaldees) contains about the ſpace of 422 years, as is collected by the Genealogie of the Patriarchs recorded in Gen. 11. The reaſon of my terminating this Period at the Promiſe to Abraham, is, becauſe the Spirit of God by the Apoſtle in Gal. 3. 16, 17. doth ſeem to begin a remarkable Period from thence; and therefore ſeeing the Holy Ghoſt makes it the begining of one Period, he ſeems thereby alſo to account it to be the end of that which was next before it.

Note: 1. That the year when the Flood began (which is the begining of this ſecond Period) is to be included in the account of this Period, as the year of the Creation is included in the account of the former Period; ſo that the 1656 year of the World, is the firſt year of this Period, and not as part of the former. Therefore, although ſpeaking of that Period alone by it ſelf, we may ſay, It conſiſts of 1656 years, including that year wherein It doth end; yet in exact account, in reference to the other Periods, ſumming up the years of the World, there are in It but 1655 years full and compleat.

Note: 2. That the year when the Promiſe was given to Abraham, (where we terminate the ſecond Period) is not to be included in the account of the years of this Period; as the year of the Flood is not to be put into the account of the year of the former Period; and therefore, although in a large account, ſpeaking of this ſecond Period by it ſelf, we may ſay It contains 422 years, including the year wherein it endeth; yet to ſpeak ſtrictly as conjoyned unto, and continued with the other Periods, we are to account but 421 years full and compleat; becauſe the year of the Promiſe (which is the later term of it) is but current: and ſo is the begining of the third Period.

There is indeed ſome difference about the time of the Promiſe to Abraham; but that is ſpoken unto in it's proper place, viz. in the begining of the third Period.

Note

2. That the Cyphers (ooo) under any of these numbers are to notifie the Death of that person at that year where they stand; and that the numbers thence, in that line downward, do shew the years after the death of such an one: E. gr. In the line under Noah, right against Abraham, stands the figure of 2, and that signifieth, that Abraham was born two years after Noah dyed.

3. That the numbers and figures included in this Parenthesis [ ] do direct to the Notes, to clear the time of that person or thing to which they are annexed: and when there is no such reference, then the figure or number which is set unto that person before, will serve also for that where there is none: E. gr. At [Peleg dyed] there is no note of reference, therefore the proof of the time when he dyed, is to be sought for by that number or figure which stands at his Birth before.

THe Flood which did overflow the whole Earth, and drowned all but eight perſons in the Ark, began in the 600 year of Noah, Gen. 7. 11. And about the 1656 year of the World, as is ſaid before, in the end of the former Period, and doth appear, either by adding 600 to the year of the World at Noah's birth (for it began at that time) or by adding 98 (which was the age of Shem when the Flood came) unto the year of the World at the birth of Shem; viz. 1558. which together, do make up 1656.

There is a Queſtion amongſt the Chronologers, about the year of the World when the Flood began; viz. Whether in the 1656, or 1657 yeare current? Yea, I meet with an intimation, as if ſome did conceive, It might begin in the 599 year of Noah, and ſo conſequently, in the 1655 year of the World Learned Funccius in his Chronologie, put forth by him, at the firſt begins it (as he acknowledgeth all others in a manner did, that he had read) in the 1656 year; but in his ſecond Edition he alters his opinion, and removes the begining of the Flood to the year following; viz. the 1657 year of the World, upon that Rule (which he calls Infallible) viz. that where any year is mentioned in Scripture with an addition of moneths or daies, there it is to be underſtood of a compleat and full year; and therfore ſeeing it is ſaid, Gen. 7. 11, 13. In the 600 year of Noah's life, in the ſecond moneth, the 17 day of the moneth, were the fountains broken up, &c. He concludes that the 600 yeare of Noah was then compleat and perfect, and the 601 year begun, but that Rule is denied by others to be infallibly true, and many inſtances in the Scriptures are alledged to ſhew and demonſtrate the contrary (ſee Pareus in Gen. 7. 11.) And verily to me it ſeemes moſt probable, that the 600 yeare of Noah was but current, and not compleat when the Flood began, for the reaſons alledged by Judicious and Learned Rivet (in Gen. 7. Exercit. 54.)

1. Becauſe if that year were then ended, then the ſecond Moneth and the 17 day there mentioned, muſt be in the

601 year, and not in the 600 year, as the Holy Ghoſt expreſſeth it.

2. Becauſe the Flood having continued about a year, the waters are ſaid to have been dried up in the 601 year of Noah, in the firſt moneth and firſt day of the moneth; but if the Flood was in the 601 year of Noah, and the 17 day of the ſecond moneth, then the drying up of the waters muſt be in the 602 year of Noah, and not in the 601 year, as the Scripture expreſſeth it: and,

3. Elſe alſo it would follow, that the yeares of Noah's life muſt be at the leaſt 951. and not 950, as the Holy Ghoſt affirmeth, Gen. 9. 29. For it is ſaid he lived after the Flood 350 years, Gen. 9. 28. and the Flood continued about one whole year. Now, if we adde hereunto the 600 years that were paſt when the Flood began, the totall ſumme cannot poſſibly be leſſe then 951, or more.

Another Queſtion there is alſo about the begining of the Flood; for when it is ſaid, Gen. 7. 11. In the 600 yeare of Noah's life, in the ſecond Moneth and 17 day of the Moneth, were the fountains of the great deep broken up. The Queſtion hereupon is, Whether that ſecond Moneth is to be underſtood in reference to the 600 years of Noah, viz. that it was the ſecond moneth of that year of his life, or rather to the year of the World, viz. that it was the ſecond moneth from the begining of that year of the World, according to the account or reckoning of the moneths of the year then in uſe? Briefly, (not to be too critically curious herein) It may be conceived, and is alſo affirmed by ſome (viz. Pareus in Gen. 7. 11. Rivet in Gen. Exercit. 54.) that it is ſpoken both in reſpect of the yeare of Noah's life, and alſo of the year of the World; viz. in the ſecond moneth of both the one and the other: for although It may not be affirmed for certain that Noah was born, and began his life juſt with the very begining of the year of the World then in uſe; yet it is probable that the years of the lives of the Patriarchs were reckoned and numbred according to the years of the World, as if they had begun juſt together. Yea, and it is further conceived and received ceived alſo as moſt probable, that that ſecond moneth was the ſecond from the moneth Tizri, (the year then begining in that moneth, which was about the middle of that which we call September,) and ſo that ſecond moneth ſeemes to be that which was called Marcheſvan, (which is conceived to begin about the middle of that moneth which we call October, and ended about the midſt of our November.) And the reaſon why I conceive that the begining of the yeare before the Flood was reckoned from Tizri and not Niſan (which anſwers to that which is called March) is, becauſe the change of the begining of the year unto the moneth Abib, or Niſan, was after the Flood, between 800 and 900 years; and therefore it is moſt likely, that the begining of the yeare before that change was, as is ſaid, in Tizri. The year after the Flood.

Object. But the change of the begining of the year might be onely becauſe the Iſraelites being in Egypt, had obſerved the Terms of the year, according to the cuſtome of the Egyptians, viz. from the ſeventh moneth, whereas the begining of the year before their going into Egypt was in the moneth Abib.

R. Let there be but any ground or reaſon ſhowne from Scripture, that ever the begining of the year was accounted from Abib, before that change after the coming out of Egypt, and then it will be granted, that ſomething is brought indeed for it.

Object. But again, ſuppoſing and granting, that the begining of the year before the Flood was accounted from Tizri, yet the begining of the year being changed in the time when Moſes wrote the Hiſtory of the Flood, it is probable that he might ſpeak, and write of the year, according to the preſent account in his own time.

R. But is not this a kinde of ſecret imputation unto Moſes? It being the part of a faithfull Hiſtorian to write and relate things according to the very times wherein they were done? But if it were granted that Moſes did write of the moneths of the yeare, according to the account of his time amongſt the people, yet ſeeing they begun the account in the yeare about civill things ſtill in the moneth Tizri, It is probable bable that Moſes might intend the ſecond moneth from thence, as the ſecond from Abib.

In a word, this is that which I conceive as moſt probable concerning the time of the Flood, (leaving others freely to their liberty) viz. that the begining of It was in the 1656 year of the World, and in the 17 day of the ſecond moneth, (which according to the begining of the year in the middle of September, muſt be about the begining of that moneth which we call November.) And It ended in the 1657 year of the World, having continued very near an whole year; viz. within a moneth and 17 dayes, although the time of Noah's aboad in the Ark, was above a year, viz. about ten dayes over; as appeares by comparing Gen. 7. 11. 13. with Chap. 8. 13, 14, 15, &c.

Now, that things may appear a little the plainer, I have here in the ſhort Calender following, ſet down the moneths of the year of the Flood, being the 1656 year of the World; with the ſpeciall things mentioned by Moſes in the Hiſtory of It, which he ſets down in Gen. 7. and 8. Chapters.

The year after the Flood.

ARphaxad was born when his Father Shem was an 100 years old, two years after the Flood, Gen. 11. 10. which two years may be understood, either to be after the begining of the Flood, or else (which is all one) the second year current after the end of it: and so his birth seems to be about the year of the World, 1658. as appeares by adding two to the year of the World, when the Flood began:

His birth was { when his Grandfather Noah was before the Promise to Abraham in Ur } about { 602 / 420 } years.

He lived 438 years: Gen. 11. 12, 13.

In the time of his life, there were born these nine Generations following;

viz. { 1 Salah 2 Eber 3 Peleg } { 4 Reu 5 Serug 6 Nahor } { 7 Terah 8 Abraham 9 Ishmael. }

The 2 Table [*5.] at the end of this second Period, will shew both in what year of his life any of them were born; and also how long he was contemporary with any of his Progenitors or Posterity that lived together with him.

In his time these, viz. { Peleg Nahor Noah } { died about the { 338 / 339 / 348 } year of Arphaxad.

His death was { about the year of the World 2096 years, as appears by adding the year of his life, to the year of the World at his birth. / before the { Death of Shem 60 / Law was given 412 } / after the { Flood about 440 / Death of Noah 90 / Birth of Ishmael 2 / Promise in Ur 18 } } yeares.

Salah

The years after the Flood.

[16]

Salah was born when his Father Arphaxad was 35 years old, Gen. 11. 12. about the year of the World 1693. as appeareth by adding 35 unto the year of the World at his Fathers Birth: 2 / 35 / 37 and about the { 37 year of the Flood. / 637 year of Noah's life. / 135 year of Shem. / 385 year before the Promiſe.

The Evangeliſt Luke in ſetting down the Genealogy of Jeſus Chriſt, makes mention of one Cainan as the next ſon of Arphaxad, and Salah as his grandchilde and the ſon of that Cainan, Luk. 3. 35, 36. whereby there ſhould be about 30 years in the years of this ſecond Period, and conſequently in the account of the years of the world, more then the Genealogy recorded by Moſes doth hold forth: The cauſe whereof is thought to be, either becauſe that Luke following the 70 Greek Interpreters (who in their tranſlation of the Hebrew Pentateuch did inſert Cainan between Arphaxad and Salah) was not willing to give offence to the Jews or Greeks (with whom the Greek tranſlation was of high account) by omitting any thing; and hence alſo (ſome think) it was that Stephen in his ſpeech, Acts 7 14. ſays, That ſeventy five ſouls went down into Egypt; when as Moſes (according to the Hebrew copy) makes them to be but ſeventy, Gen. 46. 27. and ſo alſo again in his recapitulation or rehearſal of the ſame over again, Deut. 10. 22. viz. becauſe Luke followed the Greek tranſlation (then much in uſe) which in thoſe places make mention of ſeventy five: Or elſe (as others do think moſt probable) the putting in of Cainan, and ſo alſo of ſeventy five in ſtead of ſeventy ſouls that went down into Egypt, was from the error and miſtake of ſome Amanuenſis or tranſcriber of the Greek Verſion, whereupon they that followed that copy did alſo put Cainan in the tranſcribing of the Evangeliſt Luke, to make him agree with the other: but that It was neither put in at the firſt by the Greek Interpreters, nor yet by Luke himſelf in writing the Goſpel, divers probable reaſons are alledged, viz. amongſt others, becauſe the Chaldee Paraphraſe (which is very ancient) doth omit that Cainan, ſo doth alſo Joſephus in his Hiſtory (though he doth uſually follow the 70 Interpreters,) yea and Jerome alſo (who wrote his Hebrew Queſtions out of Geneſis, about 390 years after Chriſt) makes no mention at all of this matter, as not finding any thing of It in his time: Beſides, Beza doth affirm that he had an old copy of the Greek Teſtament, which did omit this Cainan. He that will, may ſee what learned Pareus ſpeaks of this in Gen. 11. 12. and Rivet in Gen. Exercit. 69. The years after the Flood.

[23]

Abraham (being alſo before the Lord changed his Name, called Abram) was the ſon of Terah. About the time of his Birth, viz. in what year of his Father It was, there is a wide diſtance in mens apprehenſions: And indeed here begineth one of the moſt remarkable differences that are in the Scripture-Chronology; men differing no leſs then 60 years in their account about it: for ſome do ſet his Birth at the 70 year of Terah, and others at his 130 year. The parties engaged for the one Opinion and other are learned and godly, and the Reaſons on either ſide are, I confeſs, ſuch as ſeem to carry ſome probability with them.

The Arguments for the former Opinion are chiefly theſe two: viz. Firſt, from that expreſſion in Gen. 11. 26. where 'tis ſaid, Terah lived ſeventy years, and begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran: where the ſetting of Abram in the firſt place doth ſeem to imply that he was the eldeſt of the three; and alſo that he was born in the ſeventieth year of Terah. And the ſecond is taken from Abraham's wondering at the Promiſe of a ſon when he was near upon an hundred years old, Gen. 17. 17. himſelf and wife Sarah being both as good as dead in reſpect of any hopes or likelyhood of having any children, Rom. 4. 19. whereas if he himſelf had been born when his Father was 130 years old, what cauſe had there been for him to make it such a matter of wonderment to have a childe when he was but an hundred years old?

The Reasons and Arguments on the other side, for the birth of Abraham to have been about the 130 year of his Father (which I confess do most prevail with me, yet am I not offended with them that are otherwise minded, nor do I slight their reasons,) I say the Reasons for the latter Opinion, viz. for the birth of Abraham at Terah's 130 year are these:

First, because the last year of Terah (which was the 205 year of his life) seems to have been concurrent with the 75 year of Abraham; which if so, then Terah's 130 year must also agree with Abraham's first year, (as by substracting 75 out of 205 will plainly appear.) Now that the 205 year of Terah was the 75 year of Abraham, seems to appear by conferring the Scriptures together; thus in brief: Act. 7. 4. 'tis said, that Abraham removed from Charran (or Haran) when his Father was dead; for his Father indeed dyed in Haran, being 205 years old, Gen. 11. 32. Now if it can but appear plainly from Scripture how old Abraham was when he removed from Haran, methinks It might clear the case; and that also we have fully expressed totidem verbis, Gen. 12. 4. Abraham was seventy five years old when he departed out of Haran.

Again secondly, If he was born when his Father was but 70 and not 130 years old, then when he removed into Canaan after his Fathers death, he must be at least 135 years old, (for his Father being 205 years old when he dyed, Abraham must by that account be 135.) but Abraham was not so old by sixty years when he went into Canaan, for he was but just seventy five years old, as is plain by Gen. 12. 4. the place before mentioned. Neither will it be sufficient to say as some do (Mr. Perkins by name) that Abraham did go twice into Canaan, viz. once before his Fathers death, which was onely upon a progress, not to dwell there, and that was It mentioned by Moses in Gen. 12. when he was seventy five years old: the other time he went thither to dwell, which was after his Fathers death, as Stephen speaks Acts 7. 4. For, besides that 'tis altogether ungrounded and a meer Conjecture onely, to make the removal mentioned by Stephen to be another, and differing from that which Moſes relates, ſeeing Stephen ſpeaks in reference to the ſtory related by Moſes: I ſay beſides that, If it be conſidered, 'twill appear that the removal of Abraham mentioned Gen. 12. 4. (which ſome make onely a kinde of progreſs) was for habitation in Canaan; for in the very next verſe, viz. verſ. 5. 'tis ſaid, That Abram took Sarai his wife, and Lot, and all their ſubſtance that they had gathered, and the ſouls that they had gotten in Haran; and they went forth to go into the Land of Canaan, and into the Land of Canaan they came. Now what can a man do more when he removes to ſettle his habitation and dwelling in a place, then carry all that ever he hath with him? Certainly the manner of his remove ſeems to hold forth more then a removing onely on progreſs. Yea further 'tis clear that upon that removing he continued and dwelt in Canaan for divers years together, for Gen. 16. 3. mention is made of his dwelling in Canaan ten years, which ten years can be underſtood no otherwiſe but from his departing out of Haran when he was ſeventy five years old, for in the year after thoſe ten years, when Iſhmael was born, Abraham was but eighty ſix years old, Gen. 16. 16. and that could be but eleven years after his ſeventy fifth year, in which year he removed into Canaan, and ſo dwelt there all that time after. The years after the Flood.

Thirdly, To add but this one Argument more, which is taken from the years of Abraham at the birth both of Iſhmael and alſo of Iſaac: For if Abraham was born in the 70 year of his Father, then the birth both of Iſhmael and of Iſaac muſt (as it ſeems) be about ſixty years after the time which the Scripture doth relate; for Iſhmael muſt be born when Abraham was at leaſt 146 years old, and Iſaac fourteen years after that; viz. when Abraham was 160 years, which appears thus; Abraham went to dwell in Canaan after the death of his Father Terah, Acts 7. 4. now he being 205 years at his death, Gen. 11. 32. Abraham then muſt be (according to that Opinion) 135 years old when his Father dyed: well, after that, he dwelt eleven years in the land of Canaan before

The years after the Flood.

Iſhmael was born, Gen. 16. 3. and ſo Abraham muſt be at that time 146 years old; and then the Birth of Iſaac being fourteen years after (as appears by the Notes upon Iſaac's birth) therefore Abraham muſt be no leſs then 160 years old; both which are contrary to the Scripture, which doth expreſly affirm that Abraham was but eighty ſix years old when Iſhmael was born, Gen. 16. 16. and an hundred years old when Iſaac was born, Gen. 21. 5. which is juſt ſixty years difference. Whereas if the Birth of Abraham be ſet at the 130 year of his Father Terah, then the other particulars will fall juſt in with the times as they are recorded in the Scripture, ex. gr. then at the death of Terah (he being 205 years old) Abraham was ſeventy five years old, going to Canaan after he was dead, as the Scripture ſpeaks: then the Birth of Iſhmael alſo will exactly fall upon the eighty ſixth year of Abraham, according to the Scripture: and ſo will the Birth of Iſaac be juſt upon the hundreth year of Abraham, as the Scripture ſpeaks; as may eaſily appear to any that can but compute and caſt up the years together: and as is to be ſeen in the Chronological Table at the begining of the third Period.

As for the Arguments which are alledged for the Birth of Abraham to have been at the ſeventieth year of Terah, ſomething may with probability be returned by way of anſwer: viz. To the firſt, from Gen. 11. 26. that that place doth not neceſſarily conclude that Abraham was born in the ſeventieth year of Terah, more then the other two that are there named with him; neither will any thereupon believe that they were all born in that year. And the naming of Abraham in the firſt place, might be (not becauſe he was the eldeſt, but) partly becauſe of his preheminence in grace and dignity, he being to be the Father of the Faithful, and of whom the Meſſiah was to come; and partly alſo becauſe that the ſtory was principally intended to be carryed on in regard of him and his poſterity. Thus we know that Shem is named firſt of the three ſons of Noah, Gen. 6. 10. though Japhet is generally conceived to have been the elder, from Gen. 10. 21. and Iſaac ſometimes before Iſhmael, 1 Chron. 1. 28. and

Jacob

Jacob before Eſau, Gen. 28. 5. Heb. 11. 20. and ſo Ephraim before Manaſſeh, who was indeed the eldeſt ſon of Joſeph, Gen. 48. 20. And methinks 'tis obſervable how the Holy Ghoſt doth vary in ſetting down the birth of Abraham, from the former uſual manner of expreſſion, about thoſe that were before: for whereas it was ſaid, that Arphaxad lived thirty five years and begat Salah, and lived after that 403 years and begat ſons and daughters: and ſo in the like manner of the reſt until Terah the next Father of Abraham; and then the manner of expreſſion is varyed thus, Terah lived ſeventy years, and begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran. which may ſeem to intimate as if Abraham was not the eldeſt, though firſt named; Juſt as about the birth of Shem the Scripture doth vary from that manner of expreſſion which had been uſed all along before from Adam to the Poſterity of Noah, and then there is a variation thus; And Noah was five hundred years old, and begat Shem, Ham, and Japhet; which may ſeem to be upon this cauſe, viz. That although Shem was neither the firſt born of Noah, nor born juſt upon his 500 year, but two years after, (as is ſaid before, N. 13.) yet having the preheminence and dignity above the reſt, might be named firſt. The years after the Flood.

To the ſecond, viz. Why Abraham ſhould ſo wonder at the Promiſe of his having a ſon at an hundred years old, if he himſelf had been born when his Father was 130 years old. Though I would not ſay (as ſome do) that his wondering was onely in regard of his wife Sarah's age and barrenneſs; for as it ſeems his wondering was alſo in part in regard of himſelf: for as he ſays, Shall Sarah that is ninety years old bear? ſo withall he ſays too, Gen. 17. 17. Shall a childe be born unto him that is an hundred years old? But I conceive It was rather from hence, viz. that he had lived together with his wife Sarah without having any children, and ſo his own body might ſeem as good as dead in that reſpect (he being near upon an hundred years old, and ſhe ninety) and that yet at length they ſhould have a childe together at that age. For I do not believe that Abraham lookt at himſelf as abſolutely paſt hopes of having children in an ordinary courſe of Nature ture at that age: for 'twas an ordinary thing with his Forefathers to have children when they were an hundred years old or more, according to the manner of setting down their Genealogies, Gen. 11. ex. gr. 'tis said that Reu lived after he begat Serug 207 years, and begat sons and daughters; and Serug lived after he begat Nahor 200 years, and begat sons and daughters; and so the like is said of Nahor: but enough (if not too much) hath been spoken about the Birth of Abraham.

Now then to proceed (according to our manner) to set down the time of his Birth, and such special things as happened in his life.

THe Promiſe which the Lord was pleaſed graciouſly to make unto Abraham (when he called him to remove out of Ur of the Chaldees, his native Country, and to go from his kindred and fathers houſe) the ſum and ſubſtance whereof we have recorded, Gen. 12. 1, 2, 3. in theſe words, I will make of thee a great Nation, and I will bleſs thee, and make thy Name great; and thou ſhalt be a Bleſſing. And I will bleſs them that bleſs thee, and curſe him that curſeth thee: and in thee ſhall all the Families of the Earth be bleſſed. This Promiſe (as I conceive, and upon what ground, ſhall be ſet down by and by) was made unto Abraham when he was about ſeventy years old; and ſo conſequently about the 422 year after the Flood current, or 421 years compleat: and about the 2078 year of the World, as appears by adding 422 (the years of this Period, incluſive, i. e. taking in the laſt year which was but current when the Promiſe was given) unto the years of the World at the Flood, which were 1656. A TABLE shewing how long any Patriarchs in the II. PERIOD, viz.

The III. Period.

THe third Period (which is the time from the Promise made unto Abraham in Ur when he departed thence, unto the Coming of the Israelites out of Egypt, and the Giving of the Law on Mount Sinai) contains 430 years inclusive, i. e. if we include and reckon the year of the Coming out of Egypt in the account of this Period, being the termination of it; but indeed It belongs most properly to the next Period, being the first year thereof: and therefore in most strict and proper account this third Period contains but 429 years compleat and perfect, and 430 years current, expressed by the Apostle, Gal. 3. 17. and they are gathered thus more particularly:

viz. From	The Promise to Abraham, unto the Birth of Isaac	30
	Isaac, unto the Birth of Jacob	60
	Jacob's birth to his Going into Egypt	130
	The going into Egypt to the Death of Jacob	17
	The Death of Jacob unto Joseph's death	54
	Joseph's death to the Birth of Moses	59
	Thence to the Coming out of Egypt, and the Law	80

All which particulars are spoken unto and cleared in the Notes of this ensuing Period.

Note: Although it is generally acknowledged by all, that there were 430 years from the Promise to the Law, yet in the way of reckoning of them there is a difference of five years in the Chronological account; which ariseth from the difference about the year when the Promise was made unto Abraham; for if it be set at the seventieth year of Abraham, then the Giving of the Law must fall five years in the account of the years of the World, before it doth, according to the reckoning of those who set it at the 75 year of Abraham. But still the Question will be; How it can possibly be according to both accounts, that there ſhould be juſt 430 years from the Promiſe to the Law? for if there be 430 years from the 70 year of Abraham unto the Law, then it muſt neceſſarily follow, that from the 75 year of Abraham to the Law, there muſt be five years ſhort, and ſo but 425 years. This difficulty is helped by ſhortening or lengthening the number of years from the Death of Joſeph to the Birth of Moſes (which is one parcel of this Period) for that particular is not ſo expreſly determined in the Scripture as all the reſt are, but that number is gathered from the caſting up of the other parcels which are more expreſly found in the Scripture, and what years are ſhort of the 430. are allowed between the Death of Joſeph and the Birth of Moſes: and therefore they that ſet the Promiſe at the 70 year of Abraham do reckon 59 years for that parcel: and the others that ſet It at the 75 year of Abraham are fain to lengthen out the time from Joſephs death unto the birth of Moſes five years more, and ſo do account It 64 years.

But for the more full determination of the year of the Promiſe where the 430 years to the Law do begin, ſee the following Note.

1. That the year of the Promise to Abraham is in this Period to be included: but the year of the Departing out of Egypt, and of the Giving the Law, is not to be reckoned in the number of the years of this, but of the Period next following.
2. That the three Cyphers (000) which stand under any number, do note the death of that person under whose line they are set: and that the numbers in that line, thence downwards, do shew the years after his Death: e.gr. In the line under Abraham, right against the Birth of Joseph, the number is 76. which shews, that so many years Joseph was born after the death of Abraham.
3. That the marks here included in this [ ] parenthesis, are for the reference to the Notes where the time of those particulars is spoken to; and where there is no number annexed, or else some other Character, there it is to be looked for in the Note of that person whom it doth concern: ex. gr. The selling, and the putting in prison of Joseph, and his death, and the seven years Famine in Egypt, are to be sought for in the number set at Joseph's birth, &c.

The Promise.

Some difference there is about the year of that Promiſe made to Abraham, of bleſſing him and all the Nations of the Earth in his ſeed: whence the 430 years to the Law do begin; and three ſeveral Opinions there are about It: for ſome conceive it was made to Abraham

in
- Ur (which was his Native Country) viz. when the Lord called him to go forth and ſojourn in a ſtrange Land, and that was when he was about 70 years old.
- Harran, when he had dwelt five years there after his coming out of Ur, which was about the 75 year of his life.
- Canaan, after he had dwelt ten years there, when he was about 85 years old.

I know that the greateſt current of Chronologers do incline to the ſecond Opinion, viz. That the Promiſe was made to Abraham in Harran when he was called from thence to remove unto Canaan, being then about 75 years old: ſome there are (though nothing ſo many) for the firſt; and one I finde and no more (viz. learned Paraus) for the third.

In this Point I ſhall crave leave to vary from the moſt generally received Opinion; for I do indeed believe that the year of the Promiſe (from whence the 430 years of this third Period do begin) was about the 70 year of Abraham, viz. when he was called to remove out of Ur, the Land of his Nacivity; and conſequently about the 2078 year of the World, as appeareth by adding the years of the ſecond Period, viz. 422 years current unto the years of the firſt Period, viz. 1656.

The years after the Promiſe.

Now that which inclines me to decline the moſt common and troden road, and to place the year of the Promiſe five years ſooner, viz. in the 70 year of Abraham, is in brief this: Becauſe the ſpace between the Promiſe and the Law (which is 430 years, Gal. 3. 17.) is the very time which is called the Sojourning of the Children of Iſrael; for 'tis ſaid, Exod. 12. 40, 41. The ſojourning of the Children of Iſrael, who dwelt in Egypt, was 430 years; and at the end of the 430 years, all the hoſts of the Lord went out from the Land of Egypt. Now that ſojourning (moſt probably) did begin when Abraham himſelf began to ſojourn (and the Children of Iſrael may be ſaid to ſojourn in Abraham, as Levi is ſaid to pay Tythes in him.) For It did not begin when Jacob went down into Egypt, becauſe from Jacob's going down to Egypt, unto the Iſraelites departing thence, there was not above half the time of the 430 years, as appears in due place. But when then did Abraham begin to ſojourn, but when he came out of Ur, which was his Native Country? And when the Lord called him to go out of his Country, then was the Promiſe annexed and added for his encouragement to remove. The brief Narration of his Removing thence with his Father Terah (whom it ſeems he had acquainted with the Lords Call) is mentioned in Geneſ. 11. 31. where 'tis ſaid, He went forth from Ur of the Chaldees to go into Canaan, but coming (in the way) to Haran he dwelt there; or as the word may be tranſlated, he ſojourned there; for 'tis the ſame with that in Exod. 12. 40. which is rendred ſojourning. Note by the way, that then he is ſaid to ſojourn all the time he was in Haran, and not onely when he went from thence into Canaan. The cauſe of his ſtaying in Harran is not expreſſed (neither is it very material to know) but poſſibly his Father Terah might through age and infirmity be unable and unwilling to remove any further; and ſo there he dyed, as it follows Gen. 11. 32. Then in the begining of the next Chapter, Gen. 12. 1, 2, 3. the cauſe of his removing with his Father from Ur ſeems to be ſet down, viz. the Lords Call, and Promiſe to bleſs him.

And

And in the fourth and fifth Verſes follows his removing from Haran (after the death of his Father) towards Canaan, which was when Abraham was ſeventy five years old: ſo that the Call and Promiſe mentioned in the firſt, ſecond, and third Verſes, I underſtand to be ſpoken not in reference to his removing from Haran, which indeed is mentioned in the fourth and fifth Verſes, but to his firſt removing from Ur, mentioned in the thirty third Verſe of the foregoing Chapter; and ſo Stephen (who ſpake from the Holy Ghoſt whereby he was filled) doth expreſly affirm that the Call of Abraham to get him out of his Country (which is that in Geneſ. 12. 1, 2, 3.) was when he was in Meſopotamia (or Ur) and before he dwelt in Charran, Acts 7. 2, 3, 4. (ſee Beza in Acts 7. 2, and 6.) and it muſt needs be ſo, for Ur in Meſopotamia was his Country, and not Charran; therefore not when he dwelt in Harran, as they ſay who make that Promiſe Gen. 12. 1, 2, 3. to be when Abraham was ſeventy five years old, which indeed is the onely ground of that Opinion. Upon this then that hath been ſpoken, I leave it to conſideration, whether it doth not ſeem more probable that the Promiſe was made to Abraham in Ur, when he was called from thence, and whence he began truly to ſojourn, rather then in Haran when he was ſeventy five years old. The years after the Promiſe.

Onely here it may be further demanded, How it may appear that Abraham was ſeventy years old, when that Promiſe was made unto him in Ur, becauſe (as it is objected) that is not any where expreſſed? But (for anſwer) I conceive, that may very probably be gathered, by reckoning four hundred and thirty years backward from the Law, (for ſo many years we know there were from the Promiſe to the Law; and ſo the Holy Ghoſt ſeems to ſpeak as if the time were exactly ſo much to a very day, Exodus 12. 40, 41.) Now from the Law backward unto the birth of Iſaac there were four hundred years; and ſo Junius underſtands the four hundred years mentioned mentioned Gen. 15. 13. and by exact Computation (as in the Table at the begining of this third Period may be ſeen) there will be found juſt ſo many years; then from Iſaac's birth backward to Abraham's departing out of Harran to go towards Canaan (which was in the 75 year of Abraham, Gen. 12. 4.) there were 25 years; ſo that there want five years to make up the 430 when the Promiſe was given to Abraham, and no intimation is found of any Promiſe before his going from Harran, but onely at his going out of Ur, his native Country; and therefore either that muſt be five years before his removing from Harran, viz. in his 70 year, or elſe the time from the Promiſe unto the Law was not juſt 430 years, as the Scripture ſays it was.

As for that Reaſon which learned Paræus alledgeth for his Opinion, That the Promiſe was made to Abraham when he was 85 years old, 'tis built meerly upon the critical Notion of the word [διαθήκη] uſed by the Apoſtle, Galat. 3. 17. which (ſays he) doth not ſignifie a bare and naked Promiſe, but a Covenant, which is a Promiſe (as he deſcribes it) confirmed by ſome ſolemn outward Rite or Ceremony: and three times he gives inſtance wherein Abraham had a Covenant made with him, or a Promiſe confirmed unto him: viz. The firſt is that which is mentioned Gen. 15. 18. when he was (as Paræus ſays) 85 years old. The ſecond is that in Gen. 17. 1, 2, &c. when he was 99 years old. And the third is in Gen. 22. 16. when he was 125 years old, as he concludes it.

Now I ſay that the ground which he builds upon ſeems (to me) not to be ſufficient to bear up the weight of that Opinion; For I ſuppoſe 'tis more then can well be concluded from the Apoſtle in that place, that it was his Intention by that word to hold forth a Covenant properly taken, or ſuch a kinde of Promiſe: For beſides, that it ſeems a little too curious to put ſuch a difference between a Promiſe and a Covenant, which the Apoſtle himſelf doth not in that place, becauſe in that very ſeventeenth verſe, he doth uſe the words διαθήκη and ἐπαγγελίαν (which ſignifie a Covenant and a Promiſe) miſe) promiſcuouſly; for he uſeth the one word in the begining of the verſe, and the other in the latter end of it, in one and the ſame ſenſe: but I ſay, beſides that, the very ſcope of the Apoſtle all along in that Chapter doth ſeem to carry it, that he had a reference and reſpect unto that Promiſe in Gen. 12. 2, 3. as appears by Gal. 3. 8. and ſo along to the ſeventeenth verſe. And this I add further, viz. That that Promiſe of giving the Land of Canaan mentioned in Gen. 12. 7. and chap. 13. verſ. 15. without any outward ſolemn Rite or Ceremony, is expreſly called by the Lord himſelf, his Covenant, Exod. 6. 4.

Abraham removed from Haran to Canaan, the year wherein his Father Terah dyed, viz. in the 75 year of Abraham, Gen. 12. 4. And if Abraham was born when his Father Terah was 130 years old (as is ſaid before) then the 205 year of Terah (wherein he dyed) falls even with the 75 of Abraham, wherein he removed to Canaan; which was about the year of the World 2083. as appears by adding five (the year of his abode in Haran) unto the year of the World at his coming to Haran, which (as is ſaid) was 2078. or by adding 75 to the year of the World at his Birth. It was alſo the fifth year after the Promiſe made unto him in Ur, for then (as is ſaid) he was 70 years old: and conſequently it was about 425 years before the Law was given, for that was 430 years after the Promiſe. 5.

Iſhmael

The years after the Promiſe.

[27]

Iſhmael was born when his Father Abraham was 86 years old, Gen. 16. 16. which ſeems to be about the year of the World 2094. as appears by adding theſe 86 years of Abraham unto the year of the World at his birth.

Hence the Birth of Iſhmael was about the { 16 year after the Promiſe in Ur. / 414 year before the Law.

He lived 137 years, Gen. 25. 17. and was circumciſed when he was thirteen years old, Gen. 17. 25.

In his time theſe were born, viz. Iſaac 14; Jacob 74.

dyed, viz. Arphaxad 2; Salah 32; Sarah 51; Shem 64; Abraham 89; Eber 93. — about his year.

He dyed about the year of the World 2231. after the Promiſe 153. after the death of Abraham 48. after Jacob was born 63. before the Law was given 277.

Circumciſion was inſtituted when Abraham was 99 years old, and Iſhmael 13 years old, Geneſ. 17. 24, 25. and about the year of the World 2107. and about 29 years after the Promiſe in Ur, and about 401 years before the Law was given.

Iſaac

The years after the Promiſe.

[29]

ISaac was born when his Father Abraham was an hundred years old, Gen. 21. 5. and about the 2108 year of the World, as appears by adding 100 to the year of the World at the birth of Abraham:

He was marryed twenty years before he had a childe, Gen. 25. 26. notwithſtanding the Promiſe to Abraham, that in Iſaac his ſeed ſhould be called.

The years after the Promiſe.

[] This godly man was blinde about the 136 year of his life (if not before) for his Blindneſs is mentioned in his 137 year, not as then begining, but as having been upon him before, Gen. 27. 1, &c. For that ſtory there mentioned concerning his bleſſing of Jacob, and of Jacob's fleeing to Laban for fear of his brother Eſau, was when Iſaac was about 137 years old, as may be gathered by the age of Jacob at that time, who was then about 97 years old, as is cleared in the Note upon Jacob, at this mark [†]. And therefore it ſeems that the time that Iſaac was ſo blinde, as not able to ſee and diſcern one perſon from another, was at the leaſt 44 years, for he lived (as is ſaid) 180 years, there being from his 136 to his death, 44 years.

[] He dyed about the year of the World 2288. as appears by adding the years of his life unto the years of the World at his Birth: ſo that his Death was { after the { Birth of { Jacob 120 / Joſeph 29 } } Death of { Salah 162 / Sarah 143 / Shem 130 / Abraham 105 / Eber 101 / Iſhmael 57 } about 130 years. } before the Law was given { Promiſe to Abraham in Ur 210 } 220

The year after the Promiſe.

Jacob was born when his Father Iſaac was ſixty years old, *Gen.*25.26. about the year of the World 2168. as appears by adding ſixty to the year of the World at his Fathers birth: 30 60 90 which was { after the { Promiſe in Ur / Birth of { Abraham / Iſhmael } } about { 90 / 160 / 74 / 340 } years. / before the Law was given }

He lived 147 years, Gen. 47. 28. In the time of his life, theſe dyed, viz. { Abraham / Eber / Iſhmael / Iſaac } about his { 15 / 19 / 63 / 120 } year.

[†] He went from his Fathers houſe to hide himſelf from the fury of his brother Eſau (being enraged againſt him for ſtealing his Fathers Bleſſing from him) unto his Uncle Laban in Padan-Aram or Haran (for ſo the place was named by either of thoſe Names, Gen. 27. 43. and 28. 2.) where he did abide twenty years, when he was (as it ſeems) about 77 years old; which is gathered from Joſeph's age, (who was born about fourteen years after that Jacob had dwelt with Laban, as is cleared in the Note upon Joſeph's birth.) Now take but any concurrent years of Jacob and Joſeph, and ſubſtract from the years of Jacob, both the years of Joſeph, and alſo the fourteen years which Jacob lived with Laban before the Birth of Joſeph; and the remaining years will ſhew the age of Jacob when he went from his Fathers houſe to dwell with Laban: As for example, Jacob was 130 years old at his coming down into Egypt, when Joſeph was about 39 (as is ſhewn afterward.) Now if thoſe 39 years be ſubſtracted from Jacob's 130, the age of Jacob will appear to have been about 91 at the birth of Joſeph; and then if 14 (the years which Jacob lived with Laban, after his coming from his Fathers houſe for fear of Eſau, before Joſeph was born) be taken out of thoſe 91, the remaining number, viz. 77, ſhews the year of Jacob's age when he went to Laban, which was alſo about the year of the World 2245. as appears by ading 77 unto the year of the World when Jacob was born: It was alſo after the Promiſe unto Abraham in Ur about 167 years, and about 263 years before the Law was given.

[††] Jacob marryed Leah and Rachel after he had been ſeven years with Laban, Geneſ. 29. 20, 21. which was when he was (as it ſeems by his age when he came to Laban) about 84 years old; and therefore his Marriage was about the year of the World 2252, and about 174 years after the Promiſe, and about 256 years before the Law was given. His marrying of Rachel I conceive was about a week after his taking of Leah to wife.

[†††] He having been twenty years with Laban, went away from him with his Wives and Children, Gen. 31. 41. to go to his Father Iſaac in the Land of Canaan, Verſ. 18. when he was about 97 years old; which was about the year of the World 2265. and about 187 years after the Promiſe; and before the Law about 243 years.

The ſame year alſo it was that he was named Iſrael, being in his way going from Laban, and hearing of the coming of his Brother Eſau againſt him, prayed, and wraſtling with an Angel he prevailed, and thereupon had his Name changed, Gen. 32. 27, 28.

[††††] Jacob (who was now alſo called Iſrael) went into Egypt with his whole houſhold to dwell there, by reaſon of the Famine that was in the Land of Canaan, when he was 130 years old, Gen. 47. 9. which ſeems to be about the year of

of the World 2298. as appears by adding his 130 years to the year of the World at his Birth; and when Joseph was about 39 years old, (for he was thirty when he was advanced in Egypt, and the seven years of Plenty being passed over, two years of the Famine were come, Genes. 45. 6.) It was also about 220 years after the Promise to Abraham in Ur, and about 210 years before the Departing of the Israelites out of Egypt, and the Giving of the Law. For they were not in bondage in Egypt all those 430 years mentioned in Exod. 12. 40. as the words may seem at the first blush to hold forth, and thereupon some have concluded it so; Now the sojourning of the Children of Israel, who dwelt in Egypt, was four hundred and thirty years: (so the words run) which 430 years are not to be referred to their dwelling in Egypt, but to their sojourning; the begining whereof we must reckon when Abraham removed out of Ur (his Native Country) going to Haran, from whence afterward he went to Canaan: from which time he was indeed a Sojourner, and so were also the Israelites in him, being in his loyns, as well as Levi is said to pay Tythes in Abraham's loyns, Heb. 7. 9, 10. but the proper time that the Israelites themselves did sojourn in Egypt (viz. from Jacobs going thither with his whole Family, unto their Departing thence under the hand of Moses) was but two hundred and ten years (as we account the Promise to be made in Ur,) or but 215 (according to their account, who place the Promise in the 75 year of Abraham, being in Haran) which number is but the one half of the 430 years, which the Israelites are said to have sojourned. And this also may plainly appear by considering the Descents from Jacob and his sons that came into Egypt, till the Departing again thence, ex. gr. Kohath (one of the sons of Levi) was one that went with Jacob into Egypt, Genes. 46. 11. his son Amram was born in Egypt, and Amram was the Father of Moses, Exod. 6. 20. Now the whole time of Kohath's life was but 133 years, Exod. 6. 18. and of Amram's but 137, and Moses was but eighty when he led the Israelites out of Egypt: all which together make but 350 years:

The years after the Promise.

but out of them we muſt ſubduct not onely the years of Kohath before he came into Egypt, but alſo the years of Amram, which he lived with his Father Kohath, yea and the years alſo which Moſes lived with his Father Amram, which (though we cannot determine certainly how many they were in particular) do evidently ſhew that it cannot with any poſſibility be conceived that the Iſraelites did ſojourn 430 years in Egypt: more I might add for this, but 'tis needleſs.

[g] Jacob dyed in Egypt after he had lived there about ſeventeen years, and in all his life 147 years, Gen. 47. 28. (being blinde through age, as his Father had been, Gen. 48. 10.) ſo that the time when he dyed ſeems to be about the 2314 year of the World, as appeareth by adding the years of his life unto the year of the World at his birth: His Death alſo

Joſeph was born (as it ſeems) when his Father Jacob was about 91 years old, which may be gathered thus; when his Father was 130 years old at his coming into Egypt, Gen. 47.9. then was Joſeph about 39 years old, (for he was thirty when he ſtood firſt before Pharaoh and was advanced, Geneſ. 41. 46. and the ſeven years of Plenty were paſt, and two years alſo of the Famine were come, which together make up 39.) Now if 39 be ſubducted out of Jacob's 130, there will will remain 91, which are the years of Jacob, when Joseph was born: so that his Birth was about the 2259 year of the World, as appears by adding 91 to the years of the World when Jacob was born:

He lived 110 years, Genes. 50. 26.

[a] He was sold by his Brethren and carryed down into Egypt when he was seventeen years old, Gen. 37. 2. which was about the year of the World 2276. and when his Father Jacob was about 108 years old:

and { after the Promise about 198 before the Law was given 232 years.

[b] He was cast into Prison in Egypt upon the false accusation of his adulterous Mistress, when he had been about ten years in Egypt, and was about 27 years old; for it seems he was about three years a Prisoner before he was advanced (which was when he was thirty years old, Genes. 41. 46.) It may probably be gathered thus; He was two years in prison after that Pharaoh's Butler was discharged, Gen. 40. 23. with 41. 1. and he had been some space in Prison before the Butler and Baker were committed; for upon the Jaylors experience and observation of Joseph, the care and charge of all the Prisoners were committed unto him, before the coming of the two Officers of Pharaoh into Prison: so that in probability he might be about three years in the Prison: and if so, then his Commitment was about the year of the World 2286.

He

The years after the Promise.

[c] He was advanced in Egypt (having been there about thirteen years) when he was thirty years old, Gen. 41. 46. which was about the year of the World 2289 and after the Promise about 211 years, and when his Father Jacob was about 120 years old, and about a year after the Death of his Grandfather Isaac, and before the Law about 219 years.

[d] The great Famine in Egypt, which continued seven years, began when Joseph was about 37 years old; for he was 30 years old when he was advanced, from which time the seven years of Plenty followed, at the end whereof the Famine began, he must therefore be 37 years old, which was about the 2296 year of the World.

[e] He dyed about the year of the World 2369. as appears by adding 110 (the years that he lived) unto the year of the World at his Birth, and about 291 years after the Promise, and 139 years before the Law was given; and about 54 years after the Death of his Father Jacob; so that the time that he lived in Egypt in all was about 93 years, (for he was but seventeen years old when he was brought thither) of which 93 years, he was about thirteen years a servant and in thraldom, and about eighty years he lived in honor, which was above six times over the years of his servitude.

Aron (the son of Amram of the Tribe of Levi, and the brother of Moses) was born about the year of the World 2425. as may be gathered by the year of the World at the birth of Moses (which follows immediately) for Aron was three years elder then he, Exod. 7. 7. His birth then was after the Promise about 347 years, and before the Law 81 years.

He

He lived 123 years, Numb. 33. 38, 39. and was the first High-Priest, being solemnly ordained and consecrated thereunto in the Wilderness presently after the Law was given, which was in that very year wherein the Israelites came out of Egypt; and therefore he continued that Office of the High-Priesthood about the space of fourty years, viz. all the time of the Israelites being in the Wilderness, excepting onely some few months. The years after the Promise.

He dyed in the fourtieth year after the Coming of the Israelites out of Egypt, and about six months before the death of Moses, for he dyed in the fifth month, Numb. 33. 38. and Moses lived to the eleventh month of that year, Deut. 1. 3. His death was about the year of the World 2548. as appeareth by adding the years that he lived unto the year of the World at his Birth.

Moses (the son of Amram, and Brother of Aaron) was born eighty years before the Israelites came out of Egypt, and the Giving of the Law; for so old he was at that time, Exod. 7. 7. and consequently about 350 years after the Promise (there being 430 years from the Promise to the Law, out of which 80 being subducted, there must be 350 before) and about the year of the World 2428. as appears by adding 350 to the year of the World, when the Promise was given to Abraham in Ur. Or we may account the years after the Promise when Moses was born, by adding the years between Joseph's birth and the birth of Moses unto the year of the Promise when Joseph was born: Now the space between the birth of the one and the other was about 169 years (for there was 110 years that Joseph lived, and fifty nine years after the death of Joseph to the birth of Moses, which together make up one hundred sixty nine) as for

When he was about fourty years old, he fled out of Egypt for fear of Pharaoh, and went to Midian, where he marryed his wife and lived fourty years, at the end whereof (being about eighty years old) he was called by the Lord (who appeared unto him in a flaming Buſh) to go and ſpeak unto Pharaoh about letting the people of Iſrael go out of Egypt, Acts 7. 23, 30, &c. with Exod. 7. 7. In which year, viz. his eightieth year, he was a means of the Iſraelites Departing out of Egypt, which was about the year of the World 2508, and about 430 years after the Promiſe, (taking the laſt year as being onely current) or 429 years compleat, to the Departing out of Egypt, or giving of the Law, Galat. 3. 17. and as may appear by adding of 80 (or 79 compleat) years to the years of the Promiſe when Moſes was born.

The years after the Law.

The IV. Period.

The Fourth Period (which is the ſpace of time from the Giving of the Law, unto the Begining of the Building of the Temple) doth contain 480 years current, or 479 compleat; for 'tis ſaid in 1 King. 6. 1. In the four hundred and eightieth year after the Children of Iſrael were come out of the Land of Egypt, and in the fourth year of Solomons reign over Iſrael, in the month Zif, which is the ſecond month, he began to build the Houſe of the Lord. So that the Begining of the Temple being in the 480 year, and but in the begining of the year too, viz. in the ſecond month, we can reckon but 479 compleat years for this Period; and the year of the Begining of the Temple is to be accounted as the firſt year of the next Period following, viz. the Fifth.

Now the number of the years of this Period is gathered thus:

viz. From	The Coming out of Egypt, or Giving of the Law, unto the time that Joſhua did govern	40 y.
	Joſhua, until Othniel the firſt Judg	17
	Othniel, until Samuel was about	339
	Samuel, unto David's reign, about	40
	David, unto the fourth year of Solomon, when the Temple was begun,	44 480.

Here place the Table with the mark [* 7.]

The years after the Law.

[34]

THe coming of the Iſraelites out of Egypt, and Giving of the Law on Mount Sinai, were both in the ſame year, and not much above two months difference, that being about the middle of the firſt month, Exod. 12. 1. to the ſeventh Verſe, and this in the third month after, Exod. 19. 1. and in the eightieth year of Moſes, for then it was that he was ſent unto Pharaoh to let the Children of Iſrael go, Exod. 7. 7. and he was fourty years after that in the Wilderneſs with the Iſraelites, where he dyed being 120 years old, Deuter. 34. 7. and therefore the Coming out of Egypt, and the Giving of the Law, ſeem to have been about the year of the World 2508. as appears by adding the 430 years (from the Promiſe to the Law) unto the year of the World at the Promiſe to Abraham in Ur, which was (as is ſhewn before) 2078. So that the year of the Coming out of Egypt, and Giving the Law, was after the Death of { Abraham Iſaac Jacob Joſeph } about { 325 220 193 139 } years.

In this year alſo it was that the Amalekites did aſſault the Children of Iſrael after they were come out of Egypt; and indeed it ſeems to have been within a month or ſix weeks after, for it was before the Law was given; the Aſſault being when they were at Rephidim, Exod. 17. 8. whereas the Law was given when they came to Sinai, which was after their removeal from Rephidim, Exod. 19. 1, 2. and Num. 33. 15. For which unkinde Fact of the Amalekites the Lord did threaten to put out the name and remembrance of them from under Heaven, Exod. 17. 14. The which was afterward accompliſhed (ſo mindful is the Lord of his Threatenings as well as of his Promiſes) in the time of King Saul, 1 Sam. 15.

15. 1, 2, 3. about 450 years after; as may appear by comparing the times together, and as may be seen in the Table.

The years after the Law.

[35]

THe Tabernacle was set up in the Wilderneſs in the ſecond year after the Iſraelites came out of Egypt, and about the begining of that year, Exod. 40. 17. All things belonging thereunto being made ready and prepared in the firſt year, viz. within the compaſs of three quarters of a year or thereabouts. After It was firſt ſet up in Sinai, It abode not altogether two months, before it was taken down again and removed to Paran, Numb. 10. 11. The Church in the Wilderneſs of this World is in an unſettled and non-abiding condition.

In that ſecond year alſo it was that Moſes ſent the twelve Spies to ſearch the Land of Canaan; for it was from the Wilderneſs of Paran, Numb. 12. 16. and 13. 2, 3. and Joſh. 14. 7, 10.

Joſhua began to govern the Iſraelites immediately after the death of Moſes, Joſh. 1. 1. which was about fourty years after the Coming of the Children of Iſrael out of Egypt, and the Law; for Moſes made his rehearſal Sermon to them in the Plains of Moab in the eleventh month of the fourtieth year, Deut. 1. 3. and then a little after that dyed, (having firſt viewed the Land of Canaan from Mount Nebo) and was buryed in a valley in the Land of Moab, Deut. 34. 1. to Verſ. 7. And therefore the time when Joſhua entred upon his Office of Government was about the year of the World 2548.

as appears by adding 40 to the year of the World at the Israelites Coming out of Egypt, and about 440 years before the Temple was begun.

He lived 110 years, Josh. 24. 29. and therefore his Death seemeth to have been about the year of the World 2563. upon supposition that the time of his Government was about seventeen years; though the Jews and some others that follow them think it was 27 or 28 years.

As for the time of his Government, though it be no where expressed, yet it is to be gathered, by summing up the years of all the particulars in this Period which are expressly mentioned, and then the years that are wanting to make up the sum of 480 are the years of Joshua's Government.

As thus,	Moses governed the Israelites in the Wilderness	40
	Joshua governed after Moses.
	Othniel and the other Judges unto Samuel,	339
	Samuel and Saul, their Government together,	40
	David reigned	40
	Solomon began to build the Temple in his	4
		463.

The which sum being short of 480 by 17, those 17 are to be added for the time of Joshua's Government.

In the first year of Joshua's Government did the Children of Israel enter into the Land of Canaan, according to the Promise which the Lord had made unto Abraham about 430 years before, Genes. 12. 7. and 13. 15. and 15. 16. viz. in the foresaid year of the World 2546. on the tenth day of the first month called Abib or Nisan, Josh. 4. 19. which was the same month wherein they came out of Egypt, and within a very few days also; for upon the tenth day of the first month they were to take up a Lamb for the Passover, which was to be eaten upon the fourteenth day at Even, and in the night following they went forth out of Egypt, Exod. 12. 2, 3, 29, 30, 31.

The

The years after the Law.

[37]

THe Diviſion of the Land of Canaan was about the ſeventh year after the Children of Iſrael did enter into it; for five or ſix years (as it ſeems) were ſpent in ſubduing of it, and then in the year after it was divided: for it was about the 45 year after the Spies were ſent by Moſes, Joſh. 14. 7. to Verſ. 11. therefore the Diviſion of the Land was about the year of the World 2555. as appears by adding 46 to the year of the World at their Coming out of Egypt.

[38]

THe Judges (as is generally apprehended) do begin their account immediately after the Death of Joſhua, which was about the year of the World 2565, as is ſaid before in the Notes upon Joſhua, and about 422 years before the begining of the Temple. And the time of the Government by Judges, from Othniel (who was the firſt of them) unto the begining of Samuel's Government (who was the laſt Judg) was about 339 years, as may appear by computing of the years of the Government of each of them.

But here comes an Objection from Acts 13. 19, 20. which is a matter of ſome exerciſe in this Point of Chronology now in hand, viz. about the years and time of the Judges: the words of the Apoſtle in that place are theſe; [And when he had deſtroyed ſeven Nations in the Land of Canaan, he divided to them their Land by lot. And after that, he gave unto them Judges about the ſpace of four hundred and fifty years, until Samuel the Prophet.] Now there is a wide difference between 339 (which is the time of the Judges according to the ordinary computation) and 450 (as the Apoſtle expreſſeth it here in this place) this latter account exceeding the other about 111 years. But that there could not be 450 years from the Diviſion of the Land of Canaan by lot, &c. (which was about 47 years after the Iſraelites came out of Egypt) unto Samuel the Prophet (as the Apoſtles words do ſeem to hold forth) appeareth from hence, viz. becauſe the whole ſpace from the Coming out of Egypt to the building of the Temple was but 480 years, 1 Kings 6. 1. Now if on the one ſide, we ſubſtract from thoſe 480 years, both the 47 years which were before the Diviſion of the Land by lot, and likewiſe the 83 years which were compleat after the Begining of Samuel's Government, unto the Temple, which together make 130 years, there will be found but about 320 years to be allowed for that ſpace which Paul ſpeaks of. Or if on the other ſide, the ſaid 130 years (which were before and after that ſpace which the Apoſtle ſpeaks of) be added unto the ſaid 450, then the ſum of the years, from the Coming out of Egypt to the Temple, will amount to 580, which is juſt an 100 years more then is ſet down in that place mentioned, viz. 1 Kings 6. 1.

Divers things are ſaid by divers men about the Apoſtles words: amongſt which theſe three ſeem to be the moſt ſpecial, againſt which I deny not but there may be Objections made; I ſhall briefly propound them, leaving the Reader to his own choyce, or his liberty to finde out yet a better ſolution.

Firſt, Some ſay that there is an error and miſtake (not in Paul, who ſpake by the Holy Ghoſt, but) in the Amanuenſis or Scribe, writing one word for another, viz. τεσσαρακοντα for τριακοσια, i. e. 400 for 300: the words being ſo near might eaſily admit of ſuch a miſtake; (thus Luther, Beza, Funcius, and Lunberg:) and if ſo, then the 350 years will exactly agree with the other 130, to make up thoſe 480 years.

But this others are not ſatisfied withall; partly in regard that all the Greek Copies, both Manuſcript and Printed (one onely excepted) as Beza himſelf acknowledgeth, do agree in the word τεσσαρακοντα, which ſignifies 400. And partly alſo in regard that it may be of dangerous conſequence to open a gap for the questioning of other places of Scripture, as well as this. Therefore,

The years after the Law.

Secondly, It is said that the 450 years spoken of by the Apostle, are not to be understood of the time of the Judges from the Division of the Land (as the words seem to imply in the ordinary reading) but of the time before, viz. from the Promise made to Abraham of giving him a son by Sarah (which was a year before Isaac was born) unto the Division of the Land of Canaan; and so there were 448 years, which are within two years of the number expressed by the Apostle; and the defect of those two years is helped by the particle [ὡς] which signifies [as it were] or [about] such a time. Now those 448 years are gathered thus, viz. 400 years from the birth of Isaac to the Law, and one year before that, when the Promise was made that Sarah should bring forth a son; and then from the Law to the Division of the Land there were about 47 years; which together do make up the sum of 448 years. And if it be questioned, How it can be made to appear that the Apostle's speech is to be understood of the years before the Division of the Land, and not after it? They answer it by a little varying of the Pointing of the words, not making a full Point at the end of the 19 Verse (as is usually done) but they read the words thus; When he had destroyed seven Nations, &c. he divided their Land to them by lot, as it were about the space of four hundred and fifty years. And after these things he gave them Judges, until Samuel the Prophet. (Thus Junius, Vulgat. Edit. and Sanctius read the words.) And so those 450 years may seem to be spoken with reference to the things going before the time of the Judges: and the learned Voetius also in his Insolubilibus Script. approves of this Interpretation.

Yet this Answer, or way of resolving the difficulty, is not without exception; For it seems to make a nose of wax of the Scripture, causing it to speak according to mens fansie, by altering the Points, and transplacing the words.

Thirdly, Therefore others do grant, not onely that those 450 years were spoken by Paul, and not written by the error of the Scribe, viz. 450 in ſtead of 350. but alſo that he ſpeaks of the time of the Judges after the Diviſion of the Land, and not of the time before: But they conceive that he did ſpeak according to the vulgar and common account among the Jews, who did make the number of the years, from the Coming out of Egypt to the Temple, more by about 112 then is expreſſed in 1 Kings 6. 1. (as may appear by Joſephus, who, in the ſeventh Book of his Antiquities, and ſecond Chapter, doth ſet down 592 years, from the one unto the other) the which enlargement did ariſe (as is conceived) from their computing of the years of the Oppreſſions of Iſrael between the time of the Judges, as diſtinct from the years which are given to each particular Judg: and by adding the ſum of both together (viz. of the years under the Oppreſſions, and alſo of the Judges) we ſhall finde them to make up the juſt ſum of 450 years; which will appear thus:

The Oppreſſions of the Iſraelites, viz. under	Cuſhan	8
	Eglon	18
	Jabin	20
	Midian	7	years.

	Elon	10
	Abdon	8
	Sampſon	20	111
	Eli	40	339
		339.	450.	Where-

Whereas in very deed the years of the Oppreſſions (though mentioned as diſtinct) muſt be included in the years that are reckoned to the Judges: for otherwiſe the time from the Coming out of Egypt to the building of the Temple, muſt be not 480 years, as it is expreſly ſaid in 1 Kings 6. 1. but more by 111. and ſo amount to about the ſum that Joſephus ſets down: but which of the two we ſhould rather believe, I ſuppoſe needeth not to be queſtioned. The years after the Law.

But the Apoſtle, ſpeaking according to the ordinary account generally received by the people (not intending any exactneſs in the matter of Chronology, or to raiſe up any controverſie thereabout, having other matters of greater concernment to ſpeak unto them of) was willing to let it paſs (onely putting in an As it were) accordingly as it had done amongſt them. There is, I confeſs, another Opinion, viz. of Codomons (mentioned by our learned and judicious Knight Sir W. R. lib. 2. cap 13. 9. 8.) but this latter now mentioned being the moſt probable to me that I have met withall, I ſhall forbear to make mention of any more.

OTHNIEL.

ALthough I cannot conceive that Othniel did begin to govern the Iſraelites immediately after the death of Joſhua, for there was a time when there was no King or Governor in Iſrael (and indeed it is not improbable but thoſe things which are mentioned in the five laſt Chapters of the Book of the Judges, might fall out not many years after the Death of Joſhua, and of thoſe Elders, who had ſeen all the great works of the Lord that he did for Iſrael, for Phinehas was then High-Prieſt, Judg. 20. 28.) whereupon they might fall to Idolatry, and ſo for that cauſe they were ſold into the hand of Chuſhan-riſhathaim King of Meſopotamia eight years, Judg. 2. 7, 11, 12. and Chap. 3. 7, 8. All which was before Othniel did judg The firſt Oppreſſion of Iſrael.

The years after the Law.

judg Iſrael; for it is ſaid, the Lord did, upon the Oppreſſion of Iſrael, raiſe him up to be a Deliverer to the Children of Iſrael, Judg. 3. 9, 10. Yet Verſ. 11. thoſe fourty years (it being ſaid, the Land had reſt fourty years) are to be reckoned as from the Death of Joſhua; becauſe otherwiſe we muſt exceed the number of the years mentioned in 1 Kings 6. 1. And let it be further noted and remembred, that as Othniel did not judg Iſrael all the fourty years together, mentioned Judg. 3. 11. ſo neither are we to conceive that the Land had reſt fourty years after Othniel, but until the end of the fourtieth year (after the Death of Joſhua) and in like manner we are to underſtand thoſe other places, as in Judg. 3. 30. of eighty years, viz. from the end of the former fourty years; and ſo Chap. 5. 31. and 8. 28. as Junius and Tremelius read the phraſe, [uſque ad] even until the eightieth year, or ſuch or ſuch a year. Now if we account the time of Othniel's Government as immediately following the Death of Joſhua, we muſt reckon the begining of the fourtieth year allowed unto Othniel, to be about 57 years after the Law, there having been fourty years before Joſhua did govern the people, unto which we muſt add Joſhua's ſeventeen years; and about the year of the World 2565. as appears by adding 57 to the year of the World at the Giving of the Law.

AFter the death of Othniel, which ſeems to have been about fourty years after the death of Joſhua, and about 97 years after the Giving of the Law, as appears by adding the fourty years aſſigned unto Othniel, unto the foregoing 57 years, the Iſraelites did evil again, whereupon [1] Eglon the the King of Moab (with the Aſſiſtance of Ammon and Amalek) made war againſt them, and brought them under for the ſpace of eighteen years, Judg. 3. 13, 14. which was the ſecond Oppreſſion of Iſrael in the time of the Judges; which we may account to begin about the year of the World 2605. by adding the fourty years aſcribed unto Othniel unto the year of the World at the begining of his fourty years. At length the Lord raiſed up Ehud to deliver Iſrael out of the hand of Eglon, whom he ſlew with a dagger: whereupon gathering the Iſraelites together, they killed about ten thouſand of the Moabites, which had come and dwelt in the Land of Iſrael; whereupon the Land had reſt eighty years, or until the eightieth year (viz. after the death of Othniel) Judg. 3. 15. to 31. from whoſe death (viz. Othniel's) we are to begin the account of theſe eighty years, which are given to the Government of Ehud; the begining of which years ſeem to have been about 383 years before the Foundation of the Temple.

The years after the Law.

The ſecond Oppreſſion.

In theſe times, and about the days of Ehud, or very little after (as it is conceived) was the ſtory of Ruth, and the things there mentioned, tranſacted; for Boaz (who marryed Ruth) was the ſon of Rahab (who received and hid the Spies ſent by Joſhua) Matth. 1. 5. and although he might poſſibly be aged when he marryed her, as ſuppoſe 120 years old (which was a great age for thoſe times) yet it might fall within the compaſs of theſe eighty years, for the end of them was about 137 years after Joſhua's entering into the Land of Canaan; for beſides the ſeventeen years allowed to the Government of Joſhua, and thence fourty more to the end of Othniel's; to which the eighty years of Ehud being added, together will ariſe unto 137.

Within the compaſs alſo of theſe 80 years, we are to place Shamgar, who ſlew 600 of the Philiſtins with an Ox-goad; for though he is not named a Judg, yet he did help to deliver Iſrael, Judg. 3. 31. and that he was not numbered in the Catalogue of the Judges, appears plainly by the Scriptures reckoning ing of Deborah to be the next after Ehud: see Judg. 4. 1, 4. and yet he was a man of special note and renown in his time, Judg. 5. 6.

DEBORAH.

TOwards the latter end of those foregoing eighty years mentioned Judg. 3. 30. in the time that the Land had Rest, the Israelites did evil again in the sight of the Lord, especially when Ehud was dead: whereupon they were sold into the hand of Jabin King of Canaan (the Captain of whose Host was Sisera) and were mightily Oppressed twenty years, Judg. 4. 1, 2, 3. upon which Occasion Deborah the Prophetess was raised up to judg Israel, who by the help of Barak subdued the Canaanites; and so the Land had Rest fourty years, or until the fourtieth year after the former eighty years, Judg. 5. 31. The begining of which fourty years allotted to her (though we are not so imagine that she judged Israel all that time) seems to have been about the year of the World 2685. as appears by adding those eighty years of Ehud to the year of the World when they began; and after the Coming out of Egypt, and Giving of the Law, about 177. as appears also by the same account: and consequently about 303 years before the Foundations of the Temple were layd.

The years after the Law.

GIDEON.

BEfore thoſe former fourty years of Deborah were (as it ſeems) expired, the Children of Iſrael did evil again in the ſight of the Lord, and thereupon they were delivered into the hands of the Midianites, who did oppreſs and impoveriſh them the ſpace of ſeven years, Judg. 6. 1. to 7. Then Gideon, being extraordinarily raiſed up, was an Inſtrument of ſubduing Midian, and delivering of Iſrael; and ſo the Land was in quietneſs fourty years, or until the fourtieth year after the former fourty years of Deborah, Judg. 8. 28. The fourth Oppreſſion.

The Begining of theſe fourty years of Gideon ſeems to have been about the 217 year after the Coming out of Egypt, and the Giving of the Law, as appears by adding the fourty years of Deborah unto the years after the Law at the begining of them; and about the year of the World 2725. and about 263 before the Temple was begun.

ABimelech, a baſe born ſon of Gideon, after his Fathers death, prevailed with the men of Shechem to make him their King; who obtaining ſome power, murdered about ſeventy ſons of Gideon: but reigning three years, he and the Shechemites fell to diſcord, the one ſide ſpoyling and killing the other, at length himſelf had his death's wound by the hand of a woman who brake his skull with a piece of milſtone, Judg. 9. The Begining of his Government ſeems to be about 257 years after the Coming out of Egypt and Giving of the Law; as appears by adding fourty years to the years after the Law at the begining of Gideon's Government; and, upon the ſame ground, about the year of the World 2765. and before the building of the Temple about 223 years.

After Abimelech arose Tola, who judged Israel 23 years, Judg. 10. 1, 2. His begining seems to have been about 260 years after the Coming out of Egypt and the Giving of the Law, as appears by adding three years to the years after the Law at Abimelech, and about the 2768 year of the World, and about 220 years before the begining of the Temple.

Jair judged Israel (next after Tola) 22 years, Judg. 10 3. his first year seems to have been about the 283 year after the Coming out of Egypt, as appears by adding the 23 years of Tola unto the years after the Law at the begining of his Government; and about the 2791 year of the World; and before the Building of the Temple about 179 years. It is probable that in the time of these 22 years of Jair, the Philistins and Ammonites Oppressed Israel eighteen years, Judg. 10. 6. to Vers. 10. Jepthah the son of Gilead, Judg. 11. 1. was called to be the Captain of Israel to fight for them against the Philistins and Ammonites, under whom the Israelites had been Oppressed eighteen years, Judg. 10. 8. about the 305 year after the Coming out of Egypt and the Giving of the Law, as appears by adding the 22 years of Jair to the year after the Law at the begining of them; and about the 2813 year of the World, and about 175 years before the Temple. The years after the Law.

Whereas Jepthah, in his expoſtulation with the King of the Ammonites about the Land of Gilead, which was alſo called the Land of the Amorites, pleaded 300 years poſſeſſion; we are not to underſtand that expreſſion exactly, but near upon or towards 300 years, for there might be above thirty years ſhort of it; becauſe the Iſraelites took it from Sihon about 39 years after their Coming out of Egypt, or 38 years after they came from Kadeſh-Barnea, Deuteron. 2. 14, 24, 25, 26. where they were about the ſecond year after they came from Egypt. Indeed, I confeſs, in another reſpect it might be juſtly pleaded, that they had the right of the poſſeſſion of it full 300 years, viz. in regard that Sihon (from whom they took it, and ſo had his Tenure of it) had taken it before from the Amorites, Numb. 21. 26. Jepthah judged Iſrael ſix years, Judg. 12. 7.

IBzan, after Jepthah, judged Iſrael ſeven years, Judg. 12. 8, 9. the Begining of his Government ſeems to have been about the 311 year after the Coming out of Egypt and Giving of the Law, as appears by adding the ſix years of Jepthah to the years after the Law at the begining of his Government; and about the 2819 year of the World, and about 169 years before the begining of the Temple.

Abdon, after Elon, judged Israel eight years, Judg. 12. 13, 14. the begining of his Government seems to have been about the 328 year after the Coming out of Egypt and Giving of the Law, as appears by adding the ten years of Elon to the years after the Law at the begining of his Government; and about the year of the World 2836. and before the Begining of the Temple about 152 years.

Sampson, after Abdon, judged Israel twenty years, Judg. 15. 20. and 16. 31. Indeed learned Masius (in his Notes upon Joshua, Cap. 24. 31.) thinks that the twenty years ascribed to Sampson, were part of the fourty years of Eli, and that Sampson did not govern or rule; yet seeing the Scripture says so expresly in two places, that he judged Israel, and so many years too, I know not why we should determine the contrary. His twenty years seem to begin about the 336 year after the Coming out of Egypt and Giving of the Law, as appears by adding the eight years of Abdon to the years after the Law at the begining of his Government; and about the year of the World 2844. and before the begining of the Temple about 144 years.

The sixth Oppression.

Note; That the Oppression of Israel by the Philistins fourty years, mentioned Judg. 13. 1. seems to have begun before the the begining of Sampſons twenty years: And although he vexed and ſpoyled the Philiſtins very much, yet he did not fully deliver Iſrael out of their hands, but was himſelf delivered into their hands, and dyed being their Priſoner: the other part of the fourty years therefore muſt be in the former part of Eli's Government.

The years after the Law.

Eli judged Iſrael fourty years, 1 Sam. 4. 18. the Begining whereof ſeems to have been about the 356 year after the Coming out of Egypt and Giving of the Law, as appears by adding the twenty years of Sampſon to the year after the Law when he began to judg Iſrael; and about the year of the World 2864. and before the Begining of the Temple about 124 years.

Samuel and Saul (who was the firſt King that was anointed over all Iſrael) governed between them both about fourty years, Acts 13. 20, 21. I joyn them together (though Samuel was before Saul) becauſe the years of the Government of either of them are not diſtinctly and particularly expreſſed, but onely the whole ſum of the years of the Government of both of them is mentioned in the general.

How long Samuel did govern before Saul was anointed King, is not certainly to be determined, nor how many of thoſe fourty years were taken up by his Reign; though many gueſſes and conjectures are given about the ſame: yet it ſeems moſt probable that the greater part of thoſe years was taken up by Samuel's Government (and therefore Saul could not reign reign 32 years, as Paludanus conceives.) For first, Samuel was grown aged and gray-headed when Saul was made King, 1 Sam. 12. 1, 2. having governed the people from his young time. Secondly, Saul himſelf was well in years when he was anointed, having three or four ſons that were men grown, 1 Chron. 8. 33. viz. Jonathan, Malchiſhua, Abinadab, and Eſhbaal or Iſhboſheth (who was fourty years old at his Fathers death, being then ſet up to reign in oppoſition to David, 2 Sam. 2. 10.) whereby in probability he muſt be above fifty years old when he was anointed King; and yet not much above ſixty he ſeems to have been when he was ſlain, in that he was ſo able both for travel and war to the very laſt. And thirdly, becauſe it is very probable that David was upwards of 20 years old when he was anointed to be King in the ſtead of Saul (for he had encountered with a Bear and Lyon before;) Mr. Ainſworth thinks he might be about 23. Now it is moſt likely that he was anointed by Samuel not long after that Saul was eſtabliſhed in the Kingdom, poſſibly it might be about the third year of Saul's reign; for when he had reigned two years, he ſtrengthened himſelf with a conſtant Guard, 1 Sam. 13. 1, 2. and when he was ſtrengthened in the Kingdom, the Lord ſent him to deſtroy the Amalekites, 1 Sam. 15. and preſently after his miſcarriage in that buſineſs, Samuel was ſent to anoint David, 1 Sam. 16. 1. and when David was actually poſſeſſed of the Kingdom after Saul's death, he was but thirty years old. So that in probability Saul might reign (though not two years onely, as ſome have thought, from 1 Sam. 13. 1. yet) not much above ten, if ſo much; for (beſides what is ſaid already) it is evident that Samuel did govern above twenty years after the death of Eli, and before Saul was anointed; thus: There was about ſeven months after the death of Eli and the taking of the Ark by the Philiſtins, before it was brought to Kiriath-jearim, 1 Sam. 6. 1. 21. then after that it did abide twenty years there, 1 Sam. 7. 2. ſo that here was about 21 years before Saul was anointed King: and there are divers expreſſions which intimate as if there were divers years after that, wherein wherein ſtill Samuel did govern before Saul; as viz. That the hand of the Lord was againſt the Philiſtins all the days of Samuel, Verſ. 13. and Verſ. 16. That he went in circuit from year to year judging Iſrael. And in the begining of the eight Chapter it is ſaid, That he being old made his ſons Judges: but they being corrupt, and taking bribes, the people were inſatiably deſirous of a King, and ſo in concluſion they obtained Saul. By all which it is very probable that Samuel might govern, before Saul was ſet up, about thirty years, and conſequently that Saul did not reign above ten years at the moſt.

The years after the Law.

Theſe fourty years of Samuel and Saul did begin at the end of Eli, and therefore about the 396 year after the Coming out of Egypt and Giving of the Law, as appears by adding his fourty years Government to the year after the Law at the begining of the ſame; and about the year of the World 2904. and about 84 years before the building of the Temple.

David, the ſon of Jeſſe, of the Tribe of Judah, ſucceeded Saul in the Kingdom, being thirty years old, when he began to reign; and reigned in all fourty years compleat (and indeed ſome months over) 2 Sam. 5. 4, 5. The Begining of his Reign ſeems to be about the 436 year after the Coming out of Egypt, and Giving of the Law; as appears by adding the fourty years of Samuel's and Saul's Government, to the years after the Law at the begining of the ſame; and about the year of the World 2944. and about the 44 year before the Temple was begun by Solomon. As for the time of his Anointing by Samuel before he began to reign, ſomething is hinted before in the Notes about Saul.

When

The years after the Law.

† When he had reigned ſeven years and ſix months in Hebron, viz. in the eighth year after his firſt begining to reign, Iſhboſheth (David's Competitor) was ſlain, whom Abner had ſet up as King over all Iſrael (the houſe of Judah excepted which followed David) whereupon the whole Kingdom was brought under him; which ſeems to have been about the year of the World 2950. And whereas it is ſaid that Iſhboſheth reigned two years over Iſrael, 2 Sam. 2. 10. it is not to be underſtood as if he reigned no longer in all (for David coming to be King over the whole Kindgdom of Iſrael after his death, had reigned ſeven years and an half before in Hebron, whereby it ſeems that Iſhboſheth had reigned ſo long a time) but the meaning of that expreſſion there is, that he had reigned two years, when the war did break out between the houſe of David and the houſe of Saul, and when that bloody skirmiſh was fought by twelve men of each ſide, mentioned in the following Verſes, viz. the twelfth to the eighteenth.

In that year alſo (as it ſeems) David took Jeruſalem out of the hands of the Jebuſites; for it is ſaid, he reigned 33 years in Jeruſalem over all Iſrael and Judah, 2 Sam. 5. 5. and therefore it muſt be in the very year wherein he had all Iſrael ſubject unto him; or in the eighth year of his Reign from the firſt begining.

‡ About the year following, viz. the ninth year of David's Reign from his firſt begining (as it is moſt probable) and the ſecond year of his Reign over all Iſrael, He removed the Ark, cauſing It to be brought from Kiriath-jearim unto Jeruſalem (the Metropolis of the Kingdom) 2 Sam. 6. 1. &c. 1 Chron. 13. and 15. Chap. As they were in the way, Uzzah being ſtruck dead, It was thereupon carryed aſide to the houſe of Obed-Edom, from whence (after its abode there three months) David had it carryed to Jeruſalem, himſelf dancing before It. Now the Carrying of the Ark into Jeruſalem, I conceive, was in the ninth year of David's Reign; for ſix months of his eighth year were paſſed before he began to reign over all Iſrael, after which ſome time alſo was ſpent in taking of Jeruſalem, and in gaining of Zion from the Jebuſites, Jebuſites, and in ſettling and ordering of their habitations and affairs in the City, and in preparation of the Place for the Ark; all which, with other occaſions, in all probability might take up four or five months time; and beſides, the Ark was alſo three months in the houſe of Obed-Edom, after the firſt attempt about the removeal of It, before it was brought to Jeruſalem: yet I believe that it was not deferred longer then the ninth year of David, for he was zealous for the matters of the Lord's houſe and worſhip, and ſo would be careful to take his firſt Opportunity for promoting of the ſame. The years after the Law.

+ David's Adultery with Bathſheba was at the ſame time when Joab was beſieging of Rabbah (which was preſently after he had ſmitten the Ammonites for the abuſe offered to his Ambaſſadors, 2 Sam. 11. 1, 2. 1 Chron. 20. 1.) and the time of that uncleanneſs (as our learned Engliſh Knight doth probably gather, lib. 2. cap. 18. §. 4.) might be about the twentieth year of David's reign, becauſe thoſe wars and other occurrences, mentioned from the fifth to the eleventh Chapter, cannot eaſily be conceived to have been tranſacted in a ſhorter ſpace: and if ſo (for we cannot ſpeak determinately herein) then it was about the fiftieth year of his life. And about a year after that, or very neer, it was that Nathan the Prophet did reprove him for it; for that was after the childe ſo begotten was born, 2 Sam. 12. 14.

+ David had Solomon born unto him by Bathſheba about two years after his Adultery with her; for the childe that was firſt begotten of her, was born and dyed, and then there muſt paſs neer upon a year at leaſt before ſhe could bear and bring forth Solomon: and ſo the birth of Solomon (upon the former ſuppoſition of the year of his Adultery) was about the 22 year of David's reign, or at leaſt the latter end of his 21 year.

+ The Conſpiracy of Abſalom ſeems to have been towards the end of David's reign: great diverſity there is, I confeſs, in conjectures about the year of it; ſome thinking it was about the 26 year of his Reign, Funccius conceives about the

the 30. and another about the 33 year. But (if I might have leave to conjecture) I should rather encline to think, that it might be about the begining of David's fourtieth year, from that expression which we have in 2 Sam. 15. 7. And it came to pass after fourty years, that Absalom said to the King, I pray thee let me go and pay my vow which I have vowed to the Lord in Hebron: upon which, presently after his Conspiracy brake out. It hath much perplexed Interpreters from what time to begin those fourty years; Some think that there is a mistake in the Copies, viz. of fourty in stead of four; and so, as Brugensis in his Notat. in Sacra Bibl. relates, divers Manuscripts do read it; and Josephus also (Antiqu. lib. 7. cap. 8.) speaks of that time, as being four years, viz. after Absalom was reconciled to his Father, and had permission to return to Jerusalem.

Others (not willing to charge the Copy with an error) grant that it is fourty years, yet they vary and differ in their apprehensions where they did begin: For there are that think the begining of them might be

From the time that
- the Israelites desired of Samuel to have a King.
- Saul was set up King over Israel.
- David did dissemble with the Priest, in fleeing from Saul.
- Samuel did anoint David to be King.

All which I look at but as meer fansies: but verily (for my part) I see not any thing of weight to the contrary, why we may not understand the Begining of those fourty years to be when David did begin to reign; and so also Junius and Piscator do encline to think, and Broughton too seems to consent thereunto, onely he says, the fourtieth year was somewhat before the fourtieth year of David. And whereas it may be objected, That the things which fell out after Absalom's Conspiracy in the time of David's reign (mentioned in 2 Sam. 21. viz. the three years of Famine for Saul's sin about the Gibeonites, and divers battels against the Philistins; besides beſides the Numbering of the people, Chap. 24. which took up three quarters of a year) could not but require divers years, and therefore it could not be in the fourtieth year of David. In anſwer whereunto, I am apt to believe that there is an Hyſteroſis and Anticipation in ſetting down the ſtory of the Conſpiracy: For firſt, The things recorded in Chap. 21. (as the three years of Famine, the removing of the bones of Saul and Jonathan, and the Wars with the Philiſtins) may ſeem to have been before the Conſpiracy mentioned in the fifteenth Chapter, upon theſe grounds; viz. 1. It is not likely that the Lord would defer to bear witneſs againſt Saul's ſin ſo long after his death, as towards the latter end of David's reign. 2. It is moſt probable that the bones of Saul and Jonathan were removed within few years after David came to the Kingdom, eſpecially to reign over all Iſrael, and not thirty years, or more, after; for their bodies having been burnt, 1 Sam. 31. 12, 13. their bones in all probability would have been turned into aſhes before that time. And, 3. Though the Wars with the Philiſtins are in Samuel ſet down after the three years of Famine, yet in 1 Chron. 20. they are made to follow after the taking of Rabbah from the Ammonites, which was before David's Adultery, or at leaſt about the time of it, 2 Sam. 11. and ſo conſequently before Abſalom's Conſpiracy in the fifteenth Chapter. Secondly, As for the ſtory of Numbering the people, in the 24 Chapter, it is very probable that it was alſo before the Conſpiracy (though it is recorded after it; by reaſon, that the whole ſtory of Abſalom might be put together) yea and before David's Adultery alſo, mentioned in the eleventh Chapter; and even before his Intention of building a Temple for the Lord, mentioned in the ſeventh Chapter; becauſe the Numbering of the people was in the time when Gad was alive and was David's Seer, 2 Sam. 24. 11. and he was his Prophet and Seer in the former part of his Reign; yea, and before he was actually eſtabliſhed in the Kingdom, whileſt Saul lived, 2 Sam. 22. 5. whereas Nathan (who was with him when he had thoughts about building a Temple) was his

The years after the Law.

The years after the Law.

Prophet and Seer in the latter part of his Reign, even when he was upon his death-bed, 1 Kings 1. 8, 10, 11. yea, it doth further alſo ſeem evident, that the Numbering of the people was before his Intention of building a Temple, becauſe the Numbering of the people was before the Tabernacle (wherein the Ark was placed) was brought to Jeruſalem, 1 Chron. 21. 29. whereas his purpoſe of building a Temple was after the removing of the Ark to Jeruſalem, as appears by 2 Sam. 6. and 7. Chapters. And therefore it ſeems moſt probable, that the Numbering of the people was before Abſalom's Conſpiracy (though placed after it in the ſtory) and that the Conſpiracy might be about the begining of the fourtieth year of the Reign of David; after which divers things might poſſibly fall out before his death, in the ſpace of a year and an half; for he reigned fourty years and ſix months in all.

And that there are diſlocations of things in the Books of Samuel, is out of queſtion (not to mention other Books of Scripture) as appears by comparing onely 2 Sam. 20. 25. with Chap. 8. 17. for in the former place it is ſaid, that Zadok and Abiathar were Prieſts: and in the eighth Chapter it is ſaid, that Zadok and Ahimelech, the ſon of Abiathar, were Prieſts. And therefore I ſhould crave leave here to commend it as a very uſeful and grateful work, for ſome (ſuch as have ability and opportunity) to take pains in finding out, and ſetting forth, the ſeveral Hyſteroſies and Anticipations that are to be found throughout the Scriptures.

Solomon, the ſon of David, ſucceeded his Father in the Kingdom, being the third and laſt King over all the twelve Tribes of Iſrael; his age when he began to reign is not expreſſed, divers gueſſes there are about it; but to me it is very probable he might be about eighteen or nineteen years old, being born about the 21 or 22 year of David's reign (as is intimated before in the Notes upon David) for his Father calls calls him a wiſe man when he gave him his charge, 1 Kings 2. 9. and he is ſaid alſo to be old when his wives turned away his heart, which was ſome while before his Death (probably it was when he was between fifty and ſixty) 1 Kings 11. 4. and his ſon Rehoboam alſo was 41 years old when Solomon dyed, 1 Kings 14. 21. therefore Solomon probably was neer about twenty years old when he began to reign.

The years after the Law.

But the begining of his Reign being a little before David's death (for his Father cauſed him to be proclaimed King in his ſtead) was in the 41 year after David did begin at firſt to reign; for he reigned (as is ſaid) fourty years compleat, and ſix months over: therefore Solomon's firſt year muſt be about the 477 year after the Coming out of Egypt, and the Giving of the Law; as appeareth by adding 41 to the years after the Law when David began to reign; and about the 2985 year of the World: The time of his Reign was fourty years, 1 Kings 11. 42.

THe Temple was begun to be built by Solomon, in the fourth year of his Reign, in the ſecond month; and in the 480 year after the Coming of the Iſraelites out of Egypt; as is expreſly affirmed in 1 Kings 6. 1. which ſeems to be about the year of the World 2988. as appeareth by adding 480 to the year of the World at the Coming out of Egypt and Giving of the Law; or by adding three years compleat to the year after or from the Law when Solomon began to reign.

THE V. PERIOD (being the time from the Beginning of the TEMPLE, in the 4 year of Solomon, unto the Destruction thereof, in the Finall CAPTIVITY of Judah, in the 11 year of Zedekiah,) seemes to consist of 420 yeares, including the last year in the account: For although according to the Scripture-literall-account the number of the yeares do amount to 431 yeares, and six moneths, as appeares by the computation of them thus following: Yet in Scripture-chronologicall account wee cannot make it to amount to that summ by 11 yeares and 6 moneths, as appeares by this Table, wherein the yeares of the Reign of the Kings, both of Judah and Israel, are particularly set down. But the reason why the Scripture-literall account doth exceed the other, is partly because sometimes that year which is accounted as the last of that King which went before, is also reckoned as the first year of him that succeeded: and partly also, because sometimes some of the Kings did reign together with their Fathers, as it seemes Jehoram did with Jehoshaphat, 2 Kin. 8. 16. and yet those yeares which they did reign together, are reckoned in the number of the yeares of the reign of each of them.

If the years of the Kings of Judah and Israel be compared, there will appear a remarkable difference: as for example, the yeares of the Kings of Judah from Rehoboam unto Athaliah, will bee found to bee short of the yeares of those Kings of Israel that were contemporary in the very self same time, viz: from Jeroboam unto Jehu, about 3 yeares: the summ of the one being but 95, and of the other 98 yeares; thus,

And again if wee compare the yeares of them that reigned in each Kingdom downwards from these, to the end of the Kingdom of Israel, the yeares of the Kingdom of Judah will seem to exceed the yeares of the Kingdom of Israel by far, viz: about 22 yeares, and some months: For from the beginning of the Reign of Athaliah (who reigned next after Ahazi-did reign together with their Fathers, as it seemes Jehoram did with Jehosaphat, 2 Kin. 8. 16. and yet those yeares which they did reign together, are reckoned in the number of the yeares of the reign of each of them.

If the yeares of the Kings of Judah and Israel bee compared, there will appear a remarkable difference: as for example, the yeares of the Kings of Judah from Rehoboam unto Athaliah, will bee found to bee short of the yeares of those Kings of Israel that were contemporary in the very self same time, viz: from Jeroboam unto Jehu, about 3 yeares: the summs of the one being but 95, and of the other 98 yeares; thus,

And again if wee compare the yeares of them that reigned in each Kingdom downwards from these, to the end of the Kingdom of Israel, the yeares of the Kingdom of Judah will seem to exceed the yeares of the Kingdom of Israel by far, viz: about 22 yeares, and some months: For from the beginning of the Reign of Athaliah (who reigned next after Ahaziah in the Kingdom of Judah) unto the 6 year of Hezekiah (in which yeare the Kingdom of Israel ceased, the 10 Tribes being carried away Captives into Assyria) there seem by the literall account of the Scripture, to have bin about 166 yeares, whereas from the 1 year of Jehu, (who succeeded Jehoram in the Kingdom of Israel, unto the 9 year of Hoshea (which was the year of the Captivity of Israel, the number of yeares seems to be but 143 and 7 months: as by the catalogue of the yeares of the Kings here expressed, doth appear.

Now therefore for the reconciling and clearing of these differences and other difficulties, and to bring the yeares of the Kings also particularly to meet harmoniously together, these two things are here done, as may bee seen in this Table, viz:

First, There is made an Interregnum or vacancy in the Kingdom of Israel of about 11 yeares, viz: from the death of Jeroboam the second, to the beginning of the Reign of Zachariah: for otherwise Zachariah could not begin to reign in the 38 year of Uzziah or Azariah, according to 2 Kings 15. 8. but rather about the 26 year when Jeroboam died, which was about 41 yars from the 15 year of Amaziah, when he began to reign, as is to bee seen by this Table at large. As for any Interregnum in the Kingdom of Judah, which some make of about 11 yeares, viz. after the death of Amaziah, I have here indeavoured to salve the difficulties without that. There seemes also, I confesse, to bee another Interregnum again in Israel of about 8 yeares, viz: from the death of Pekah (the last King but one) whom Hoshea did slay about the 5 year of Ahaz King of Judah: and yet Hoshea is said in

First, There is made an Interregnum or vacancy in the Kingdom of Israel of about 11 yeares, viz.: from the death of Jeroboam the second, to the beginning of the Reign of Zachariah: for otherwise Zachariah could not begin to reign in the 38 year of Uzziah or Azariah, according to 2 King. 15. 8. but rather about the 26 year when Jeroboam died, which was about 41 years from the 15 year of Amaziah, when he began to reign, as is to bee seen by this Table at large. As for any Interregnum in the Kingdom of Judah, which some make of about 11 yeares, viz. after the death of Amaziah, I have here indeavoured to salve the difficulties without that. There seemes also, I confess, to bee another Interregnum again in Israel of about 8 yeares, viz: from the death of Pekah (the last King but one) whom Hoshea did slay about the 5 year of Ahaz King of Judah: and yet Hoshea is said in 2 Kings 17. 1. to begin to reign in his stead, in the 12 year of Ahaz; and therefore there must bee some kinde of vacancy in the Kingdom of Israel from the 5 year to the 12 year of Ahaz King of Judah, but for this see the Notes upon the reign of Hoshea.

Secondly, Here is observed carefully the times of the beginning when any of the Kings did begin to reign: for none of the Kings of Judah and Israel did begin to reign together at the same time of the year, except only Rehoboam and Athaliah, who began to reign in Judah about the very same time when Jeroboam and Jehu did begin to reign in Israel: and therefore the lines for the severall yeares of the Kings here in this Table are not drawn out and made to run even for them in both Kingdomes, but in two places only, viz. At the beginning of the reign of Rehoboam, and again when Athaliah began to reign. And therefore (which is to bee observed) there are two pricks or points at the beginning of the Reign of most of the Kings, the one on the side of Judah, and the other on the side of Israel, to signify in what part of the year of the contemporary King the beginning of such a Kings reign was, viz. either in the former or latter part of it. E. gr. Nadab King of Israel began to reign in the second year of Asa King of Judah, and in the latter part of it, as the point sheweth, being set in the lower part of that second year of Asa: and so wee may understand the like by the points at the beginning of the reign of any other of the Kings of Judah and Israel.

Place this Table before fol. 119. at this mark. [* 8]

The years after the Temple.

Solomon in the fourth year of his Reign, it being the 480 year from the Coming out of Egypt (as is said before) began to lay the Foundation of the Temple about the year of the World 2988. which I reckon to be the first year of this fifth Period. The Temple being a most magnificent house, was seven years and six months in building, notwithstanding there were 183000 men employed about it, 1 Kings 5. 13. to the 17. besides those that Hiram King of Tyre did employ in hewing of stones and preparing of timber for the work, Verse 18. for it was begun in the fourth year of Solomon and the second month, and was finished in his eleventh year and the eighth month, 1 Kings 6. 37, 38. the Finishing of it therefore seems to have been about the year of the World 3000. as appears by the Table.

THE

Kings of Israel.

[1]

Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, was the first King of Israel after the Division of the two Kingdoms. For upon the death of Solomon, the people sent for Jeroboam out of Egypt (whither he had fled for fear of Solomon by some provocation given) who being chosen they went together unto Rehoboam to Shechem (where he was

THE Kings of Judah.

Rehoboam, the son of Solomon, succeeding his father in the Kingdom, being 41 years old when he began to reign, reigned 17 years, 1 Kings 14. 21. 2 Chron. 12. 13. The beginning of his reign seems to have been about the year of the World 3025. as appears by adding 40. (the years of Solomon's reign) to the 38 the year of the World when Solomon began to reign; and about the 38 year after the Temple was begun, for there were 37 years compleat after it from the fourth year of Solomon, and therefore Rehoboam's first year must be in the 38 year, as appears by the Chronological Table for this Fifth Period.

In the very begining of his Reign, before he was fully establisht in his Throne, there fell from him, and so from the house of David, ten Tribes, upon occasion of his rough carriage towards the people, upon their desire to have their Taxes eased; and from that time forward there became a Division of two Kingdoms; the one being called the Kingdom of Judah, which did consist of two Tribes, viz. that of Judah and Benjamin (for their lots did joyn together, Jerusalem it self being partly in the bounds of the one Tribe and partly of the other, as appeareth by comparing Josh. 15. 63. with Judges 1. 21.) both which Tribes went commonly under the name of Judah, 1 Kings 12. 20. both in regard that Judah was to be inaugurated) 1 Kin. 12. 1. &c. to capitulate with him for an easment of their Taxes and burdens which Solomon had layd upon them; but upon the young Kings proud and tyrannical Answer (which he gave through the Counsel of his young Counsellors) there fell presently from him ten of the 12 Tribes, who set up Jeroboam to be their King, and so they became a distinct Kingdom by themselves, called the Kingdom of Israel, being indeed the greatest part of the Tribes of Israel.

It is oftentimes also called by the name of Ephraim; partly, because that Jeroboam the first King thereof was of that Tribe, as it seems by 1 Kings 11. 26. partly also in regard that both Shechem (the first Metropolis of that Kingdom) was in the Territories of Ephraim, 1 Kings 12. 25. and so also was Samaria (which afterward was made the chief City of that Kingdom) being built by Omri, 1 Kings 16. 24.

Jeroboam presently after he was set up to be King of Israel, out of carnal policy (fearing that the people, by their their yearly going to worſhip at Jeruſalem, might revolt from him) did ſet up the golden Calves, the one at Dan, the other at Bethel, the which were continued by all the Kings of Iſrael afterward, and was the cauſe and ground of their ſubverſion and final Captivity, 2 Kings 17. 12. to Verſ. 19.

As Jeroboam was ſacrificing before his Calf at Bethel, a Prophet came and propheſied of the burning of the bones of thoſe Prieſts that did ſacrifice there, by Joſiah by name, 1 Kings 13. 1, 2. which was fulfilled about the twelfth year of Joſiah, 2 Chron. 34. 3. to 7. which, from the begining of Jeroboam's reign (for I conceive it was when the Calf and Altar were newly ſet up) was about 340 years after.

Toward the latter end of his reign, that great Battel was fought between Judah and Iſrael, wherein the men of Judah, being but half ſo many as Iſrael, had the victory given them by the Lord, and ſo remarkable a victory it was, as that they ſlew 500000 of the Iſraelites, which

K. of JUDAH.

Judah was far the greater Tribe (the Tribe of Benjamin having been almoſt extinct, Judg. 21. 6.) and alſo in regard that thoſe who did reign over that Kingdom, were all of the houſe of David and Tribe of Judah, except onely Athaliah the Queen (an Uſurper) who was of the houſe of Omri and Tribe of Iſſachar, as it is conceived from 1 Chron. 27. 18. The other was called the Kingdom of Iſrael.

In the fifth year of Rehoboam, the Temple was plundered by Shiſhak King of Egypt, and robbed of the treaſures and ſhields of gold which Solomon had furniſhed it withall about 33 or 34 years before, 2 Chron. 12.

The ſeventeen years of Rehoboam's reign ſeem to have been compleat, becauſe his ſon, who ſucceeded him immediately upon his death, began to reign in the eighteenth year of Jeroboam King of Iſrael, 1 Kings 15. 1.

The years after the Temple.

hoboam, ſucceeded his Father, being the ſecond King of Judah, 1 Kings 14. 31. he began to reign in the eighteenth year of Jeroboam King of Iſrael, and reigned three years, 1 Kings 15. 1,2. 2 Chron. 13. 1,2. The begining of his Reign (being ſeventeen years compleat after the begining of Rehoboam's reign) is to be reckoned from the begining of the eighteenth year after it; and therefore was about 55 years after the Foundation of the Temple; as appeareth by adding ſeventeen to the year after the Temple at the begining of Rehoboam's reign; and about the year of the World 3042.

His third and laſt year was not compleat when he dyed, for his ſon Aſa (who ſucceeded him) began to reign in the twentieth year of Jeroboam, 1 Kings 15. 9. ſo that in Chronological account we muſt allow but two years for the time of his reign, becauſe his third was indeed the firſt year of his ſon's.

About the ſecond year of his reign (as it is very probable) he gathered 400000 men which was an 100000 more then there was of Judah. I conceive this was about the nineteenth year of Jeroboam's reign, and the ſecond of Abijam's; for it is not probable that Abijam could get ready ſo great an Army as 400000 preſently after his begining; It muſt require ſome time to gather them together, and to furniſh them for the War: Therefore it is like that it was not in the very firſt year of Abijam, which was concurrent with the eighteenth year of Jeroboam: neither doth it ſeem to have been in Abijam's third and laſt year (and he reigned but a part of that) for it is ſaid, Verſ. 20. that Jeroboam did not recover ſtrength all the days of Abijam; which doth imply, that there was ſome conſiderable time after that victory before the death of Abijam.

Jeroboam reigned 22 years, 1 Kings 14. 20. yet his laſt year was not compleat but current (and, as ſome conjecture, not above a month) for his ſon, who ſucceeded him after his death, began to reign in the ſecond year of

of Asa King of Judah, and Asa's first year was in the twentieth year of Jeroboam, 1 Kings 15. 9.

[b]

NADAB, the son of Jeroboam, was the second King of Israel, and began to reign in the second year of Asa King of Judah, 1 Kings 15. 25. He is said to have reigned two years, being slain by Baasha in the third year of Asa, 1 Kings 15. 25, 28. and so with him the regal power in Jeroboam's house ended; and well had it been that his sin also had ended then with him.

Note; Though Nadab is said to have reigned two years; viz. because he reigned in part of the second and third years of Asa; yet, in exact account, his Reign was but one compleat year, and very little more, if any thing at all; for he began after the second year of Asa was begun, and dyed before the third year was expired.

men, and so fighting with Jeroboam he worsted him, having an Army of 800000, 2 Chron. 13. 3. 17.

ASA, the son of Abijam, succeeded him, and was the third King of Judah: he began to reign in the twentieth year of Jeroboam King of Israel, 1 Kings 15. 8, 9. which was after the begining of the Temple about 57 years, for we must add but two years in account for Abijam's reign, though he is said to have reigned three years (but his third year was but current, and is reckoned for the first of Asa) and about the year of the World 3044.

About the fifteenth year of Asa (as it seems) was the Land of Judah invaded with that huge Army of a million of Ethiopians (as they are translated, which I do rather think were Cushites, as the Hebrew word is, and so our learned English Knight conceives them to be Arabians, that were not far off from Canaan, and not Ethiopians, for which he gives good reason in his first Book, cap. 8. §. 10. and the like mistake he thinks there is also in calling the woman, which Moses maryed, an Ethiopian, she being rather a Cushite then a Blackmore.) I say that Invasion of Judah by Zerah the Cushite, and the famous victory that Asa had over them, seems to have been about the fifteenth year of his reign, viz. about that time when all the people of the Land met and entered into a solemn Covenant, between the Lord and themselves, 2 Chron. 15. 10. which was in the fifteenth year of Asa: and that the Victory was but immediately before, appears by their offering to the Lord the same time, of the spoyl which they had brought, Vers. 11. As for that expression in 2 Chron. 14. 1. viz. That the Land had rest in the days of Asa ten years, viz. after the begining of his reign; from whence some are apt to think, that the war with Zerah was in the tenth year of Asa; I do rather think, that that speech might have reference to some conflict

Baasha, of the Tribe of Issachar, having slain Nadab, reigned in his stead, being the third King of Israel. He began to reign in the third year of Asa King of Judah, 1 Kings 15. 27, 28. and reigned 24 years, Vers. 33.

Note; That the 24 years of Baasha were not compleat; for neither was his first year full and perfect, his Predecessor having taken up part of it; nor yet his last, being little more then begun; for his son who succeeded him began to reign in the 26 year of Asa, 1 Kings 16. 6, 8.

But then here comes a great difficulty to salve; For if Baasha dyed in the 26 year of Asa, how can that be true which is said in 2 Chron. 16. 1. In the thirty sixth year of the reign of Asa, Baasha King of Israel came up against Judah, and built Ramah, &c. which must be ten years after he was dead?

I meet with three ways whereby this knot is endeavored to be untyed, and I confess confeſs I ſhould be glad to finde a fourth which might be more ſatisfactory.

1. The common and general anſwer (given by Lavater, Junius, Piſcator) is, that the 36 years mentioned in 2 Chro. 16. 1. is to be underſtood not of the Reign of Aſa (as it is tranſlated) but of the Kingdom, viz. in the 36 year of the Kingdom of Judah, over which Aſa did govern: and ſo Baaſha (according to this expoſition) came againſt Judah about the ſixteenth year of Aſa; for the ſixteenth year of Aſa was about 36 years after the Diviſion of Judah and Iſrael.

This I confeſs at the firſt ſight ſeems to be a very plauſible Anſwer, and is received as the moſt probable; yet to me the probability of it is queſtionable: Firſt, Becauſe that Interpretation of the word (in 2 Chron. 15. 19. the 35 year of the Kingdom of Aſa in ſtead of the reign of Aſa: and ſo again in Chap. 16. 1. in the 36 year of the Kingdom of Aſa) is altogether unuſual, and never ſo tranſlated in any other place (as far as I can finde) which ſpeak flict between Judah and Iſrael; for it is ſaid, 1 Kings 15, 16. There was war between Aſa and Baaſha King of Iſrael, all their days: The which, although it cannot well be underſtood of continual open acts of hoſtility by Invaſions one of another, for it is ſaid, there was reſt the firſt ten years of Aſa, 2 Chro. 14. 1. and again afterward from the fifteenth year of Aſa (when that ſolemn Covenant was entered into) it is intimated that the Lord gave them reſt round about (viz. for ſome conſiderable time) 2 Chron. 15. 15. which continued at the leaſt unto the 25 or 26 year of Aſa, viz. till about the very latter end of the reign of Baaſha: yet ſtill there was a continual enmity between them, and hoſtile preparations for defence of themſelves one againſt another, as in 2 Chron. 14. 6, 7, 8. and we read alſo of a great pit or ditch, which Aſa had made for fear of Baaſha, Jerem. 41. 9. ſo that it ſeems there was a continual hoſtility between theſe two Kings, although there was not an Invaſion into one one anothers Kingdom ſometimes for divers years together; yet (as appears by what is ſaid, that) between times there was: and partly alſo, becauſe we finde expreſs mention made that Asa had taken ſome Cities from the King of Iſrael in Mount Ephraim, 2 Chron. 15. 8. whereby, I ſay, it is probable that ſome acts of hoſtility there might be exerciſed between them about the tenth year of Asa; and yet the Land be ſaid to be quiet ten years, in regard that there was no invading one another all that time.

There is one moſt intricate and perplexed difficulty, which indeed ſeems to hold forth a kinde of contradiction, viz. that Baaſha King of Iſrael ſhould come up againſt Judah in the thirty ſixth year of Asa, 2 Chron. 16. 1. when as it ſeems that Baaſha was dead about ten years before, for he dyed in the twenty ſixth year of Asa, as appears by the begining of the reign of Elah who ſucceeded Baaſha in the twenty ſixth year of Asa, 1 Kings ſpeak of the Kings of Judah or Iſrael; but where ever the years of any of the Kings are mentioned, they are to be underſtood, not of the Kingdom of Judah, but of the time of their own Reign: and therefore why ſhould it be otherwiſe in this place? eſpecially conſidering that the years of Asa, mentioned but a very little before, muſt be underſtood of his Reign, and not of his Kingdom; as, viz. that ſolemn Covenant made (as it is ſaid, 2 Chron. 15. 10.) in the 15 year of Asa, could not poſſibly be in the 15 year of the Kingdom of Judah, for that was before he was King at all, viz. in the 15 year of the Reign of Rehoboam; why then ſhould it be probable, that in the 19 Verſe following, the years of Asa ſhould be ſpoken of in a far differing ſence, yet in the very ſame kinde of expreſſion? Secondly, Let it be but indifferently conſidered, and the very face of the ſtory will ſeem to look againſt this Expoſition and Anſwer: For upon their entering into that Covenant in 2 Chron. 15. 10. it is ſaid, That the Lord gave them Reſt round about them, them, Verſ. 15. which is mentioned as ſome ſpecial favor and teſtimony of the Lord's gracious acceptance of what they had done; and there is intimation alſo, that that Reſt was not for a ſhort time, but for ſome number of years; as in the 19 Verſe, the time of that Reſt ſeems to be particularly expreſſed, viz. unto the 35 year of Aſa. Now if that 35 year of Aſa is meant, not of the Reign but Kingdom of Aſa, that 35 year of his Kingdom will fall about the 15 year of his Reign (and ſo the Authors of this Opinion do underſtand it) and the 36 year of Aſa mentioned in the words that follow, viz. in 2 Chr. 16. 1. muſt ſignifie the 16 year of the Reign of Aſa: Then what other Engliſh can be made of the ſtory but this; viz. That upon that ſolemn Covenant in the 15 year of Aſa, the Lord did give them Reſt round about them, to the 15 year of his Reign? The which ſence I ſuppoſe no rational man would take to be the meaning in any probability.

2. Others do labor to eaſe this difficulty, by making two ſeveral beginings of Aſa's Reign; and yet neither do they all agree about the ſame: for Lyranus thinks that there was (beſides that begin-

1 Kings 16. 8. But the Anſwer unto this great and intricate difficulty is ſet down in the Notes collateral upon Baaſha King of Iſrael, which I conceive is the more proper place for it; and therefore I ſhall forbear wholy to ſpeak any thing at all unto it here.

Aſa in the thirty ninth year of his reign was much exerciſed with the gout, and that in very great extremity, 2 Chron. 16. 12. In which diſeaſe and trouble (it is noted of him by the Holy Ghoſt, that) he ſought not to the Lord, but to the Phyſitians, notwithſtanding that he was a good man for the main, having this Teſtimony given him, That he did that which was good and right in the eyes of the Lord, 2 Chron. 14. 2. and again, That his heart was perfect all his days, 2 Chron. 15. 17. yet he was not without his great infirmities and paſſions; for, beſides this now mentioned, oned, it is said, that he trusted and relyed upon the King of Syria, and not upon the Lord, for help against Baasha King of Israel, who infested him; 2 Chron. 16. 1. to Verse 9. and further, when he was reproved for it by a Prophet of the Lord, he was so wroth, and in such a rage with him for it, that he committed him to Prison: yea, and this also is further added of him, that he did greatly oppress and crush his people the same time, Vers. 10.

The time that he is said to have reigned was one and fourty years, 1 Kings 15. 10. and 2 Chron. 16. 13.

He dyed toward the very latter end of his one and fourtieth year (as I conceive) because otherwise the years of the reign of his son Jehoshaphat (who succeeded him) will not seem so fitly to accord with the years begining of his Reign upon the death of his Father Abijam, in the 20 year of Jeroboam) another account of the years of his reign, begining from his victory over Zerah (which that Author says was about the 11 year of his reign from the 20 year of Jeroboam, although I do believe it to be most probable, as is said before, that it was about the 15 year of Asa) and this latter he makes to be about 10 years after the former: and thus the 36 and 26 years might be one and the same, viz. the 36 year from the 20 year of Jeroboam, when he first began to reign, might be his 26 year from his victory over Zerah. And when it is said, that Baasha King of Israel began to reign in the 3d year of Asa, it is to be understood (according to the aforesaid Author) with respect to the begining of Asa's reign from that victory, which was 10 years after his first begining. And if Asa's reign be reckoned from his first begining, then Baasha might be said to go up against Judah in the 36 year of Asa. But some others apprehending what inconveniences would follow hereupon, and amongst the rest this for one, viz. That there must needs be a vacancy or Interregnum in the Kingdom of Israel of about ten ten years between the death of Nadab and the begining of Baaſha; have therefore deviſed another begining of Aſa's reign beſides and before that in the twentieth year of Jeroboam, viz. about the eleventh year of his grandfather Reboboam: and this they gather from 2 Chron. 11. 22. where it is ſaid, That Reboboam having many Children, intended to make his ſon Abijam King and chief amongſt his Brethren; and therefore (as Paludanus thinks, who is for this Opinion) he did deſign (about the eleventh year of his reign) not onely that Abijam ſhould ſucceed himſelf, but alſo that Aſa the ſon of Abijam ſhould ſucceed his Father: And thus in theſe divers reſpects Baaſha might come up againſt Judah in the 36 year of Aſa, viz. from that eleventh year of Reboboam, and yet that be but his 26 year from the time that he began to reign after the death of his Father Abijam. But this Anſwer is built altogether upon fanſies and improbabilities.

3. Some others do take a ſhorter way to cut the knot, by apprehending an error and miſtake in the Hebrew Copy by one of the firſt Amanuenſes, writing 36 in ſtead of 26, which others afterward following, the error and miſtake is now continued. Thus Cajetan and Canus (lib. 11. cap. 5. ad arg. 12.) And ſo indeed Baaſha might go up againſt Judah in the 26 year of Aſa, though it were not long before he dyed (for the 26 year of Aſa was the laſt of Baaſha.) But this ſolution may be accounted years of the Kings of Iſrael which were contemporary with him.

Aſa reigned in the time of the Reign of ſix Kings of Iſrael one after another; as, viz. in ſome part of Jeroboam's, and all the time of Baaſha, Elah, Zimri, Omri, and in ſome part alſo of Ahab's time.

counted a correction rather then an Interpretation of the Scripture. I shall not determine any thing about this difficulty, I confess hic haret aqua: and if Sphalma graphicum may be admitted, this is one of the two places that I would give way unto for it.

ELah, the son of Baasha, succeeded his father (being the fourth King of Israel) and began to reign in the twenty sixth year of Asa King of Judah, and reigned two years, 1 Kings 16. 8, 10.

His two years will hardly yield one year in Chronological account, for his first year was the last year of his Father Baasha, and his second was the first year of his Successors, viz. Zimri and Omri.

ZImri, one of Elah's Captains, having killed his Master, reigned in his stead, being the fifth King of Israel: He began to reign in the 27 year of Asa King of Judah, and reigned but seven days, 1 Kings 16. 9, 10, 15, 16. for the people hearing of his Murder, did set up Omri to be King, and went to besiege him in Tirzah, who (rather then he would be taken) burnt the house over his head, and so he dyed a murtherer of himself, as he had been of his Master.

Omri

OMri, another of the Captains of Elah, was made King (being the ſixth King of Iſrael) by the people and ſouldiers, who encamping againſt Gibbethon, and hearing of Zimri's murdring of Elah, and of his uſurping the Kingdom, came againſt him and forced him to burn the houſe (wherein he was) over his own head, 1 Kings 16. 16, 17, 18.

Upon the death of Zimri there aroſe a Diviſion in Iſrael, the one part ſetting up Tibni, the other part following Omri: and this continued (as it ſeems) about four years, viz. from the 27 year of Aſa to his 31 year; but Tibni dying, Omri reigned over all Iſrael, Verſ. 21, 22. with 15, 16.

It is ſaid, Verſ. 23. that Omri began to reign in the 31 year of Aſa King of Judah; but we muſt underſtand it of his begining to reign over all Iſrael, for he began to reign over one

[g]

AHab, the ſon of Omri, began to reign over Iſrael (being the ſeventh King thereof) in the 38 year of Aſa King of Judah, and reigned 22 years, 1 Kings 16. 29.

About the eighteenth year of Ahab did Benhadad King of Syria beſiege Samaria where Ahab dwelt, 1 Kings 20. 1. &c. but the Lord did deliver the Syrians into the hands of Iſrael, Verſ. 21.

The year following, Verſ. 22, 26. Benhadad came again with a great Hoſt againſt Iſrael; and was again alſo overthrown, for an 100000 of the Syrians were ſlain; where-Ahab. ISRAEL. whereupon Benhadad ſent meſſengers in a ſubmiſſive manner with ropes about their necks unto Ahab to beg his favor. This ſeems to have been about the 19 year of Ahab's reign; for in the third year after that (having been without War with the Syrians) Ahab went, together with Jehoſaphat, to war againſt Ramoth-Gilead, 1 Kings 22. 1, 2. &c. which was about the very end of Ahab's 21 year; for he being ſlain in that War, his ſon ſucceeded him in the ſeventeenth year of Jehoſaphat, about the latter end of it, 1 Kings 22. 51.

About the twentieth year of Ahab (for it is ſaid, 1 Kings 21. 1. &c. after thoſe things, viz. the former War with the Syrians, mentioned in Chap. 20.) it ſeems it was that Ahab (through the malicious device of that curſed woman his wife Jezabel) did take away both the Vineyard and life of Naboth.

Towards the latter end of JUDAH. Jehoſaphat. appears alſo upon the ſame ground.

In the third year of his Reign (being a godly man, and one of the beſt Kings of Judah, for he walked in the ways of David, 2 Chron. 17. 3.) he ſent Levites with his Princes, to teach and inſtruct his people, up and down the Land, in the Law of the Lord, 2 Chron. 17. 7, 8, 9. Howbeit he was not without his failings, for he joyned in amity and affinity and partnerſhip with wicked Ahab and his houſe, for which he was reproved and had witneſs born againſt him from the Lord.

About the ſeventeenth year of his Reign, he went to help Ahab to recover Ramoth-Gilead from the Syrians; for it was towards the end of the 21 year of Ahab, who being killed in that expedition, was entering upon his 22 year, 2 Chron. 18. ſee 1 Kings 16. 29. In that ſame year alſo (as it ſeems) did Jehoſaphat ſubſtitute his ſon Jehoram to be Viceroy, in his ſtead, when he was to go forth about that undertaking.

About his eighteenth year his Navy was broken, which ſhould have gone to Tarſhiſh in partnerſhip with Ahaziah King of Iſrael, 2 Chron.

2 Chron. 20. 35, 36, 37. For Ahaziah began to reign in the ſeventeenth year of Jehoſaphat, and dyed in the eighteenth year, viz. in the year following; becauſe it is ſaid, that Jehoram (who ſucceeded Ahaziah) began to reign in the eighteenth year of Jehoſaphat, 2 Kings 3. 1.

Notwithſtanding that Jehoſaphat had been reproved from the Lord, for joyning both with wicked Ahab, 2 Chron. 19. 1, 2. and alſo with Ahaziah (the ſon of Ahab) 2 Chron. 20. 37. yet he fell again the third time into the ſame ſin, in aſſiſting Jehoram (who ſucceeded Ahaziah) going forth with him againſt the Moabites, 2 Kings 3. 4, 5, 6. &c. In which deſign he and the other Kings with him were in danger of periſhing for want of water, but were at length ſupplyed by the means of Eliſha the Prophet, and had alſo a great Victory given them. The time of which undertaking ſeems to have been towards the latter end of Jehoſaphat's Reign (for Jehoram King of Iſrael, with whom he joyned, did not begin to reign till the eighteenth year of Jehoſaphat:) it is probable that it was about his 22 year, becauſe then he ſet up again his ſon Jehoram to reign in of Ahab's 21 year, He and Jehoſaphat went together againſt the Syrians to recover Ramoth-Gilead (as was intimated a little before) for he was killed in that Expedition about the very begining of his 22 year.

Note; That the 22 year of Ahab was but very newly begun when he dyed (probably not above a month:) For from the 38 year of Aſa King of Judah (when he began to reign) unto the eighteenth year of Jehoſaphat, when his ſecond ſon (viz. Jehoram, who ſucceeded his Brother Ahaziah) began to reign, 2 Kings 3. 1. there were not above 21 years compleat; as may plainly appear by the Chronological Table of this Fifth Period.

phat King of Judah, viz. towards the end of that year, which was whileſt his Father was living (as it ſeems) for he going to war againſt Ramoth-Gilead did (as alſo Jehoſaphat did at the ſame time) ſet up his ſon (as it is conceived) in his ſtead; and Ahab being ſlain in that undertaking, his ſon Ahaziah continued to reign over Iſrael, and is ſaid to have reigned in all about two years, 1 Kings 22 51. for by a Fall through a Latteſs from an upper chamber he fell ſick and ſoon dyed, 2 Kings 1. 2, 17.

Note, 1. That the two years of his Reign were not compleat, poſſibly they might make up one whole year; for he began to reign towards the latter part of the ſeventeenth year of Jehoſaphat, and in the eighteenth year his brother Jehoram ſucceeded him.

Note, 2. That the two years of his reign do add nothing to the number of years in the Chronological account of the years of in his ſtead, 2 Kings 8, 16. viz. (as it is probable) upon his going to war abroad, as he had done before when he went with Ahab to recover Ramoth-Gilead.

Note, That although it be ſaid that Jehoſaphat reigned 25 years, and his ſon Jehoram after him eight years, which together are 33 years, yet in Chronological account there were not above 29 years in the reign of them both: becauſe Jehoſophat did ſet up his ſon Jehoram whileſt he himſelf was alive, 2 Kings 8. 16. which was about the 22 year of his reign: ſo that the four laſt years of his reign, and the four firſt years of his ſon Jehoram, were not eight but four years, ſeeing both of them did reign together at that time.

Note alſo; That Jehoſaphat is ſometimes ſtiled King of Iſrael, 2 Chron. 21. 2. not becauſe he reigned over the ten Tribes, which were called the Kingdom of Iſrael; for Ahab and his ſons after him were the Kings of Iſrael at that very time when he was King of Judah: but in a large acceptation of Iſrael, viz. in regard that Judah and Benjamin (over whom he reigned) were of the Poſterity of Iſrael, as well as the other Tribes, and there-Jehoſaphat. JUDAH. therefore alſo ſometimes the people of the Kingdom of Judah have the Name and Title of Iſrael; as in 2 Chron. 12. 1. and 15. 17. and 21. 4. and 28. 23. And again poſſibly there might be this reaſon for it, viz. becauſe there were very many of Iſrael, who (upon the Apoſtaſie of Jeroboam) did cleave to the Kingdom of Judah, 2 Chron. 11. 13, 16. and afterward alſo divers of them were brought back, even in the days of Jehoſaphat, as is intimated in 2 Chron. 19. 4.

In the time of Jehoſaphat's reign it was that Elijah the Prophet was tranſlated and taken up into Heaven in a fiery Chariot; which was (as it is very probable) about the nineteenth year of his Reign; for it was not before the death of Ahaziah King of Iſrael, as appears by 2 Kings 1. 3, 16, 17. and he dyed in the eighteenth year of Jehoſaphat, for in that year Jehoram King of Iſrael ſucceeded him, 2 Kings 3. 1. And yet it could not be much after the nineteenth year of Jehoſophat (if any thing at all) becauſe Eliſha, who was a Prophet in ſtead of Elijah, began to propheſie when he was taken up into Heaven, 2 Kings 2. 14, 15. and the begin-

JEhoram, alias Joram (for he is called by the one name and the other, 2 Kings 1. 17. and 8. 16. and 9. 14. even as alſo the King of Judah, who was his Contemporary, was ſo called by the very ſame names) he ſucceeded his Brother Ahaziah (who dyed childleſs) and began to reign over Iſrael (being the ninth King in that Kingdom) in the eighteenth year of Jehoſaphat King of Judah, and reigned twelve years, 2 Kings 3. 1.

There is a Queſtion about the year of the begining of the Reign of this this Jehoram, the ground and occaſion whereof is, becauſe (notwithſtanding it be ſaid expreſly in 2 Kings 3. 1. that he began to reign in the eighteenth year of Jehoſaphat King of Judah; yet in another place) it is ſaid, viz. in 2 Kings 1. 17. That he began to reign in the ſecond year of Jehoram the ſon of Jehoſaphat King of Judah.

But the Anſwer hereunto is, That both thoſe ſeeming different years were one and the ſame: For Ahaziah (as is generally conceived) being appointed to rule and govern the Kingdom, when his Father Ahab went to war againſt Ramoth Gilead (which was about the end of the ſeventeenth year of Jehoſaphat King of Judah) the which power of Government (his Father being ſlain in that undertaking) he held for a little ſpace after his Fathers death: and himſelf dying a little after by a Fall from an upper chamber, in the JEhoram, alias Joram (for he was called by the one name and by the other, this latter being but the contract of the former, 2 Kings 8. 16, 21, 23, 24.) the ſon of Jehoſaphat, ſucceeded his Father (being the fifth King of Judah) 1 Kin. 22. 50. 2 Chro. 21. 1. The begining of his Reign ſeems to have been about the 119 year after the begining of the Temple, as appeareth by adding 21 to the year after the Temple when Jehoſaphat began to reign; for although he is ſaid to have reigned 25 years, yet we are to account but 21 years compleat in Chronological reckoning, becauſe his ſon Jehoram (as it ſeems) did begin to reign, whileſt he was alive, 2 Kings 8. 16. viz. about the begining of the 22 year of his reign; and conſequently about the year of the World 3106.

The years after the Temple.

Jehoram. JUDAH.

There are three great Chronological difficulties about the reign of this Jehoram King of Judah.

viz. about { 1. the begining of his reign. 2. his age when he began to reign. 3. the years and time how long it was.

¶ The first difficulty concerning the begining of his Reign, is in what year we are to place it: the occasion of which ariseth from the different expressions in the Scripture about it; for in one place it is said, that he began to reign one year before the other Jehoram King of Israel, 2 Kings 1. 17. Jehoram King of Israel reigned in the second year of Jehoram King of Judah: And in another place it is said, that this Jehoram King of Judah began to reign four or five years after the other, 2 Kings 8. 16. thus, In the fifth year of Joram King of Israel, Jehoram the son of Jehoshaphat began to reign. I confess these two places do give occasion of a great scruple. But for the Reconciliation of those two places, and the removing of the scruple and difficulty, some would make two beginings of the Reign of this Jehoram, and three beginings of the Reign of the other Jehoram King of Israel, viz. thus; This Jeho-

the very next year, immediately his Brother Jehoram (viz. this Jehoram) did succeed him, which was in the eighteenth year of Jehoshaphat, and yet that eighteenth year of Jehoshaphat, or first year of Jehoram King of Israel, might also be said to be the second year of Jehoram the son of Jehoshaphat, for he also (as is said) had appointed his son Jehoram to rule and govern the Kingdom at his going forth, when he did accompany Ahab to Ramoth Gilead; where he stayd (as it seems) till the next year was begun, which was the eighteenth year of his own, and the second year of his son's Reign. But something is spoken to this purpose in the Notes upon Jehoram King of Judah, who was his Contemporary.

In the time of this Kings Reign, Elisha began to prophesie in Israel, and (as it seems) about the second year of it, it, which was also the nineteenth year of Jehoshaphat King of Judah, immediately after the taking of Elijah up into Heaven; which (as it is very probable) was about that year, as is said in the Notes upon Jehoshaphat's Reign. Now that Elisha did begin to propheſie about the second year of this Jehoram King of Israel, doth seem to appear, as by the time when Elijah was taken up into Heaven (for then the Spirit of Propheſie did rest from that time forward upon the head of Elisha;) so also by the passages of things which were done in the time of the Reign of Jehoram, which was twelve years, viz. thus; Elisha traveling often unto Shunem, where a pious Gentlewoman did courteously entertain him, providing a Chamber with convenient furniture therein for him, as he was to come and go to and fro that way, 2 Kings 4. 8, 9. &c. The Prophet by way of grate-

JUDAH. Jehoram.

Jehoram King of Judah did first begin to reign in the fifth year of his Father Jehoshaphat, viz. when Jehoshaphat took Athaliah the daughter of Ahab to wife to his son Jehoram, and then for the more firm settling him in the Kingdom, did joyn him to reign with himself: (thus Paludanus and Sanctius:) which they gather from 2 Ki. 8.16. In the fifth year of Joram the son of Ahab, and of Jehoshaphat (i. e. say they, in his fifth year also) did Jehoram the son of Jehoshaphat begin to reign: But it will be (I believe) no easie matter to bring the fifth year of Ahab, and the fifth year of Jehoshaphat together, seeing that Jehoshaphat began to reign in the fourth year of Ahab. The second begining of his reign was about 20 years after, viz. at the death of Jehoshaphat, when he began to reign alone. And the three beginings of the other Jehoram's reign they make to be these; First, when his Brother Ahaziah fell sick by his Fall, then (they say) Jehoram was set up as Assistant in the Government, and that was about the 18 year of Jehoshaphat; and of this begining they understand that place in 2 Ki. 3.1. The second was when the Prophet Elijah told Ahaziah that he should not recover from his sickness, whereupon (they conceive) Jehoram was appointed to exerciſe Kingly authority in his own name; which, they ſay, was about the 21 year of Jehoſaphat; and from thence, they ſay, Jehoram the ſon of Jehoſaphat began to reign (after his Fathers death) in the fifth year of Jehoram King of Iſrael, as in 2 *Kin.*8.16. And the third was after the death of Ahaziah King of Iſrael, which was (as they ſay) the year after the death of Jehoſaphat; and from thence, Jehoram King of Judah is ſaid to begin to reign before him, as in 2 Ki. 1.17. But this way of curing one doubt doth multiply more, and conſiſts upon many uncertainties, and doth alſo multiply divers beginings of the Reign of both theſe Jehoram's without neceſſity.

Others therefore (with more probability) do endeavor to ſalve this difficulty by making only two beginings of the reign of this Jehoram, and both of them in the time of his Father Jehoſaphat (for that he did reign whileſt he lived, is ſaid expreſly in 2 *Kin.*8.16.) the firſt was (not in the fifth year of Jehoſaphat, as ſome, before mentioned, have affirmed, but) about the latter end of the 17 year of Jehoſaphat, viz. (as is conceived) about that time when he went with Ahab to recover Ramoth-Gilead; grateful requital obtained for her (being barren) a Son from the LORD, which ſon after ſome years fell ſick and dyed; whereupon the Prophet, being fetcht, he reſtoreth him to life again. After theſe things, there coming a Famine into the Land for about ſeven years together, the woman goes and dwells all that ſpace in the Country of the Philiſtins: the Famine being ended, ſhe returned and came again into her own Land in Iſrael, before that King Jehoram was dead (for to him it was that ſhe preſented a Petition for her Land, which had been taken up and poſſeſſed by ſome others in the time of her abſence) 2 Kings 8. Verſ. 1. to 7.

Now all theſe things being duly conſidered, the time when Eliſha did begin to propheſie ſeems neceſſarily to have been at the lateſt about the ſecond year of the Reign

Reign of this Jehoram King of Iſrael: for reckon backward from the time when the woman did again return home from the Land of the Philiſtins, which was about the eighth year after the Famine began; then ſuppoſe that her childe before that was but between two and three years old when it dyed, and leſs it cannot well be imagined, for he was able to go into the Field to his Father, and to complain of the pain in his head; and one year more there muſt be allowed for that which was before the birth of the childe, as, viz. the time of the mothers conceiving and bearing of it, and of her entertaining of the Prophet going and coming before that: all which being put together, do plainly hold it forth, that the time when Eliſha did begin to propheſie could not eaſily be after the ſecond year of the Reign of this Jehoram, Gilead; and in reſpect of this, he may be ſaid to begin to reign a year before the other Jehoram King of Iſrael, who is ſaid to begin to reign in the 18 year of Jehoſaphat, 2 Kin. 3.1. And the ſecond was about the 22 year of Jehoſaphat, who might then ſet up his ſon to reign with him, either by reaſon of his own age (being about 57 years old) or of his going abroad to war, helping Jehoram King of Iſrael againſt Moab, as in 2 Kin. 3.7. Now this begining of the reign of Jehoram King of Judah doth exactly concur with the fifth year of the other Jehoram, viz. the King of Iſrael, according to 2 Kin. 8.16. and from thence he continued his regal power after his Fathers death; neither ſhall we need to make a third begining of his reign, when his Father dyed.

The years after the Temple.

¶ The ſecond Doubt or Difficulty is about his Age when he began to reign.

I confeſs his Age is ſo expreſly and ſo often ſet down (viz. three ſeveral times) that he was 32 years old when he began to reign, as in in 2 Kin. 8.17. and 2 Chron. 21.5. and again Verſ. 20. oftener then (I think) the age of any of the Kings beſides; that it may ſeem to be altogether out of queſtion.

But

Jehoram. JUDAH.

But yet that which is a ground or occasion of the scruple or question about his age when he began to reign, is this; viz. If he was 32 years old when he began to reign, and reigned eight years (as it is said in all those three places mentioned) then he must be about 40 years old, and no more, when he dyed; and yet it is said, that his son Ahaziah or Jehoahaz (who succeeded him, and was also his youngest son, the rest being taken and slain by the Philistins and Arabians, 2 Chron. 21. 16, 17 and 22. 1.) was 42 years old when he began to reign, 2 Chron. 22. 2. whereby the youngest son must either be two years elder then his Father; or else there must be (as it seems) an Interregnum or vacancy in the Kingdom of Judah for divers years after the death of Jehoram, before his son Ahaziah did begin to reign; the which latter cannot be granted, for Ahaziah began to reign in the twelfth year of Jehoram King of Israel, and that was about the eighth year after this Jehoram King of Judah did begin to reign, for he began in the fifth year of the other Jehoram, 2 Kin. 3. 1. and he is said to have reigned eight years.

This knot is generally acknowledged

ISRAEL. Jehoram, or the nineteenth year of Jehoshaphat, which was all one. From which year we shall finde he continued a Prophet in Israel about sixty years, for he dyed in the days of Joash King of Israel, 2 Kings 13. 14.

In the twelfth year of the Reign of Jehoram, Jehu (one of his Captains) being, by the Lord's appointment, anointed to be King in his stead, came out against him, and killed him, and also cut off all the house and Posterity of Ahab, according to the Word of the Lord in 1 Kings 21. 21, 22. and so reigned in his room.

ledged to be more difficult then the former; and by ſome, to be the moſt intricate of all other, if not altogether indiſſoluble. Piſcator ingenuouſly confeſſeth, hanc equidem quæſtionem ſolvere non poſſum, that he cannot anſwer it: And to the ſame purpoſe do Lavater and Diodati expreſs themſelves: and generally all Expoſitors do ſpeak of this 2 Chron. 22. 2. as of a moſt obſcure place. Paludanus ſays, hic hæreo, here I ſtick faſt: and profeſſeth, that he thinks the Truth in this place is yet hidden from the World. The Anſwers unto this difficulty I ſhall refer to the Notes on the next King of Judah, where (as I conceive) there is more fit occaſion to ſpeak unto it. Onely for the preſent, this I believe may be affirmed as the Truth, viz. That this Jehoram was 32 years old when he began to reign, becauſe it is ſo often expreſſed in the Scripture.

¶. The third Scruple and Difficulty is about the time and number of years which he reigned.

The Scripture doth alſo expreſs it in the three places already mentioned, viz. That he reigned eight years. But then the queſtion here will be (ſeeing he had a double begining of his reign) whence we are to begin the account of thoſe eight years? whether from the ſeventeenth year of Jehoſaphat (which was the year of his firſt begining to reign) or from the 22 year? The Anſwer to this is not ſo difficult; cult; for it ſeems plainly that thoſe eight years are to be reckoned from the 22 year of Jehoſaphat, becauſe from thence to the twelfth year of Jehoram King of Iſrael (who began to reign in the eighteenth year of Jehoſaphat, 2 Kings 3. 1.) are juſt eight years: in the which twelfth year, Ahaziah (who ſucceeded this Jehoram) is ſaid to begin his Reign, 2 Kings 8. 25.

The years after the Temple.

Jehoram. JUDAH. ISRAEL. Jehoram.

Note, firſt, That the eight years of this Jehoram are not all to be reckoned in Chronological account, but onely the four laſt of them; becauſe the firſt four years of them he reigned with his Father Jehoſaphat: ſo that if we account 25 years to the Reign of Jehoſaphat, then there are to be allowed but four diſtinct years unto Jehoram: or if we allow eight years to the reign of Jehoram's reign, then but 22 years at the utmoſt are to be accounted to Jehoſaphat's.

Note, ſecondly, That the laſt year of Jehoram's reign was not fully ended when he dyed; for his ſon Ahaziah (who ſucceeded him) began to reign in that year, and ſo it is reckoned as the year of his Reign (for he reigned but one year) and the year after the death of Jehoram is accounted as the firſt year of Athaliah, who ſucceeded Ahaziah.

Though this Jehoram was the ſon of one of the beſt Kings of Judah, yet he himſelf was one of the worſt of them; for he walked in the ways of Ahab (whoſe daughter, Athaliah, he had marryed); and killed killed all his Brethren, and divers alſo of the Princes, 2 Chro. 21. 4. whereupon the hand of the Lord was againſt him, for Edom revolted from under Judah, and ſo did Libnah alſo, Verſ. 10. moreover the Lord ſtirred up the Philiſtins and Arabians, who went up againſt him, and plundered him of all his ſubſtance, and carryed away his Wives and Children (all but Jehoahaz or Ahaziah, the youngeſt) and ſlew them; Verſ. 16, 17. with 2 Chron. 22. 1. After all which the Lord ſmote him with an incurable diſeaſe in his bowels for about two years, and at length his guts fell out; ſo he dyed in a very loathſom manner, not being deſired, Verſ. 16. to 20. All which came to paſs according to a Letter or writing which was ſent to him from the Prophet Elijah, Verſ. 12. to 16.

About which writing of Elijah, there is a great Queſtion how it could come to Jehoram from that Prophet, who was taken into Heaven about the 19 year of Jehoſaphat? Divers conjectures are propounded about it: ſome think it was ſent from Heaven unto him; others, that the Prophet might leave it written behinde him: others conceive that Elijah is put in ſtead of Eliſha, or Elias for Elizeus, by the miſtake of a letter. I conceive we need not run after ſuch conjectures, ſeeing that Jehoram being ſet up to govern in the 17 year of Jehoſaphat (as is ſaid) he might expreſs his wickedneſs in his Fathers abſence, and ſo Elijah might ſend that writing unto him before his tranſlation.

Haziah, or Azariah, or Jehoahaz (for ſo he is ſometimes called, as 2 Chron. 21. 17. and 22. 1. 6.) being the youngeſt ſon of Jehoram (for all the other ſons were ſlain by the Arabians, and them that came with them, 2 Chron. 22. 1.) ſucceeded Jehoram, and was the ſixth King of Judah, and is ſaid to have reigned but one year, 2 Chron. 22. 1. There are two Chronological Queſtions about his Reign.

¶ The firſt Queſtion is concerning the year when he began to reign; viz. In what year of Joram King of Iſrael it was that he began?

The ground of this Queſtion ariſeth from comparing of two places; viz. 2 Kings 8. 25. where it is ſaid, that he began in the twelfth year of Joram; and 2 Kings 9 29. where it is ſaid, he did begin to reign in the eleventh year of Joram.

Two or three things are given in by way of Anſwer to this Queſtion. 1. Some think that Ahaziah had a double begining of his reign, viz. one whileſt his Father Jehoram lived, which was in the eleventh year of Jehoram King of Iſrael; and the other upon the death of his Father, which was the year after: but this I look at as a meer fanſie. 2. Others do rather conceive that Joram King of Iſrael had a double begining of his Reign, viz.

firſt,

ISRAEL. Jehoram.

JUDAH. Ahaziah first, in the time of his brother Ahaziah, King of Iſrael, who by a Fall through a Latteſs, being unfit for publique affairs, they might ſet up Joram to reign as Viceroy; according to which, Ahaziah King of Judah might begin in the eleventh year of Joram King of Iſrael. The ſecond was after the death of his brother Jehoram, which was the year after; and in reſpect of this Ahaziah did begin to reign in the twelfth year of Joram King of Iſrael. But the third and more probable Anſwer ſeems to be that which is given by Junius and Piſcator; viz. that he began to reign in the very end of the eleventh year of Joram, and ſo upon the begining of his twelfth; and therefore they read the words of the one place thus, anno undecimo completo, i. e. in the very end of the eleventh year: and of the other place thus, anno duodecimo ineunte, i. e. in the very begining of the twelfth year. So that the begining of his Reign ſeems to have been about 126 years after the Foundation of the Temple, as appears by adding ſeven to the years after the Temple at the begining of his Father Jehoram's reign; for although Jehoram is ſaid to have reigned eight years, yet we are to account but ſeven years, becauſe his eighth and laſt is reckoned for the year in which this Ahaziah did reign; and about the year of the World 3113.

¶ The ſecond Queſtion (which indeed is one of the moſt vexing of all the Queſtions about the Kings) is concerning his Age when he began his Reign?

This Queſtion ariſeth from 2 Chron. 22. 1, 2. compared with the age of his Father Jehoram when he dyed; for in that place it is ſaid, that Ahaziah was 42 years old when he began to reign, and yet his Father was but fourty at his death, as appears before in the Notes upon the reign of Jehoram King of Judah. Now the Queſtion then is, How it could be poſſible for the ſon, and the youngeſt too, to be 42 years old, when the Father himſelf was but fourty? This Queſtion hath ſtrained the wits of Interpreters to finde out a ſatisfying Anſwer; and yet, I confeſs, none of all the Anſwers (though they be many) that are given, which I do meet withall, do fully ſatisfie: the moſt ſpecial whereof are as followeth.

1. It is thought by ſome, that there is an error or miſtake of the Amanuenſis, writing 42 in ſtead of 22: but this Anſwer is not to be thought ſo ſafe, in regard it may open a gap that cannot eaſily be ſtopt.

2. Others therefore ſay, that he reigned twenty years with his Father Jehoram, before he reigned alone, and was 22 years old when he began that reign, and 42 when he reigned alone after his Fathers death. Thus (it is ſaid) the Jewiſh D. D. uſed to expound expound that place in 2 Chron. 22. 2. and ſo Jerome and Zuarez, Azorius, and Lavater (who yet acknowledgeth that he was not ſatisfied with that or any other Expoſition that he could meet withall.) But againſt this it is replyed, 1. That this Anſwer doth not a whit eaſe the ſcruple; for ſtill the ſon muſt be two years elder then the Father, for his Father was but fourty when he dyed at the end of his eight years reign; and Ahaziah is ſaid to be then 42. 2. It is unreaſonable to think that there ſhould be three Kings at the ſame time together in one Kingdom, as this Anſwer doth imply; for Jehoſaphat, and Jehoram, and this Ahaziah, muſt reign all together, if ſo be that Ahaziah did reign twenty years with Jehoram. And, 3. it is a moſt unlikely and incredible thing, if the grand-childe ſhould be taken into the Government with the Father and Grandfather, that the very youngeſt of all the ſons of Jehoram ſhould be preferred before all the reſt of them, being then living.

ISRAEL. Jehoram.

JUDAH. Ahaziah. The years after the Temple.

3. It is ſaid by ſome others (which is almoſt the ſame with the former Anſwer, onely this ſeems to make the firſt begining of his reign ſooner by four or five years, then that doth) that he began at the firſt to reign in the fifth year of his Grandfather Jehoſaphat's reign; and was then 22 years old, and 42 years old when he began to reign alone: thus Sanctius. But againſt this, the reaſons againſt the former Anſwer do hold ſtrong; and beſides,

If

The years after the Temple.

Ahaziah. JUDAH. ISRAEL.
Jehoram.

If he was 22 years old in the fifth year of Jehoſaphat (who was then juſt fourty years old, for he was 35 when he began to reign) then Jehoſaphat muſt be but eighteen years old when his grand-childe Ahaziah was born; and ſo was the youngeſt grandfather that ever was in this world: and then how young muſt Jehoram be, the ſon of Jehoſaphat and Father of Ahaziah, conſidering alſo that Ahaziah was the youngeſt too?

4. Another Anſwer is, That thoſe 42 years are not to be underſtood of the age of Ahaziah himſelf, but of his Parents; viz. That his Father Jehoram was 42 years old, and his Mother Athaliah alſo was ſo old, when he began to reign: which they gather, partly from that phraſe in the Hebrew Text, which is thus, Ahaziah was the ſon of fourty two years old when he began to reign: and partly alſo by altering of the point between the firſt and ſecond Verſes of that 2 Chron. 22. and ſo reading the words thus; So Ahaziah the ſon of Jehoram King of Judah, who (i. e. Jehoram) was fourty two years old (or the ſon of fourty two years) when Ahaziah began to reign: Thus Paludanus; who yet doth himſelf acknowledg this Expreſſion and ſenſe to be improper. But againſt this Anſwer it may be ſaid, 1. That it is an uſual phraſe in the Hebrew language to expreſs the age of a perſon, by ſaying, he was the ſon of ſo many years: as Gen. 5. 32. Noah was the ſon of five hundred years when he begat his ſons: i. e. not that he was

was the ſon of ſuch a man who was 500 years old, but that himſelf was ſo old. Geneſ. 17. 1. Abraham was the ſon of 99 years when God renewed his Covenant with him: i. e. he was 99 years old. 2. It is more then can be proved, that either his Father or Mother were juſt 42 years old, when he began to reign: for it is apparent that his Father Jehoram was but fourty at his Death, as is ſaid before. 3. It is altogether unuſual in the Scripture to mention the age of the Father in ſetting down the begining of any of the Kings reigns: and if that had been intended in this place, I believe it would have been expreſſed more plainly then here it is.

5. Others go this way (which I ſee is moſt generally approved) viz. That thoſe 42 years are to be underſtood, not of the age of Ahaziah, but of the houſe of Omri (for Athaliah, the mother of this Ahaziah, was the grandchilde of Omri:) ſo that this, ſay they (viz. Broughton, Junius, and others) is the meaning of the place, viz. That Ahaziah began to reign in the 42 year of the houſe of Omri, or from the time that Omri and his houſe did begin to reign: and ſo indeed there ſeems to be about 42 years from that time when Ahaziah did begin to reign: For from the 31 year of Aſa (when Omri began to reign over all Iſrael when Tibni was dead) Omri reigned eight years, and Ahab 22 (in which the one year of Ahaziah King of Iſrael is included)

ded) and then Joram twelve years (in whoſe laſt year this Ahaziah King of Judah began to reign) which together do make up 42. And to ſtrengthen this Expoſition, they read the place by a Trajection, or tranſplacing the words, thus; Ahaziah the ſon of Joram King of Judah reigned: his mothers name was Athaliah, the daughter of Omri, who (i. e. Omri) was fourty two years old when Ahaziah began to reign. But againſt this it is objected, 1. That this manner of expounding of that phraſe, which ſets out the begining of his reign, is altogether various from the uſual manner of ſetting down the begining of the Reign of any of the Kings; as Piſcator ſheweth in a great many inſtances. And 2. If ſuch a tranſplacing of the words of Scripture may be allowed, it ſeems to give way to make quidlibet ex quolibet, and even a very noſe of wax, which may be bent this way and that.

6. There is yet another way (if it may be called another) which Mr. Ainſworth (on Gen. 5. 32.) doth mention, viz. That Ahaziah was the ſon of 22 years for his own life, but the ſon of 42 years for the ſtate of his Kingdom: What his meaning is, I muſt confeſs I do not well underſtand; for if by [the ſtate of his Kingdom] he meaneth the Kingdom of Iſrael, it is not a proper expreſſion, becauſe that was not his Kingdom; and if he meaneth the Kingdom of Judah, over which he reigned, then I do not ſee the Truth of it; for the ſtate of that Kingdom, ſince the renting of the ten Tribes from the houſe of David, had continued above twice 42 times, even neer upon an 100 years: therefore I leave his meaning to them that can pick it out.

For mine own part, I do believe that he was but 22 years old when he began to reign; accordingly as it is expreſſed in 2 Kings 8. 26. And as for that place in 2 Chron. 22. 2. where it is ſaid, he was 42 years old; if liberty might be allowed that way (as I ſaid before of one place) I ſhould chooſe this for a ſecond, to think there might poſſibly be ſome Sphalma graphicum: and indeed the Greek Tranſlation of the LXX do ſeem to intimate ſome ſuch thing; for there it is that Ahaziah was 22 years old when he began to reign. But I confeſs I would not be too bold this way.

The too much familiarity and correſpondence of Ahaziah with his Uncle Jehoram King of Iſrael, coſt him his life within the compaſs of a year after he began to reign: for Jehu having ſlain Jehoram, and meeting with Ahaziah, with 42 of his Courtiers, ſpared neither him nor any of the reſt alive.

ATHALIAH, the Queen-mother of Ahaziah, and wife of Jehoram, and the daughter of Ahab King of Iſrael, hearing that Jehu had ſlain her ſon Ahaziah, ſhe preſently murdered all the ſeed royal, except Joaſh, an Infant (whom his Aunt, the wife of Jehoiadah the High-Prieſt, did hide, with his Nurſe, in a Chamber of the Temple) and uſurping the Government of the Kingdom, reigned ſeven years, but not compleat, for ſhe was ſlain (as ſhe had ſlain others) in her ſeventh year, 2 Kings 11. 3, 4. &c. ſhe was the ſeventh that did reign over the Kingdom of Judah. The begining of her Reign (being the year after Ahaziah began to reign, who reigned but one year) ſeems by that account to have been about the 127 year after the Foundation of the Temple, and about the 3114 year of the World.

JEHU, one of the Captains of Joram King of Iſrael, having, by the Lord's commandment, ſlain the King his Maſter, was anointed to reign in his ſtead (being the tenth King of Iſrael) and reigned 28 years, 2 Kings 10. 36. he began to reign in the twelfth year of Joram, for it was in that year that he ſlew him, and ſo ſucceeded him: The begining of his Reign was juſt about the ſame time when Athaliah began to reign over Judah.

The 28 years of his reign ſeem to be compleat, for his ſon ſucceeded him in the 23 year of Joaſh King of Judah, 2 Ki. 13. 1. Now ſuppoſe that Joaſh began to reign in the very begining of Jehu's ſeventh year (for in that year he did begin his reign, 2 Kings 12. 1.) and again, though Jehoahaz the ſon of Jehu began to reign after his Father, in the very begining too of the 23 year of Joash; yet there were (as will eaſily appear by the Table of this Fifth Period) 22 years compleat, which together with the ſix years which he did reign in the time of Athaliah, do make up full 28 years.

Although for that ſervice which Jehu did, in cutting off the Poſterity of Ahab, the Lord promiſed that his Poſterity, even to the fourth Generation, ſhould reign (as it did alſo come to paſs) yet for Jehu's Idolatry the Lord did begin to cut Iſrael ſhort in his days, eſpecially the two Tribes and an half, 2 Kings 10. 32, 33. and afterwards in the time of his Poſterity, Iſrael was much more oppreſſed by Hazael and Benhadad.

JOaſh, or Jehoaſh (for ſo he is called, 2 Kings 11. 2, 21.) the ſon of Ahaziah, when Athaliah his Grandmother murthered the reſt of the ſeed royal, was preſerved by the care of his Aunt Jehoſhabeath, 2 Chron. 22. 10, 11, 12. and was made King over Judah when he was ſeven years old, 2 Chron. 24. 1. (being the eighth that reigned in that Kingdom.) He began to reign in the ſeventh year of Athaliah, 2 Kin. 11. 3, 4. which was about the 133 year after the Foundation of the Temple; as appears by adding the ſix compleat years, which Athaliah had reigned when he began, unto the year after the Temple when ſhe began to reign; and about the year of the World 3120.

He reigned fourty years, 2 Kings 12. 1.

About the 23 year of his Reign, he took order for the repairing of the Temple, which was grown into great decay, having many great breaches in it, 2 Kings 12. 6, 7. &c. which (as it ſeems by 2 Chron. 24. 7.) the ſons of that wicked woman Athaliah had made to deface and ſpoil the Temple, for the enriching of their Idolatrous Temple.

After the death of Jehoiadah (the good old High-Prieſt) who had ſet up this Joash to be King, he fell to Idolatry through the inſtigation of his Princes; for which Zachariah, the ſon of Jehoiadah, reproving them, was ſtoned to death at the commandment of the King, in the Court of the Lord's houſe: which was (as it ſeems probable) towards the latter end of his Reign, and about the 39 year of it; for in 2 Chr. 24. 21.

ISRAEL. Jehoahaz, compleat, and but little more then begun; for though he is ſaid to reign ſeventeen years, and his ſon Joaſh ſixteen (i. e. 33.) yet according to the computation of the years of the Kings of Judah, which were their Contemporaries, the years of both their reigns together were at the moſt not above 32.

There is a Queſtion how he can be ſaid to reign ſeventeen years, ſeeing that he began to reign in the 23 year of Joaſh, and his ſon (that ſucceeded him) in the 37 year of Joaſh; whereby it appears (though both the 23 and 37 years be included in the account) that there could be but fifteen years at the utmoſt. But for Anſwer, it is thought (by Junius, Paludanus, and others) that Joaſh the ſon of this Jehoahaz might reign as Vice-roy before his Fathers death, viz. about the 37 year of Joaſh King of Judah, and that Jehoahaz might reign to the 39 year of Joaſh.

In the days of this King the Syrians did greatly oppreſs Iſrael, in ſo much as they had left but fifty horſemen, and ten Chariots, and 10000 footmen; yet, upon his ſeeking to the Lord, he was heard (though he was a wicked man) and Iſrael was ſaved from under the hand of the Syrians, 2 Kings 13. 3, 4, 5.

JOaſh, the ſon of Jehoahaz, began to reign over Iſrael (being the twelfth King of that Kingdom) in the 37 year of Joaſh King of Judah, 2 Kings 13. 10. and reigned ſixteen years.

There is a queſtion or ſcruple about the begining of his Reign, viz. How he can be ſaid to begin to reign in the 37 year of Joaſh King of Judah? when as Jehoahaz (the Father of this Joaſh King of Iſrael) reigned ſeventeen years, begining in the 23 year of that Joaſh; and therefore the ſeventeen years muſt end in the 39 (at the leaſt) of that Joaſh. The Anſwer hereunto is intimated in the Notes of the Reign of Jehoahaz (the foregoing King of Iſrael) which briefly is this, viz. That this Joaſh King of Iſrael (as it ſeems) might have a double begining of his Reign: 1. In the time of his Father, about the 37 year of Joaſh King of Judah: and the other after his Fathers death.

Amaziah. JUDAH. The begining of his reign seems to have been about the 172 year after the Foundation of the Temple, as appeareth by adding 39 compleat years of the Reign of his Father Joash, unto the year after the Temple when he began to reign: for we are to account but 39 years for the time of the reign of Joash, because the fourtieth or last year is reckoned for the first of Amaziah; and about the year of the World 3159.

Note; That we are to account the 29 or last year of his reign as compleat and full, because that Jeroboam the King of Israel is said to begin his reign in the fifteenth year of Amaziah, and that Amaziah lived 15 years after in the time of that Jeroboam, 2 Chron. 25. 25. now those two fifteens or thirty, are 29 years compleat.

We read of two Battels which he fought; the one against the Edomites, whom he overthrew with a ISRAEL. Joash. death. But then hereupon ariseth another Question, viz. Where we are to begin the account of the sixteen years of his reign; whether from the 37 year of Joash King of Judah, or the 39 year when this Joash began to reign after the death of his Father? I confess the letter of the Text seemeth to hold forth, as if from the 37 year, 2 Kings 13. 10. where the begining of his reign in the said 37 year is joyned together with the sixteenth year of his reign; yet that it cannot easily be reckoned from that, seems to be apparent from the year wherein this Joash ended his life and reign, and when also his son Jeroboam began to reign after him, which was in the fifteenth year of Amaziah, 2 Kings 14. 23. for this Joash began to reign about a year before Amaziah (who did begin his reign in the second year of this Joash.) Now if Joash dyed not before the fifteenth year of Amaziah, then the sixteenth year of his reign could not begin in the 37, but 39 year of Joash King of Judah; for otherwise he must have reigned not sixteen, but eighteen years; therefore the account of his sixteen years must begin from the 39 year of Joash King of Judah, viz.

Joash. ISRAEL.

viz. when this Joash King of Israel began to reign alone after the death of his Father Jehoahaz: as may appear by reckoning backward from the death of this Joash (or the begining of the reign of his ſon Jeroboam) which was in the fifteenth year of Amaziah, unto the 39 year of Jehoash King of Judah.

As for that place, in 2 Kings 13. 9, 10. which ſeems to begin the ſixteen years of Joash at the 37 year of Jehoash King of Judah, it may be read by a Parentheſis, ſo as to diſ joyn them, thus; Jehoahaz ſlept with his Fathers, and they buryed him in Samaria, and Joash his ſon reigned in his ſtead (in the 37 year of Joash King of Judah began Jehoash the ſon of Jehoahaz to reign) over Iſrael in Samaria ſixteen years.

In the days of Joash, the Prophet Eliſha dyed (though the particular year be uncertain) for he came to viſit him in his ſickneſs whereof he dyed, 2 Kings 13. 14. whereby it appears, that he had been a Prophet about ſixty years, viz. from about the ſecond year of Joram King of Iſrael.

a great ſlaughter; whereupon he waxing proud and inſolent, ſent a challenge to Joash King of Iſrael; and their two Armies at length meeting, Amaziah, with the men of Judah, were worſted; and the King of Iſrael rid in triumph into Jeruſalem, where he brake down a great part of the Wall thereof, and carryed away the Treaſure which he found both in the Temple and in the houſe of the King. Theſe two Battels were fought in the former part of his reign (probably in the fourteenth or fifteenth year of it) for it is ſaid, that Amaziah lived after Joash, that King of Iſrael who overcame him, fifteen years, 2 Chron. 25. 25.

He falling into Idolatry, waxed inſolent; and being unproſperous, the people grew weary of him: he underſtanding their purpoſe to call him to account, or to deal with him for his miſcarriages, and thereupon fleeing UZziah or Azariah (for ſo he is named 2 Chron. 26. 1. 2 Kings 14. 21.) the ſon of Amaziah, began to reign over Judah (being the tenth that reigned in that Kingdom) in the 27 year of Jeroboam King of Iſrael, and reigned 52 years, 2 Kings 15. 1, 2. and 2 Chron. 26. 3.

There are two Queſtions about the begining of his Reign. The firſt Queſtion is from Matth. 1. 8. where it is ſaid, that Uzziah ſucceeded Joram; whereas in the Hiſtory and Chronicle of the Kings, he is ſaid expreſly to be the ſon of Amaziah, and to ſucceed him; and indeed there were four that reigned in Judah between Joram and Uzziah (viz. Ahaziah, Athaliah, Joaſh, and Amaziah)

ISRAEL. Jeroboam.

JEroboam, the ſecond of that name, the ſon of Joaſh King of Iſrael (the thirteenth King of that Kingdom) began to reign in the fifteenth year of Amaziah King of Judah, and reigned 41 years, 2 Kings 14. 23.

Note; That the firſt year of his Reign was in a manner concurrent with the fifteenth year of Amaziah; for Joaſh, the Father of this Jeroboam, dyed in the latter end of the fourteenth year, or, at the furtheſt, about the begining of the fifteenth year of Amaziah.

The 41 or laſt year of Jeroboam we may reckon as compleat, there being nothing appearing to the contrary; there being alſo (as it ſeems) an Interregnum or Vacancy in the Kingdom of Iſrael for about the ſpace of eleven years.

Zachariah, the ſon of Jeroboam the ſecond, and the fourth Generation of the houſe of Jehu, and the fourteenth King of Iſrael, began to reign in the 38 year of Uzziah King of Judah, and reigned ſix months, 2 Kings 15. 8.

Note; Uzziah. JUDAH. maziah:) why then doth the Evangeliſt ſo place him? Unto which it may be anſwered truly, That Uzziah was born of Joram, though not immediately as of his next Father, even as Jeſus Chriſt is ſaid, Verſ. 1. to be the ſon of David, and David to be the ſon of Abraham. But then if it be further demanded, why the Evangeliſt ſhould omit thoſe other which were between Joram and Uzziah? I ſuppoſe that is a Queſtion more curious then uſeful and neceſſary: ſome conjecture one thing, and ſome another; as, 1. Some ſay, the Evangeliſt, ſtriving to comprize the Genealogy of Chriſt from Abraham in three Fourteen Generations, was neceſſitated to leave out ſome in the ſecond Claſſis or Series. 2. Others; becauſe the Genealogy of the Kings of Judah being ordinarily known, he was the leſs exact to mention them all particularly. 3. Others again think, that they might be omitted becauſe of their evil Government, and unnatural deaths, each of them being ſlain one after another. Or, 4. poſſibly becauſe by the Mothers ſide they deſcended from the wicked ſtock of Ahab (for Joram marryed Athaliah the daughter of Ahab, 2 Chron. 21. 6.)

Uzziah. JUDAH. whose house the Lord doomed to be rooted out. But learned Perans (in my apprehension) speaks safest, viz. That the reason hereof is better to be left to the secret Will of God, then to be curiously enquired and sought for.

The other Question (which indeed doth more properly concern the matter of Chronology then the former) is this, viz. How it can be said that he began to reign in the 27 year of Jeroboam King of Israel, as it is expressed in 2 Kings 15. 1. when as his Father Amaziah (after whom this Uzziah immediately succeeded) lived but fifteen years after the begining of Jeroboam's reign, 2 Kings 14. 17? Unto which I meet with these three Answers.

1. Some answer this scruple, by saying, that Jeroboam King of Israel had a double begining of his reign; viz. 1. Whilest his Father Joash lived, with whom he reigned eleven years. The second when his Father dyed. Now according to the former, Uzziah might begin to reign in the 27 year of Jeroboam; and according to the latter, in his fifteenth or sixteenth year; and yet still both were but one and the same year.

2. Others

ISRAEL. Zachariah.

Note; That these six months of his reign must begin in the latter part of that 38 year of Uzziah, because Shallum (who succeeded Zachariah) is said to begin to reign in the 39 of Uzziah.

If it be questioned here, how Zachariah can be said to begin to reign in the 38 year of Uzziah King of Judah, seeing that Jeroboam, the Father of this Zachariah, dyed in the 26 year of Uzziah, as will easily appear by looking into the Chronological Table of this Fifth Period? It is answered, that there must be acknowledged an Interregnum or Vacancy in the Kingdom of Israel, from the 26 to the 38 year of Uzziah, which was about eleven compleat years: And whereas some do make that Interregnum to have been 22 years, the reason thereof is, because they begin the account of Uzziah's 52 year, not immediately from the death of his Father Amaziah, but about eleven eleven or twelve years after, viz. when he (being ſixteen years old) was ſet up to reign in full power by the people: But I do rather incline to that way which makes the Interregnum in Iſrael to be but eleven years: for the years of ſuch Vacancies are not to be multiplyed without extream neceſſity, viz. except there be no other way or means poſſible to avoyd it.

The reaſon or cauſe of this Interregnum in the Kingdom of Iſrael, is not expreſſed: poſſibly it might be either by reaſon of the minority of Zachariah when his Father dyed; or elſe (which I think is more probable) by reaſon of ſome great diviſions and diſſentions in the Kingdom.

Shal-

JUDAH. Uzziah.

2. Others ſay, that Uzziah had a double begining of his reign; the one whileſt his Father Amaziah was fled and gone to Lachiſh (where they imagine he might live about eleven or twelve years:) the other preſently after the death of his Father: and thus, according to the firſt account, he might begin to reign in the fifteenth year of Jeroboam, and according to the latter, in the 27 year.

3. Another Anſwer (which ſeems to be the more probable) is, That there was a kinde of Interregnum or Vacancy in the Kingdom of Judah about eleven years (viz. from about the 15 to the 27 year of Jeroboam King of Iſrael:) and ſo although Amaziah might be ſlain in the fifteenth year of Jeroboam, yet Uzziah might not be crowned, or be put into full poſſeſſion of the Kingly power, till the 27 year of Jeroboam: and probably the manner of expreſſing the begining of his reign (varying from the ordinary expreſſion of the begining of the other Kings reigns) may imply ſomething this way; for it is not ſaid, when Amaziah was ſlain, that Uzziah reigned in his ſtead, as is uſually ſaid; but thus, And all the people of Judah took Azariah (i. e. Uzziah) being ſix- teen years old, and made him King in ſtead of his Father, 2 Kings 14.21. and 2 Chron. 26.1. What the reaſon of ſuch a kinde of Interregnum was, is not expreſſed; it is likely it might be partly in regard of the minority of Uzziah (being, as it ſeems, but five years old at his Fathers death; for he was ſixteen years old in the 27 year of Jeroboam, when the people did ſet him up in full power;) and partly from the prevalency of ſome eminent perſons, who might have a chief hand in putting the King his Father to death.

Yet I call it a kinde of Interregnum, becauſe I am apt to believe that the eleven years (from his Fathers death in the fifteenth year of Jeroboam, unto the 27 year when Uzziah was ſet up King) were accounted in the number of the 52 years which he is ſaid to reign; and that the Government of the Kingdom might be carryed on in his name all that time: Firſt, becauſe the right and Title of the Crown did belong properly unto him immediately upon the death of his Father. And ſecondly, becauſe otherwiſe we muſt grant, not only a double Interregnum, viz. one in the Kingdom of Judah, and the

[p]

SHallum, the ſon of one Jabeſh, having murdered Zachariah the King his maſter, reigned in his ſtead (being the fifteenth King in the Kingdom of Iſrael.) He began to reign in the 39 year of Uzziah King of Judah, and reigned but one month, being ſlain himſelf by another, who alſo reigned in his ſtead; and ſo was ſerved himſelf as he had ſerved another, 2 Kings 15. 13, 14.

[q]

MEnahem, the ſon of one Gadi, having killed Shallum, did reign in his ſtead over Iſrael (being the ſixteenth King of that Kingdom.) He began to reign in the 39 year of Uzziah King of Judah, and reigned ten years, 2 Kings 15. 14, 17.

Note;

Menahem. ISRAEL.

Note; That the begining of his reign was not long after the begining of the 39 year of Uzziah; for Zachariah reigned ſix months, begining in the 38 year of Uzziah; and then Shallum one month in the 39 year; and after him this Menahem: therefore the 39 year could not be much begun when he began to reign.

Pekahiah, the ſon of Menahem, began to reign over Iſrael (being the ſeventeenth King of that Kingdom) in the fiftieth year of Uzziah King of Judah, and reigned two years, 2 Kin. 15. 23.

Note; That his firſt year began about the begining of the fiftieth year of Uzziah; for elſe his Father Menahem (who began to reign in the 39 year of Uzziah) muſt have the other in Kingdom of Iſrael but alſo the Interregnum in Iſrael muſt be double to what it need to be (viz. 22 years in ſtead of eleven, which may ſerve) to bring the years of the Kings of Judah and Iſrael, which were contemporary, to accord with what the Books of the Kings and Chronicles do hold forth: whereas, by accounting the eleven years (from the death of Amaziah in the 15 year of Jeroboam, unto the 27 year when the people did ſet up Uzziah in full regal power) as part of his 52 years which he reigned, we ſhall need to make onely one Interregnum in all, and that but of eleven years in Iſrael; and ſo prevent an Interregnum in the Kingdom of Judah, and not make the Interregnum of Iſrael to be 22 years, as I ſee many are fain to do.

Now then, accounting the begining of his 52 years which he reigned, from the death of his Father Amaziah (although he reigned not in his own name, and by himſelf in full power, till the 27 year of Jeroboam) we may place the firſt of thoſe years of his about the 201 year after the Foundation of the Temple; as appears by adding the 29 years of Amaziah to the year of the Temple at the the begining of his reign: and about the 3188 year of the World.

The certain year when that dreadful Earthquake happened in the days of Uzziah (mentioned Amos 1. 1. and Zech. 14. 5.) is not expreſſed. Joſephus (lib. 6. cap. 11. Antiq.) makes it to be about the latter part of his reign, viz. when he went into the Temple to burn Incenſe, for the which he was ſmitten with Leproſie: at which time (he ſays) there was a great ſhaking of the Earth. But I cannot aſſent unto him herein, becauſe that Earthquake, mentioned by the Prophets, muſt neceſſarily be in the former, and not in the latter half of his reign, at leaſt before the 26 year of it; for it was while Jeroboam the King of Iſrael was living, Amos 1. 1. and he dyed about the 26 year of this Uzziah. I ſhould conjecture rather, that it was about the 22 year of Uzziah; becauſe it is not altogether improbable that that ſpeech of the Prophet, Iſai. 7. 8. may have ſome reference to that Earthquake, where it is propheſied, that within ſixty five years Ephraim (i. e. the Kingdom of Iſrael) ſhall be broken, that it be not a people: which 65 years are not to be underſtood from the time when have reigned eleven years, and not ten, as it is ſaid he did.

His ſecond and laſt year was compleat and full; for Pekah (who ſucceeded him) is ſaid to begin to reign in the 52 year of Uzziah, 2 Kin. 15. 25, 27.

PEkah, the ſon of Remaliah, having killed Pekahiah, reigned in his ſtead (being the eighteenth King of Iſrael.) He began to reign in the 52 or laſt year of Uzziah King of Judah, and reigned twenty years, 2 Kings 15. 25, 27.

Note; That the begining of his reign was about the begining of the 52 year of Uzziah; for elſe his Predeceſſor muſt have reigned more then two years.

The Pekah. ISRAEL.

The twentieth or laſt year alſo of his Reign ſeems to have been compleat; for beſides his firſt year (which was concurrent with the 52 year of Uzziah) he reigned 19 years fully after the death of Uzziah; as appears by the begining of the Reign of Hoſhea (who ſucceeded him) for he is ſaid to begin to reign in the twentieth year of Jotham the ſon of Uzziah, 2 Kings 15. 30. ſo that the end of his Reign ſeems to have been about the latter end of the 19 year, or the very begining of the twentieth year of Jotham: and therefore his firſt year which he reigned in the laſt year of Uzziah, and the nineteen years which he reigned after, do make together twenty years compleat.

Pekah invaded Judah, and made miſerable havock amongſt them; for it is ſaid, he killed 120000, and carryed captives to Samaria about 200000, with very much ſpoyl beſides;

when this Propheſie ſeems to be ſpoken (which was in the days of Ahaz King of Judah, Verſ. 1.) for from the firſt year of Ahaz there were not above 20 years to the Captivity of Iſrael; as may be ſeen by the Chronological Table of this Period: Therefore we muſt conceive them as ſpoken with reference to ſome remarkable thing commonly obſerved and remembred by the people: Now that Earthquake was a very memorable thing (it ſeems) amongſt them, becauſe the Prophet Amos ſpeaks ſo of it; and from the 22 or 23 year of Uzziah (as we may ſee by the Table) there were about 65 years, and in that year the Kingdom of Iſrael was broken, ſo as it ceaſed to be a Kingdom. Or, if we do underſtand thoſe 65 years to begin from the begining of Iſaiah's propheſying; yet the matter wil be much what the ſame: for Iſaiah began to propheſie in Judah about the time when Amos began to propheſie in Iſrael, by comparing Iſai. 1. 1. with Amos 1. 1. or probably within two or three years, and that ſeems to be juſt about the time (as I conceive) the Earthquake was: and I do the more incline to underſtand that Propheſie to have reference thereunto, becauſe that Earthquakes quakes have been obſerved to be fore-runners and preſages of great changes in Kingdoms, though the effects have not followed immediately, but many years after: But what I ſpeak herein is onely by way of conjecture.

In the latter part of his Reign, upon his undertaking to meddle with the Prieſts office, he was ſmitten with Leproſie, and ſo continued a Leper to the day of his death, 2 Chron. 26. 16. The year when he was ſmitten with it, and conſequently how long he was a Leper, is not certainly to be gathered; yet probably it was not many years before the end of his reign; for his ſon Jotham was of years to govern and judg the people, whileſt the King was ſecluded by reaſon of his leproſie, 2 Chro. 26. 21. and yet Jotham was but 25 years old when his Father dyed, 2 Chron. 27. 1. and therefore it is probable, that Uzziah was leprous not many years; yet I am apt to conceive, that he was ſo more then one year; for it is ſaid, he was a Leper unto the day of his death: which ſeems to intimate, as if it were ſome conſiderable time: but we muſt leave it as uncertain.

Note; That the 52 or laſt year of ſides; but the Captives (by the means of the Prophet Obed) being fed and clothed, were ſent home again, 2 Chron. 28. 5. to 16. The time whereof ſeems to be towards the latter end of his Reign, and probably about the 19 year of it: for it was in that part of his Reign when Ahaz did reign in Judah (againſt whom Pekah made this War.) Now Ahaz began to reign in the 17 year of Pekah, and it is probable he had reigned a year or two before he was invaded, becauſe it was for his great wickedneſs, as burning his ſons in the fire, &c. therefore I conceive it might be about the 19 year of Pekah: And to this alſo that prophetical ſpeech ſeems to concur, Iſai. 7. 16. Before the childe ſhall know to refuſe evil and chooſe good, the Land that thou abhorreſt ſhall be forſaken of both her Kings: which was ſpoken upon occaſion of the Invaſion of Judah by Pekah King of Iſrael, and Rezin King of of Syria: for thereupon the Lord ſent Iſaiah with his little Infant Shearjaſhub to Ahaz, that he ſhould not fear thoſe two Kings: for before that Infant did grow up to know the difference between good and evil (which uſually children do not, till they be about two years old) the Land of Iſrael and Syria (which Land was abhorred by Ahaz) ſhould be forſaken of both her Kings: and ſo it fell out not long after, for Rezin was ſlain by the King of Aſſyria, 2 Kings 16. 7, 8, 9. and Pekah was alſo killed by Hoſhea, in the twentieth year after that Jotham King of Judah did begin to reign, 2 Kings 15. 30. which being within leſs then two years after this Invaſion, it is therefore very probable that it was about the 19 year of Pekah's Reign.

About the end of the nineteenth, or begining of the twentieth or laſt year of Pekah (as we may conjecture) did Tiglath-pileſer King of Aſſyria carry away captive a great part of Iſrael, 2 Kings 15. 29. for it was after the former Invaſion that Pekah with of Uzziah was very near compleat (if not altogether) before he dyed, becauſe his ſon Jotham is ſaid to begin to reign in the ſecond year of Pekah King of Iſrael, 2 Kin. 15. 32. and he began in the 52 and laſt year of Uzziah, Verſ. 27. Now therefore if Uzziah had not lived to the end of that year, then Jotham had ſucceeded him, not in the ſecond, but firſt year of Pekah.

JOtham, the ſon of Uzziah, began to reign over Judah (being the eleventh that reigned in that Kingdom after the Diviſion) in the ſecond year of Pekah King of Iſrael, and reigned ſixteen years, 2 Kings 15. 32, 33. 2 Chron. 27. 1, 8. The begining of his Reign ſeems to have been about the 253 year after the Foundation of the Temple; as appeareth by adding the 52 years of Uzziah (for I account them compleat) to the year after the Temple when he began to reign; and about the year of the World 3240.

Note; That the ſixteenth or laſt year of Jotham was not compleat, becauſe then his ſon Ahaz ſhould begin to reign in the eighteenth year of Pekah, whereas it was but the ſeventeenth, 2 Kin. 16. 1.

There is one ſcruple about the years that he reigned; for although it is ſaid three times (in the places mentioned) that he reigned ſixteen years, yet 2 Kings 15. 30. doth intimate, as if he reigned twenty at the leaſt; becauſe there it is ſaid, that Hoſhea King of Iſrael began to reign in the twentieth year of Jotham: That which Mr. Perkins doth anſwer unto it (in his Art of Propheſying, pag. 661.) doth not ſatisfie, viz. that Jotham reigned but ſixteen years alone, yet that time which he governed whileſt his Father Uzziah was a Leper, might be about four years, which made up twenty together. But according to this, the twenty and ſixteen years were but one and the ſame, though ſeemingly different; for the year of Jotham's death was the ſixteenth year after he began to reign alone, and the twentieth year with Rezin made into Judah; becauſe the King of Aſſyria being hired to come and raiſe their ſiege againſt Jeruſalem, in his return (as it ſeems) made an Invaſion into Iſrael, and ſo carryed many of them into Captivity. And to this Captivity it is like that the Prophet alludeth, Iſai. 9. 1. when he ſays, the Lord did lightly afflict Zebulon and Naphthali at the firſt: which indeed was light in compariſon of their final Captivity afterward.

year from the begining of the four years before: whereas the begining of Hoſhea's reign was the twentieth year after Jotham began to reign alone; for Pekah (whom Hoſhea ſucceeded) reigned twenty years, and thoſe twenty years began but a little before Jotham began his laſt ſixteen years.

But the more ſatisfying Anſwer is, that Hoſhea began to reign in the twentieth year after Jotham began to reign; not that Jotham reigned and lived when Hoſhea did begin to reign (for his ſon Ahaz who ſucceeded Jotham, was about the fifth year of his reign when Hoſhea began) but that Hoſhea's begining was in the twentieth year after that Jotham began to reign. Now the very reaſon (as I conceive, omitting others Conjectures) why the twentieth year of Jotham is rather mentioned then the fifth year of Ahaz, ſeems to be this, viz. becauſe the Hiſtoriographer had not yet made any mention at all of the Reign of Ahaz: whereas afterward, having once mentioned that, then he ſets down the begining of Hoſhea's reign to be (not in ſuch a year of AHaz, the son of Jotham, began to reign over Judah (being the twelfth in that Kingdom) in the seventeenth year of Pekah King of Israel, and reigned sixteen years, 2 Kings 16. 1, 2. 2 Chron. 28. 1. This was that Ahaz, as the Scripture doth brand him for his wickedness, 2 Chron. 28. 22. The begining of his Reign seems to have been about the 268 year after the Temple, as appears by adding the fifteen years of Jotham (for so many compleat years he reigned, dying, as it seems, in his sixteenth year) to the year of the Temple when he began to reign; and about the year of the World 3256.

ISRAEL. Pekah.

[I]

HOshea, the son of one Elah, having slain Pekah, reigned in his stead, 2 Kin. 15. 30. (being the nineteenth and last King of Israel) He is said to begin to reign in the twentieth year of Jotham King of Judah, or twenty years after the time of the begining of Jotham's Reign (the reason of which, seeing Jotham reigned but sixteen years, is intimated in the Notes upon Jotham) or (which is all one) in the fifth year of Ahaz King of Judah, and reigned nine years, 2 Kings 17. 1.

There may justly (I confess) ſeſs) ſome Queſtion be made about the begining of the Reign of Hoſhea, and alſo about the number of years which he reigned, becauſe the Scripture ſeems to ſpeak variouſly about the ſame: for in 2 Kings 15. 30. it is ſaid, that Hoſhea ſlew Pekah, and reigned in his ſtead in the twentieth year of Jotham, which was about the fifth year of Ahaz King of Judah: and in 2 Kings 17. 1. thus, In the twelfth year of Ahaz King of Judah began Hoſhea to reign over all Iſrael nine years. So that in one place it ſeems to be ſpoken, as if he began to reign about the fifth year of Ahaz; and in the other, in his twelfth year. Whereunto I ſhall anſwer briefly what I apprehend doth ſeem moſt to be according to the Truth, viz. That although when he had ſlain Pekah about the fifth year of Ahaz, he did endeavor to poſſeſs himſelf of the Kingdom, yet it is like that the generality of the people would not ſubmit unto him till about the very latter end of the twelfth year of Ahaz (all the interim he being but Note, 2. That the ſixteenth or laſt year of Ahaz is not to be reckoned in Chronological account; for (as it ſeems) about the latter end of his fifteenth, or the very begining of his ſixteenth year, his ſon Hezekiah did begin to reign, being the third year (viz. the very latter end) of Hoſhea King of Iſrael, 2 Kings 18. 1. for the firſt year of Hoſhea was in the very latter end of the twelfth year of Ahaz; ſo that it did concur rather with the thirteenth year: and therefore the third year of Hoſhea (when Hezekiah the ſon of Ahaz began to reign) muſt be concurrent with the fifteenth year of Ahaz: in the very end whereof, or in the very begining of the year following, which is called the ſixteenth year of Ahaz, his ſon Hezekiah did begin: whereby it appears, that at the utmoſt we are to reckon but fifteen years for the reign of Ahaz.

HEzekiah, the ſon of Ahaz, began to reign over Judah (being the thirteenth that reigned in that Kingdom after the Diviſion) in the third year of Hoſhea King of Iſrael, and reigned 29 years, 2 Kin. 18. 1, 2. 2 Chron. 29. 1. The begining of his Reign ſeems to have been about the 283 year after the Temple, as appeareth by adding fifteen (the years of the Reign of Ahaz) unto the years after the Temple at the begining of the reign of Ahaz, and about the 3270 year of the World.

Note; That the firſt year of Hezekiah (which is ſaid to be in the third year of Hoſhea) did begin about the very end of that third year, being indeed rather concurrent with the fourth year of Hoſhea, becauſe the fourth and ſixth years of Hezekiah were coincident with the ſeventh and ninth years of Hoſhea, 2 Kings 18. 9, 10. which otherwiſe could not be; as the Table doth ſhew.

Note, again; That the 29, or but a kinde of tanquam King) when he was generally received and owned by all the people as their King: and from that time we are to account the nine years which he is ſaid to have reigned, 2 Kings 17. 1. and therefore the time from his killing of Pekah, till the latter end of the twelfth year of Ahaz, was but a kinde of Interregnum in Iſrael, there being no King there, onely Hoſhea (it ſeems) was then bluſtering about it, but had not the full power of the Kingdom, at leaſt of the whole; and that his nine years muſt be accounted from the end of the twelfth year of Ahaz, becauſe from thence to the ſixth year of Hezekiah (which was the laſt of Hoſhea) were nine years, which was the time that he is ſaid to have reigned.

In the ſeventh year of his Reign, Shalmaneſer King of Aſſyria came againſt Iſrael, beſieging the City of Samaria (the chief City in which the Kings dwelling was) and in the third year after the begining of the Siege he took it, and carryed all the ten Tribes

Hoshea. ISRAEL.

Tribes of Israel (except some few persons who escaped and dwelt amongst them of Judah) away into Captivity; and brought off his own people out of Assyria, whom he placed in Samaria, and in the Cities and Towns thereof. These were they which were afterwards called Samaritans, with whom the Jews refused to have any thing to do.

The Captivity of Israel was in the ninth year of Hoshea (which was the last year of his Reign, and of that Kingdom) and in the sixth year of Hezekiah King of Judah, 2 Kings 18. 10. so that the time that the Kingdom of Israel continued from the first year of Rehoboam unto the sixth year of Hezekiah Kings of Judah, and from the first year of Jeroboam the first King of Israel unto the ninth year of Hoshea the last King thereof, was about 250 years, the last year being current and not compleat: as may appear by computing the years of the Kings of Judah, which were contemporary with the Kings of Israel; and or last year of Hezekiah, is to be accounted compleat; because after his great sickness (which was about the end of his 14, or begining of his 15 year) he had 15 years more added unto his days; according as was promised by the Prophet Isaiah: the Lord ever fulfilling his Promises to the uttermost, and that rather over then under.

The years after the Temple.

There is, I confess, a great Question about his Age when he began to reign; for in 2 Kings 18. 2. it is said he was 25 years old when he began to reign: and yet his Father Ahaz could then (as it seems) be but about 35. For he was twenty years old when he began to reign, 2 Kings 16. 2. and reigning not above 15 years, he dyed, and his son Hezekiah succeeded him: whereby it follows, that if Hezekiah was 25 years old when he began to reign, then his Father Ahaz was but ten years old when his son was born: which seems very unlikely, if not incredible. There are two or three things spoken by way of Answer hereunto.

1. It

Hezekiah. JUDAH. ISRAEL. Hoshea.

1. It is said, that Hezekiah was not the natural son of Ahaz, but Filius Legalis, as Funcius calls him; but how and in what respect, he says not.

2. Palludanus and others grant, that he was the natural son of Ahaz; and say, he might be begotten when his Father was but nine or ten years old: and Sanctius (who rests in this Answer) doth mention, in 1 K. 3. 1. a noble young man in Spain, who begat a childe of his Nurse, himself not being above ten years old: and doth also bring another Instance, alledged by Jerom, to the same purpose.

3. Junius, and such as follow him, think that Ahaz was 25 years old when his son Hezekiah was born; and say, that the twenty years of Ahaz, mentioned 2 Kin. 16 2. are to be reckoned (not at the begining of his own reign, but) when his Father Jotham began to reign: and to this end they read the words thus; Twenty years old was Ahaz when he (i. e. Jotham, mentioned in the former Verse) began to reign: and for and is to be seen more particularly by the Chronological Table of this Fifth Period. In which time there were nineteen Kings that reigned successively in Israel (besides Tibni the corrival with Omri) and every one of them wicked Idolaters, walking in the footsteps of Jeroboam, who is said to make Israel to sin, by setting up the golden Calves in Dan and Bethel. Yet it is remarkable, that this Captivity fell out in the days of Hoshea, who was not altogether so evil as the other Kings before him, 2 Kings 17. 2. but he might fill up the measure of the sins of Israel which were behinde: and his unfaithfulness also to the King of Assyria, whose Tributary he had engaged himself to be, Vers. 3, 4. might provoke the Lord against him, to give up him and the Kingdom into Captivity; as upon the like occasion Jehojachin King of Judah was given into the hands of his Enemies, 2 Kin. 24. 1, 2. Ezek. 17. 15. to 22. and at last also Zedekiah, 2 Chron. 36. 13.

The sins, which were the special

JUDAH. Hezekiah.

The years after the Temple.

for this they bring alſo an Inſtance for the like expreſſion, viz. 2 Chron. 36. 9. Jehojachin was eight years old, when he (i. e. his Father Jehojakim, mentioned in the foregoing Verſe) began to reign: for indeed Jehojachin was eighteen years old when he began to reign, 2 King. 24. 8.

In the fourteenth year of Hezekiah's Reign, Senacherib King of Aſſyria came up againſt Judah (having ſped ſo well againſt Iſrael about ſeven or eight years before) and beſieged divers Cities, 2 Ki. 18. 13. whereupon Hezekiah did compound with him for his peace by 300 talents of ſilver, and 30 talents of gold: and notwithſtanding all this, yet did the King of Aſſyria again within a ſhort time after ſend a great Army againſt Jeruſalem, even (as it ſeems) in the very ſame year; for it was before Hezekiah was recovered from his great ſickneſs; becauſe the deliverance from Senacherib's Army, and the recovery from his ſickneſs, were both promiſed together, 2 Kings 20. 5, 6. and the recovery from his ſickneſs was about the end of his fourteenth year, or begining of his fifteenth. As for the continuance of the Siege of Jeruſalem by the Aſſyrians, and when it was raiſed by that miraculous ſlaughter, made by an Angel, of 185000. it is not indeed expreſſly ſet down: Some have conceived that it continued two or three years, from what is ſaid in 2 Kin. 19. 28, 29. where the Lord ſays, he would turn away Senacherib's Army; giving Hezekiah this as a ſign or token to aſſure him thereof, viz. Ye ſhall eat this year ſuch things as grow of themſelves, and in the ſecond year that which ſpringeth of the ſame, and in the third year ſow and reap, &c. whereby it ſeems they could not Till their ground for two years together by reaſon of the Army: yet in the third year they ſhould be freed from it, and then ſhould have liberty to ſow and reap. But to me it ſeems, that the ſlaughter of the Aſſyrians, and raiſing of the ſiege, was about the time when Hezekiah was recovered from his ſickneſs; becauſe it is ſaid preſently after, It came to paſs in that night (viz. after the promiſe was made for their deliverance) that the Angel of the Lord went forth, and ſmote in the camp of the Aſſyrians 185000. And as for their forbearing of tilling their ground, that might be (not becauſe of the Enemies, but) by reaſon of the Sabbatical year, which fell out (as is generally conceived) at that time, and together with that the year of Jubilee alſo; whereupon it was that the Land was to reſt two years, (as Ainſw. in Lev. 25. 10.) viz. one year becauſe of the Sabbatical or ſeventh year, Levit. 25. 2, 3, 4. which might fall upon the fourteenth year of Hezekiah: and the other as a Sabbath for the ſeven Sabbaths of years foregoing, viz. the Jubilee, which was the year following. I know there are who are not willing to yield that the Jews kept two years of Reſt together at that time of Jubilee (ſee Cunæus de republ. Hebr. l. 1. cap. 6.) but think that the 49 year was kept both as the Sabbatical year, and alſo as the year of Jubilee too: which if ſo, then thoſe two years of the Lands reſting might poſſibly come thus, viz. the former might be occaſioned by the Aſſyrians, who were up and down the Land at that time when the ground ſhould have been tilled and ſown; and then the next year might be the Sabbatical year, wherein they were commanded to let the ground reſt untilled. But then the Queſtion is, How could thoſe two years (wherein the Land did ſo reſt from tillage) be given as a ſign of deliverance from the Army, if the Aſſyrians were gone before the ſecond year, ſeeing the Reſt of the ſecond year is given expreſly for a ſign of it? 2 Kings 19. 28, 29. Reſt. They might be propounded as a ſign thereof, thus, viz. That as they had had experience formerly, and did alſo believe, lieve, that the Lord could and would afterward provide food for them, without their Husbandry, for a year or two together; ſo they might be as confident of their Deliverance from the Army of the Aſſyrians, without ſtriking a ſtroke, or ſhooting of an arrow. The years after the Temple.

Now his Recovery from that dangerous ſickneſs (which ſome think was the Plague, or ſome peſtilential diſeaſe) ſeems to have been about the latter end of the fourteenth or the begining of the fifteenth year of his Reign; as alſo that great ſlaughter of the Aſſyrians Army by the Angel (for they ſeem to have been together, 2 Kings 18. 13. and 20. 6) becauſe the whole time of his Reign was 29 years, and he had a promiſe of life for fifteen years after that his ſickneſs.

It is very probable alſo, that the King of Babylon ſent his Ambaſſadors to Hezekiah with a Preſent, upon his Recovery, about the fifteenth year of his Reign, 2 Kings 20. 12. for although he had been made bare by the Gifts and Tax which the King of Aſſyria had ſo lately of him, 2 Kings 18. 14, 15. yet it is likely that he was preſently much enriched again with great Treaſures by the ſpoyl which the Aſſyrians might leave: for great Treaſures he had when the Ambaſſadors came unto him, the which he ſhewed unto them; where upon the Lord threatened the carrying the ſame into Babylon, which came to paſs about 120 years after.

Manaſſeh, the ſon of Hezekiah (being the fourteenth that reigned over Judah) began to reign when he was twelve years old, immediately after the death of his Father, and reigned 55 years (the longeſt time that any of the Kings did reign) 2 Kings 21. 1. and 2 Chron. 33. 1. The begining of his Reign ſeems to have been about the 312 year after the Foundation of the Temple; as appears by adding the 29 year of the Reign of Hezekiah unto the year after the Temple when he began to reign; and about the year of the World 3300. The former part of his Reign he reigned as wickedly as any King did before or after him; whereupon, through the Lord's righteous hand, he was carryed in chains to Babylon; from whence, upon his great humbling of himself, he was returned and brought back to his Kingdom: But how long time he continued in his dissolute course, is uncertain: some (viz. Cornel. a lapide in Ezek. 4.) have fansied it to be fourty years, from the fourty days which the Prophet Ezekiel was to lie upon his right side, bearing the iniquity of the house of Judah: But I look at that as a very fansie: and so I shall also leave it as an uncertainty, how long he was a Captive in Babylon; and how long he reigned more piously after his release.

Amon, the son of Manasseh, succeeded his Father (being the fifteenth that reigned over the Kingdom of Judah.) He began to reign when he was 22 years old, and reigned two years; being a wicked young man, he was killed by his own servants, 2 Kings 21. 19, 23. 2 Chron. 33. 21, 24. The begining of his Reign seems to have been about the 366 year after the Foundation of the Temple; as appeareth by adding the 54 compleat years of the Reign of Manasseh (for I reckon his last year but as current) unto the year after the Temple when he began to reign; and about the year of the World 3355.

Josiah, the son of Amon (though the Father was wicked, yet the son was one of the best Kings that ever Judah had) began to reign after his Fathers death (being the sixteenth that governed in that Kingdom) when he was but eight years old, and reigned 31 years, 2 Kings 22. 1. and 2 Chron. 34. 1. The begining of his Reign seems to have been about the 368 year after the Foundation of the Temple; as appeareth by adding the two years of the Reign of Amon unto the year after the Temple when he began to reign; and about the year of the World 3357.

About the eighth year of his Reign, when he was sixteen years old, it seems his son Jehojakim was born; for it is said he was 25 years old when he began to reign, 2 Kings 23. 36.

In that eighth year also of his Reign he began (being but sixteen years old) to seek after the God of his Father David, 2 Chron. 34. 3. i. e. He did openly declare and manifest his religious care to set up and further the true Worship of the Lord.

His son Jehoahaz (as it seems) was born in the ninth year of his Reign, and seventeenth year of his life: for when Jehoahaz was set up by the people (before his elder brother) immediately after the death of Josiah, he was 23 years old, 2 Chron. 36. 1, 2.

In the twelfth year of his Reign (and twentieth year of his life) was that great Reformation, in purging out Idolatry throughout the Land; as in breaking down Images and Altars, and burning the bones of the Idolatrous Priests, which had been buryed long before, 2 Chron. 34. 3. to 7. according to the Prophesie which was of Josiah in the days of Jeroboam the first King of Israel, 1 Kings 13. 1, 2. which was above 300 years before.

In

The years after the Temple.

In the thirteenth year of his Reign, the Prophet Jeremiah did begin to propheſie, Jerem. 1. 2. Onely then it may be queſtioned, 1. Why Jeremy ſhould reprove and threaten Judah for Idolatry, ſeeing there was ſuch a Reformation but the very year immediately before? And, 2. Why King Joſiah did ſend unto Huldah the Propheteſs in the eighteenth year of his Reign, 2 Chron. 34. 8. &c. to conſult with her about the Lord's will and minde, and not rather with Jeremy, if he was then a Prophet? To the firſt it may be ſaid, That the Reproofs and Threatenings denounced by Jeremy, ſet down in the former Chapters of the Book of his Propheſie, might be ſpoken and uttered in the times of the Kings after Joſiah, when the people fell again into Idolatry: for the Collector of the Propheſies of Jeremy did not ſet down all things in the order of time as they were delivered by him, but poſſibly as they might come to hand: for it is evident, e. gr. that the 21 Chapter was ſpoken in the days of Zedekiah the laſt King of Judah, and the 22 Chapter in the days of Jehoahaz or Shallum (who was two or three Kings before) Verſ. 11. and ſo the 25 Chapter was delivered in the fourth year of Jehojakim; but the two next Chapters following, in the begining of that Kings Reign. Again, the 32 Chapter was in the tenth year of Zedekiah (the very year which was the laſt but one of the Kingdom of Judah) and yet the 35 Chapter was ſpoken in the days of Jehojakim. 2. Notwithſtanding the publique Reformation, yet there might be Idolatry practiſed privately up and down in the Land; for which he might reprove and threaten. And, 3. The Prophet might do it to ſtrengthen the Kings hand, and to awaken the Princes and People to be forward in the work of Reformation as well as the King. To the ſecond, viz. Why the King ſent to Huldah, and not to Jeremy rather? &c. 1. Some think that Jeremy did not propheſie any more in the time of Joſiah, but onely in his thirteenth year, and ſo not until the Reign of Jehojakim; which they gather from Jer. 1. 2, 3. but this I cannot aſſent unto, by reaſon of that which Jeremy himſelf ſpeaks to the people, Chap. 25. 3. telling them, by way of of aggravation of their ſin. That though he had ſpoken unto them, riſing early and ſpeaking, from the thirteenth year of Joſiah unto that day, which was the fourth year of Jehojakim, viz. 23 years; yet had they not harkened. 2. Others therefore more probably do think, that Jeremy might reſide in the Country at Anathoth, the place of his Fathers houſe, Jer. 1. 1. and therefore the King might ſend unto Huldah at the Colledg in Jeruſalem, 2 Kings 22. 14. being ſo neer at hand.

The years after the Temple.

In the eighteenth year of his Reign, he gave order for the repairing of the Temple, 2 Chron. 34. 8. and then it was that the Book of the Law was found (whileſt the Temple was making clean) which was the occaſion of the Kings ſending unto Huldah the Propheteſs, to enquire of the Lord for himſelf and his people. In that year alſo was kept a moſt ſolemn Paſſover, as ever had been kept from the days of Samuel, 2 Chron. 35. 18, 19.

About the 23 year of his Reign, his ſon Zedekiah (who was the laſt King of Judah) was born; for he is ſaid to be 21 years old when he began to reign: and ſo many years there were from the 23 year of Joſiah unto the firſt of Zedekiah; as may eaſily appear by looking into the Chronological Table of this Fifth Period.

In the 31 year of his Reign, this good King would needs go forth to fight with Pharaoh Necho King of Egypt, in the Valley of Megiddo, in which Expedition he had his death's wound, which was an occaſion of great lamentation unto Judah and Jeruſalem: ſo dangerous a thing it is to go forth in any undertaking without a Call. Indeed he was promiſed from the Lord by Huldah the Propheteſs, That he ſhould go to his grave in peace: and ſo indeed it was a time of peace in his Kingdom; for after his death the Kingdom was moleſted with Invaſions in every one of the four Kings time that reigned afterward. For, 1. Jehoahaz (who ſucceeded him) was depoſed by the King of Egypt. 2. Jehojakim (who was ſet up by the King of Egypt) was taken and bound in fetters by the King of Babylon. 3. Jehojachin was alſo carryed into Babylon.

The years after the Temple.

Babylon. And lastly, Zedekiah was taken by the King of Babylon, who slew his sons in his sight, and then caused his eyes to be put out; and binding him in chains, sent him Prisoner into Babylon, 2 Kings 25. 7. whereby we may take notice (by the way) how the Lord did fulfil his Threatening denounced against the Kings Children, in the days of Josiah, for their strange apparel, Zeph. 1. 8. What may then be feared for the strange apparel in these days, of those who are far inferior to Princes?

Note; That the 31 or last year of Josiah, seems not to have been compleat and finished when he dyed, because the fourth year of Jehojakim was but the 23 year from the thirteenth year of Josiah, Jer. 25. 1, 2, 3. yea, though we reckon the first and last years in the account; as the Chronological Table will plainly demonstrate to the eye. It is probable, that the three months, which his son Jehoahaz reigned after him, might make that last year compleat, within a very little either over or under.

[R]

Jehoahaz, one of the sons of Josiah (yet not the eldest) was made King over Judah by the people (being the seventeenth that reigned in that Kingdom;) he is also called Shallum, Jer. 22. 11. and Johanan, 1 Chron. 3. 15. where he is stiled the first born of Josiah; but it is in regard that he was the first that reigned of all the sons of Josiah. He was 23 years old when he began to reign, and reigned but three months: for, it seems, the King of Egypt came (possibly by the means of the elder Brother, who was put by the Crown by the people) and carrying him away into Egypt, amerced the Land an hundred Talents of Silver, and one Talent of Gold; and set up his Brother in his stead, 2 Kings 23. 31. to 36. and 2 Chron. 36. 1. to 5. He being carryed into Egypt, never returned back, but dyed in Egypt, according cording to that Prediction, Jerem. 22. 10, 11, 12.

The time wherein he reigned, being part of the 31 year of Josiah, seems to have been about the year after the Temple 398. as appeareth by adding the 30 compleat years of Josiah unto the year after the Temple at the begining of his Reign; and about the 3387 year of the World.

Note; That the three months of his Reign do not make any addition to the Chronological account, in regard that they are included in the last year of Josiah.

Jehojakim (who is also called Eliakim, 2 Kings 23. 34.) the eldest son of Josiah, and elder brother of Jehoahaz, by the help and assistance of the King of Egypt, got his brother to be removed (whom the people had set up) and himself established in his stead, 2 Chron. 36. 2, 5. for which the King of Egypt required of him an hundred Talents of Silver, and one Talent of Gold; the which Jehojakim payd him, but Taxed the Land for it, and exacted it of the people, 2 Kin. 23. 34, 35. He was 25 years old when he began to reign over Judah (being the eighteenth that governed after the Division) and reigned eleven years, 2 Kings 23. 36. and 2 Chron. 36. 5.

The begining of his Reign seems to be about the 399 year after the Foundation of the Temple, as appears by adding one year (viz. the last year of Josiah) to the year after the Temple when Jehoahaz did reign; and about the 3388 year of the World.

Note; That the eleventh or last year of his Reign seems not to be compleat; as may appear by comparing the years of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon with the years of this Jehojakim: viz. the fourth year of this Jehojakim, or the very end of his third year, was the first year of Nebuchadnezzar, Jer. 25. 1. Dan. 1. 1. Now in the 7th year of Nebuchadnezzar was this Jehojakim carryed away captive, Jer. 52. 28. and in the eighth year of Nebuchadnezzar was Jehojachin (who succeeded him) carryed into captivity, 2 Kings 24. 12, to 17. by which it will appear, by reckoning the years by the Table, that he must be taken away in the time of his eleventh year; and had the burying of an Ass, as was foretold, Jerem. 22. 19. and 36. 30. for the wickedness which he committed; as in killing Urijah for prophesying against him, Jerem. 26. 20. &c. and in cutting in pieces the Prophesie of Jeremy, and burning it in the fire, Jerem. 36. 23. and casting Jeremy into Prison, Vers. 5.

About the eighth year of this Kings Reign did Nebuchadnezzar come against Judah; at which time (as it seems) Jehojakim became his Servant and Tributary, 2 Kings 24. 1. and so the King of Babylon, taking some of the Children of the Princes with him (as Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, Azariah, and some others) as hostages, he departed, Dan. 1. 1. &c. But afterward, about the end of three years, he rebelled against him; whereupon the King of Babylon came unto Jerusalem, and bound him to send him away to Babylon, but (as it seems) he dyed in the way, Jerem. 22. 18, 19.

Jehojachin (who is also called Jeconiah, 1 Chron. 3. 16. Matth. 1. 11, 12. and Coniah, Jer. 22. 24. and 37. 1.) the son of Jehojakim, succeeded his Father in the Kingdom of Judah (being the nineteenth that reigned therein.) The time of his Reign was but three months, for he was carryed away captive with many of the people into Babylon. He, through the counsel of Jeremy, yielding himself to the King of Babylon, had his life preserved; and after many years imprisonment (about 37 years) was at length enlarged, and advanced in Babylon; 2 Kings 24. 8. &c. and 25. 27. &c. The years after the Temple.

Note; That the three months of his Reign are included in the eleventh or last year of his Father Jehojakim; for his last year was not fully ended when this his son Jehojachin succeeded him; it being in the eighth year of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, who began to reign about the begining of the fourth year of Jehojakim, Jer. 25, 1. therefore the eighth year of Nebuchadnezzar was concurrent with the eleventh year of Jehojakim: and yet this Jehojachin was also carryed away in that eighth year, 2 Kings 24. 12. So that the time of his Reign was about the 409 year after the Foundation of the Temple; as appeareth by adding the ten years compleat that Jehojakim had reigned, unto the year after the Temple at the begining of his Reign; and about the year of the World 3398.

Whereas it is said, in Matth. 1. 11. that Josias begat Jeconias and his brethren; as if this Jehojachin (who is Jeconias) was the immediate son of Josiah, being indeed his grandchilde, for he was the son of Jehojakim who was the son of Josiah: Although the Scripture-phrase will bear it well enough, calling sometimes the posterity of a man [his children or sons] though not immediately begotten of him; yet some learned men (viz. Beza and Parœus) have been ready to think that there is an Error in the generality of the Greek Copies crept in by some unadvised Scribe, leaving out Jehojakim the Father of Jeconiah: and R. Stephen, in his diversis Lectionibus, collected out of old Copies, readeth that eleventh Verse thus; Josias begat Jakim (which is the contract of Jehojakim) and Jakim begat Jeconias and his Brethren; and some coulor there may also seem to be for it, because otherwise there is one wanting to make up the third or last fourteenth Generation mentioned by the Evangelist, which he intended: see Vers. 12, to 18.

There is a Question about his age when he began to reign; for it is said in one place, viz. 2 Kings 24. 8. that he was eighteen years old; (and yet in 2 Chron. 36. 9. that he was but eight years old when he began to reign. The Answers, which are given hereunto by divers, are as followeth (the Reader may please himself with that which liketh him best) That he was eighteen years old, is generally acknowledged by all, according to 2 Kings 24. 8. But for the clearing of that place in 2 Chron. 36. 9. it is answered:

1. Some think he had a double begining of his Reign: viz. First, with his Father Jehojakim, about the second year of his Reign, when Jehojachin was but eight years old: And then secondly, after his Fathers death, which was ten years after, when he was eighteen years old. Thus Paludanus, Lavater, Sanctius, and the generality of Expositors.

2. Junius, and some others, expound that place in 2 Chro. 36. 9. of his age when his Father Jehojakim began to reign: and thus they read it, Jehojachin was eight years old, when He (i. e. his Father Jehojakim, who is spoken of in the former Verse) began to reign. And to this purpose another place is alledged, where (as they conceive) there is the like manner of expression, viz. 2 Kings 16. 2. where it is said, Twenty years old was Ahaz, when he (i. e. his Father Jotham, mentioned in the former Verse) began to reign: For they conceive it must be understood of him, because they think that Ahaz could not himself be so old when he began to reign, seeing that at the end of his Reign (which was but about fifteen years) his son Hezekiah is said to be 25 years old.

3. It is said, That the eighth year there mentioned, is to be understood, not of the age of Jehojachin, either when himself or his Father did begin to reign, but of the Reign of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon: and, according to the Hebrew phrase, it might be translated, He was the son of the eighth year of Nebuchadnezzar, when he began to reign: according to the like expression (as some conceive) in 2 Chron. 22. 2. Ahaziah was the son of 42 years, &c.

4. Others, apprehending those Expositions to be but a wresting of the phrase from the usual meaning generally in other other places, do therefore rather think there might be ſome miſtake by the Amanuenſis or Scribe, writing 8 inſtead of 18. Thus Piſcator and Diodati.

The years after the Temple.

The Captivity in the time of this Jehojachin, or Jeconiah, was three months and ten days, after the former Captivity when his Father Jehojakim was taken: and therefore the one ſeems to be that in Jer. 52. 28. in the ſeventh year of Nebuchadnezzar, when 3023 perſons were carryed away: and this other in the eighth year of Nebuchadnezzar, when 10000 were carryed Captives into Babylon, according to what is ſaid in 2 Kings 24. 12, 13, 14.

The Prophet Ezekiel (as it ſeems) was carryed away in the Captivity of this Jehojachin or Jeconiah, Ezek. 1. 1, 2. where he accounts the years from that; for he ſays his firſt Viſion was in the fifth year of Jehojachin's Captivity: (but what account he follows in that thirtieth year, which he mentioneth there in the firſt Verſe, is uncertain; for it is thought to be either from that eighteenth year of Joſiah, when the Book of the Law being found, he made a great Reformation, and kept a ſolemn Paſſover; or from the year of Jubilee: or it was the thirtieth year of the Reign of Nebuchadnezzar; or the thirtieth year of Ezekiel's life: for many uncertain Conjectures there are about it.) And Chap. 40. 1. he diſtinguiſheth that Captivity, wherein he was carryed away, from that which was afterward in the time of Zedekiah: for thus he ſpeaks; In the twenty fifth year of our Captivity, in the fourteenth year after that the City was ſmitten, &c. Now the City was ſmitten, and the Temple was burnt, in the Captivity of Zedekiah, which was juſt eleven years after the Captivity of Jeconiah: ſo that the 25 year of the one was the 14 year of the other Captivity. This would be minded for the underſtanding of the account of the years mentioned divers times in the Propheſie of Ezekiel (as Chap. 8. 1. 20. 1. 24 1. 26. 1. and other places) where he ſays, In ſuch and ſuch a year, the Word of the Lord came unto him: i. e. in ſuch a year of their Captivity, when they were carryed into Babylon with Jehojachin or Jeconiah.

Zedekiah, or Mattaniah, 2 Kings 24. 17. who (though he is said, according to the manner of the Hebrews calling all Kinsmen Brothers, to be the Brother of Jehojachin or Jeconiah, 2 Chron. 36. 10. yea, and to be his son, 1 Chron. 3. 16. viz. in regard of his succeeding him in the Kingdom; yet in deed and truth) was Uncle unto him Jehojachin; this Zedekiah being his Fathers Brother, 2 Kings 24. 17. and one of the sons of Josiah, Jer. 37. 1. He began to reign over Judah (being the twentieth and last that reigned in that Kingdom) when he was 21 years old, after the Captivity of Jehojachin, which was about the 410 year after the Foundation of the Temple; as appeareth by adding one year to the time when Jehojachin reigned (which was the eleventh year of Jehojakim) and about the year of the World 3399.

Zedekiah having sworn fidelity to the King of Babylon, who had made him King instead of his Kinsman, at length grew perfidious, and rebelled against him, Ezek. 17. 13. to 22. whereupon Nebuchadnezzar came and besieged Jerusalem in the ninth year of Zedekiah, and the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month; and at length, after eighteen months siege, viz. in the eleventh year, and ninth day of the fourth month, he took both it and him, whom he bound in fetters of brass, and sent him with the rest of Judah (except some few of the poorer sort) into Babylon: divers persons of Quality were slain by the King of Babylon, amongst the rest Seraiah the High-Priest (who was the Father of Ezra, Ezra 7. 1.) and the Temple was burnt, and the Wall of Jerusalem was broken down, &c. See the story in 2 Kings 25. and 2 Chron. 36. 17. &c.

The

The City was taken in the fourth month of the eleventh year of Zedekiah, Jer. 52. 6. &c. The Temple was burnt in the fifth month, Vers. 12, 13. and in the seventh month was Gedaliah (whom Nebuchadnezzar had made Governor over the Jews which were left) slain treacherously by Ishmael and his Complices, Jer. 41. 1, 2. Upon which sad occasions, the Jews, whilest they were in Babylon, did Fast yearly upon those months: Zech. 7. 5. with 8. 19. where also mention is made of another Fast in the tenth month; which (as it is thought) was observed by reason that the City Jerusalem began to be besieged in that month, Jer. 52. 4. 2 Kin. 25. 1.

The year after the Temple.

This Final Captivity of Judah in the eleventh year of Zedekiah, seems to be about the 420 year after the Foundation of the Temple was layd, in the fourth year of Solomon; as appeareth by adding the ten years that he reigned after the first year of his Reign, unto the year of the Temple in that year; and about the year of the World 3404.

THE

The years after the Captivity.

The VI. Period.

That which I call the Sixth Period, is the ſpace of time from the Carrying of Iudah into Captivity, unto the Liberty granted them by Cyrus for their Return; and conſiſts of ſeventy years, 2 Chron. 36. 20. to 24. Jer. 29. 10.

There is no difference at all (that I know) either about the number of the years of the Jews Captivity in Babylon, or about the time when they did expire and end; it being generally acknowledged, that at the end of ſeventy years, Cyrus in the firſt year of his Monarchy, having taken Babylon, made Proclamation of Liberty for the Jews to return unto Jeruſalem.

But the great Queſtion is about the Begining of thoſe ſeventy years of the Captivity: viz. Whether from that Captivity which was in the time of Jehojakim, when Daniel and other children of the Princes were carryed into Babylon, Dan. 1. 1. &c. Although divers of them that begin the Captivity of ſeventy years from that Captivity, do begin it from the third year of his Reign, as the words in Daniel do ſeem to expreſs; yet I am apt to think (as Funcius doth) that the Captivity of Jehojakim was in the 11 year of his Reign, 2 Chron. 36. 5, 6. and that third year, mentioned in Daniel, may be underſtood of the third year of his Reign after his being tributary to the King of Babylon, which probably might be, not in his firſt, but eighth year, as ſeems to be intimated in 2 Kings 24. 1. &c.

Jehojachin or Jeconiah, as many learned Chronologers do think; for there was a great Captivity in his time, in which many, and amongſt others Mordecai, and Ezekiel, were then carryed away, Eſth. 2 5,6. Ezek. 1. 2. this was eleven years before the final Captivity.

Zedekiah, in whoſe eleventh year there was a great and Final Captivity of Judah and Jeruſalem by the Babylonians.

They

The years after the Captivity.

They who do account the begining of the ſeventy years Captivity from the third year of Jehojakim (as Junius, Willet, and Capellus) do begin it about eight years before that Captivity, which was in the time of Jehojachin or Jeconiah; and nineteen years before that in the eleventh year of Zedekiah: and ſo conſequently they do ſhorten the years of the World's Chronology ſo many years, as the other accounts do begin the ſeventy years Captivity later; for (as is ſaid) all do generally accord about the time of the end of them. I do incline to look at that as the moſt probable Opinion, which begin the account of the ſeventy years Captivity from the eleventh year of Zedekiah, for the Reaſons and Grounds mentioned in the Notes following.

The

The years after the Captivity.

[X]

THe Begining of the ſeventy years Captivity of Judah in Babylon, ſeems (to me) moſt probably to have been from that in the eleventh year of Zedekiah, and ſo conſequently about the 3408 year of the World (for that Captivity ſeems to be about that year, as is ſaid before) rather then from the Captivity either in the time of Jehojakim, or Jehojachin (which is Jeconiah.) I confeſs indeed the greateſt ſtream of Chronologers ſeem to run for the begining of the ſame from Jehojachin's or Jeconiah's Captivity: yet there are alſo divers learned men for the begining of it from that Captivity in the time of Zedekiah (viz. D. Pie, Sir W. R. Funccius, Lydiat, Lansberg, Pontanus, Pawellus, and Paludanus.) And the Reaſons which do prevail with me, are theſe following.

1. Becauſe the ſeventy years were to be after the Deſolation of the Land, Jerem. 25. 11. and by this it was that Daniel came to finde out the end of the Captivity, Dan. 9. 2. for he underſtood by the Word ſpoken by Jeremiah, that the Lord would accompliſh ſeventy years in the Deſolations of Jeruſalem. Indeed there was a Captivity of Judah before, in the time of Jehojakim; and a Tranſmigration alſo (as it is ſometimes called) in the time of Jehojachin or Jeconiah: but never the Deſolation of the Land, before the Captivity in Zedekiah's time, when the number of the ſlain and of them that fled was ſo great, the City Jeruſalem was layd deſolate, by breaking down the Walls, and burning the Temple, and all the Palaces and chief houſes in Jeruſalem, and when all the Veſſels of the Temple were deſtroyed, and carryed away, 2 Chron. 36. 19. And Ezekiel alſo, though he mentioneth the ſecond Captivity (that in Jeconiah's time) as a ſpecial begining of his account and computation, in regard that he himſelf was carryed away with others at that time; and therefore calls it [our Captivity;] yet he makes the Smiting, or Deſolation of the City, as the general begining of his Computation and account, Ezek. 40. 1. and was not moſt truly a Smiting and Deſolation, when there was a general ſlaughter, without compaſſion upon young man or maiden, old man, and him that ſtooped for age; 2 Chron. 36. 17.

2. Becauſe the Scripture ſays expreſly, That they who were carryed Captives to Babylon in the eleventh year of Zedekiah, were to continue ſeventy years in their Captivity, 2 Chron. 36. 20, 21. to fulfil the Word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah; and until the Land had enjoyed her Sabbaths, viz. ſeventy years from that time. But if the ſeventy years did begin before, either from the Captivity of Jehojakim, or of Jeconiah, then they that were carryed away in the final Captivity with Zedekiah, could not be ſaid to continue ſeventy years in Captivity: And how could the Word of the Lord be ſaid to be fulfilled concerning them, or concerning the Lands enjoying her Sabbaths, as long as ſhe lay deſolate, which was from that Captivity?

3. Becauſe the Angel, in Zech. 1. 12. ſays, That the Lord's anger had been expreſſed, not onely againſt the other Cities of Judah, but alſo againſt Jeruſalem, threeſcore and ten years. But if the ſeventy years did begin in either of both thoſe Captivities, before the final Captivity in the time of Zedekiah, then it could not be ſo truly ſaid, that the Lord's anger had been expreſſed againſt Jeruſalem ſo long, becauſe the Captivity and Deſolation of Jeruſalem was but at the final and laſt Captivity.

4. Becauſe the Kingdom did ſtill remain till the Final Captivity: for notwithſtanding that many thouſands were removed before, yet ſtill there was a King in Judah (and conſequently a Kingdom) and he one of the Seed royal, one of the ſons of Joſiah: But when Zedekiah was carryed away, then the Kingdom of Judah ceaſed (there being no King or Kingdom of Judah after him) and not before; and then Judah is ſaid to be carryed away out of their Land, 2 Kings 25. 21. So that now, after this Captivity, there was no hope of remedy left, as there was before, 2 Chron. 36. 12. to 17.

And, 5. This may alſo be added, viz. That the final and laſt laſt Captivity, in the time of Zedekiah, is that which the Scripture, by way of eminency, calls that Captivity, wherein Judah and Jeruſalem were carryed away, 1 Chron. 6. 15. for that is the Captivity and Carrying away of Judah there meant; becauſe Jehozadak the High-Prieſt, who is there ſaid to be carryed away, was the ſon of Seraiah, who was ſlain by the King of Babylon in this laſt Captivity, 2 Kin. 25. 18,21. So Matth. 1. 11, 17. it is called the carrying away into Babylon: and although Jeconias be the laſt that is mentioned there, yet it is plain that he is not the laſt intended, as if the Captivity was terminated in him; for by Jeconias and his Brethren is included Zedekiah, and the people that were then carryed away with him: and the reaſon why the Evangeliſt doth mention onely Jeconias, and not Zedekiah alſo, I conceive is, partly becauſe he aymed at the number of 14. and if he had mentioned Zedekiah too, there had been one over and above his intended number; and partly alſo, becauſe though Zedekiah was King after Jeconias, yet he was before him in generation, being indeed the ſon of Joſiah, and Uncle unto Jeconias: Now the Evangeliſt mentions the perſons according to their ſucceſſion in generation. But if any be otherwiſe minded about the beginning of the ſeventy years Captivity, they have their liberty for me: I crave herein for my ſelf, but what liberty I am willing to allow unto others, or what others do take to themſelves, the Arguments alledged for the two other Opinions, I think, may admit of probable Anſwers: but I ſhall ſpare my ſelf and Reader that labor. The years after the captivity.

In the ſecond year after the Captivity of Zedekiah, after that Johanan and they who were left in the Land of Judah were gone into Egypt, againſt the expreſs Word of the Lord, and had carryed Jeremiah and Baruch by force with them, Jer. 43. 5,6,7. Then did the Prophet Ezekiel propheſie againſt Egypt, that it ſhould be deſtroyed, Ezek. 32. 1,2. for the 12 year of Ezekiels Captivity was the year after the laſt Captivity of Judah: And let us remember, that the Captivity of Ezekiel, which is frequently mentioned in his Propheſie, was 11 years before that laſt in Zedekiah's time. 2.

5. In the fifth year of the laſt Captivity (which was the 23 year of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon) Nebuzaradan, Captain of the Babylonians, came to Judah, and carryed away 745 perſons more, Jer. 52. 30. If it be queſtioned, how there could be any for him to carry away, ſeeing thoſe that were left after the laſt Captivity, were carryed into Egypt, even every one of them, by Johanan and his Companions, Jer. 43. 5, 6, 7. It is anſwered, That thoſe who were carryed away into Babylon afterward, in the fifth year, might be ſuch, as having fled from the Babylonians, and hid themſelves, did return into the Land, and dwelt therein again, after the Babylonians were departed.

14. In the fourteenth year of the laſt Captivity, or 25 year of Jeconiah's, Ezekiel had that glorious Viſion of the New-Jeruſalem, and of the Temple therein, deſcribed at large from the 40 Chapter of that Propheſie to the end thereof.

16. In the ſixteenth year of the laſt Captivity, and 27 of Jeconiah's, Ezekiel did again propheſie againſt Egypt, that it ſhould be given to the King of Babylon for his great ſervice againſt Tyre, Ezek. 29. 17. to 21. which (in probability) might ~~come~~ to paſs in that very year, becauſe Nebuchadnezzar grew wilde, and to be like a Beaſt (as it is very like) not long after this.

17. Although the year, when Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon was driven out to live like a Beaſt, cannot certainly be deter-determined, yet it is very probable that it was about the seventeenth year of the laſt Captivity, or (at the moſt) the year after; for in the ſixteenth year (as is ſaid immediately before) he was to go and ſubdue Egypt; and it is evident that he dyed in the 26 year of the laſt Captivity, or the 37 year of the Captivity of Jeconiah, for then Evilmerodach began to reign, Jer. 52. 31. So that from the ſeventeenth or eighteenth year of this final Captivity, there could not be above eight or nine years unto the end both of the Life and Reign of Nebuchadnezzar; and ſeven years of that time he continued to be wilde, and like a Beaſt: and if he lived but a year or two after, the begining of that wildeneſs muſt be about he time mentioned. The years after the Captivity.

Jehojachin or Jeconiah, having been a Captive and Priſoner in Babylon all the time that Nebuchadnezzar lived after the laſt Captivity, was at length, in the firſt year of Evilmerodach, in the 37 year after he had been a Captive, or 26 years after the final Captivity, ſet at large and exalted in Babylon, Jer. 52. 31. and 2 Kings 25. 27. &c. This is the more obſervable, becauſe he yielding himſelf into the hand of the King of Babylon, upon the advice of Jeremy from the Lord, found at length (though after many years) that it was not in vain to ſubmit to the Lords Will.

[—+—]

Although it cannot be certainly determined what time it was wherein Eſther lived, or when King Ahaſuerus did marry her, and make her his Queen: and though it is generally apprehended that the tranſaction of that ſtory about her was in the time of the Perſian Kings, after the Return of the Jews out of the Babylonian Captivity: yet I do rather incline to place that ſtory of her in this Sixth Period, towards the latter part of it. They that place it after the Return, are much much divided in their conceptions; for ſome (viz. Broughton, Genebrard, Seder Olam) affirm that Ahaſuerus to be Cambyſes the ſon of Cyrus, and the ſecond King of Perſia. Others ſay, he was the third King, called Darius Hyſtaſpis: ſo Merlin. Scaliger makes him to be Xerxes, the fourth King of the Perſians; which he gathereth from his Queen's name, called by Herodotus, Hameſtris; Ham (as he ſays) in the Perſian Language, being but an additional ſyllable to their Names of Honor. Sanctius, and ſo our learned Knight Sir W. R. conceive that he was the fifth King, called Artaxerxes Longimanus: Pontanus ſays it was Artaxerxes Mnemon; and others, Artaxerxes Ochus. But (with due reverence to them) I ſhall crave liberty to diſſent from them, as they do from each other; placing that ſtory rather before any of thoſe Perſian Kings, viz. in the time of the Captivity of the Jews; the year I will not determine, poſſibly it was after the fiftieth year, becauſe they were grown to be very numerous through all the Provinces of the Perſian Kingdom, Eſth. 3. 8. And although this Opinion (I grant) is not generally embraced, yet I am not alone altogether herein, there being ſome (I finde) of good note, whoſe Judgments are byaſſed this way (viz. Bullinger, Perkins, Melch. Canus, l. 11. c. 5. ad Arg. 9. Gualt. Finch) but I am willing rather to be carryed by reaſon then authority: Now the Reaſons which incline me to go this way, are ſuch as theſe:

1. From the age of Mordecai; which I conceive will not eaſily yield, that the ſtory of Eſther was tranſacted after the Return from the Captivity, and that I know not how many years. For ſuppoſe him to be but a childe, as ſay of ten years old, when he was carryed into Babylon (for that that place in Eſth. 2. 5, 6. doth ſpeak of the carrying of Mordecai from Jeruſalem, with the Captivity of Jeconiah King of Judah, is ſo clear, as men muſt ſhut their eyes againſt the light to deny it) then at the end of the Captivity he muſt be eighty years old; yea, and if we reckon the ſeventy years of the Captivity to begin from the eleventh year of Zedekiah (as it is moſt probable unto me for the Reaſons alledged before) then then he muſt be 91 years old at the Return from Babylon, for he was carryed away eleven years before the Captivity of Zedekiah: add hereunto the years of the Perſian Kings, which (according to the common opinion concerning the time of Eſther) were after the Return, and it will appear that he muſt be very aged, between an hundred and two hundred years old (if not more) when he came to have the Government and management of the whole Kingdom, conſiſting of 127 Provinces. Now if in the time of Moſes (which was almoſt a thouſand years before the Return from Babylon) eighty years were more then the ordinary age of mens lives, Pſal. 90. 10. and if any did live ſo long, yet uſually they were then in a decrepid condition, and unfit to live in a Kings Court, and eſpecially to manage the great affairs of a Kingdom: as old Barzillai told David, when he would have had him to go and live with him at his Court in Jeruſalem, I am this day eighty years old, and can I diſcern between good and evil? Can thy ſervant taſte what I eat or drink? &c. 2 Sam. 19. 34, 35. But Mordecai being twice eighty years old, and therefore ſuch great honor and charge as was put upon him, was altogether unfit for him; and, out of doubt, he would have put it away from himſelf, had he been ſo old, as he muſt needs be after the end of the Captivity: and the longer after that, ſtill the older, and ſo the more unlikely to have been in ſuch a place. Whereas if we place the ſtory of Eſther in the time of the Captivity, and about the fiftieth year of it, or a little after; then might Mordecai, being about ſixty years old, or little more, be both grave, and of a fit age for ſo great imployment as he was called unto.

The years after the Captivity.

2. From the Age of Eſther, when ſhe was called to be Queen unto Ahaſuerus: it is to be ſuppoſed that ſhe was not very aged when ſhe was to be brought in to the King; yea, it is certain that ſhe was a young Virgin, from what is expreſſed, Eſth. 2. 2, 3, 4. Now I ſuppoſe it can hardly be thought that ſhe was above thirty years old: And let us grant her to be fourty years younger then her Coſin Mordecai, which I believe is more then the ordinary difference between Coſins and Brothers Children; according to this ſuppoſition (which is not without rational probability) he muſt be about ſeventy years old; and if ſo, then was Eſther marryed to Ahaſuerus about the ſixtieth year after the Captivity of Jeconiah (granting Mordecai to have been but onely one year old when he was carryed away with Jeconiah) and about the 49 year of the laſt Captivity in the days of Zedekiah (this being eleven years after that;) or if we grant that Mordecai might be ſome odd years over fourty elder then his Coſin Eſther, yet ſtill this ſtory might be between the 50 and 60 years of the laſt Captivity.

3. It ſeems to be very improbable that Mordecai (being ſo religious and godly a Jew, and zealous of the Worſhip of God) ſhould not return unto Jeruſalem, there to worſhip the Lord, when the reſt of the Lord's people (whoſe ſpirits were ſtirred to go up to worſhip the Lord in the place at Jeruſalem which he had appointed) did return upon the Liberty granted and publiſhed by Cyrus, except he had been hindered by ſome publique imployment in the Court and Kingdom. And indeed we finde the name of Mordecai recorded in the Catalogue, amongſt them that went up out of the Captivity with Zerubbabel, Ezra 2. 1, 2. Nehem. 7. 7. and it is moſt like that it was he that was ſo advanced in the Perſian Court; for he is mentioned as one of chief note amongſt them: and Mr. Broughton (in his Treatiſe of the Age of Mordecai) is very confident that it was he and none other. Now if it was he, then it is moſt probable that his advancement had been before that time; for it is not to be conceived that he would leave Jeruſalem, and the Land of Judah, to return and live again in Babylon, ſo far from the opportunity of worſhiping the God of his Fathers amongſt a company of Idolaters.

4. Let me add but this to the former, viz. Whether it can be thought very probable, that ſo great and remarkable a matter as the ſtory of Eſther, and the wonderful buſineſs effected by her means for the people of God (the like being hardly to be found) would have been buryed in ſo deep ſilence both by Ezra and Nehemiah (who wrote of the ſpecial matters that did concern the Church and people of God in the time of the Perſian Kings, from the firſt to the very laſt; for Nehemiah makes mention of Jaddua, who was High-Prieſt when Alexander the Great did overthrow the Perſian Monarchy, Nehem. 12. 10, 11.) Surely had ſhe lived in the time of any of thoſe Kings of Perſia, they had had as great cauſe to have made mention of her, and of the great Favor ſhewn unto the Jews by her means, as of any other favor vouchſafed them by any of the Kings which they ſpeak of, this being more famous and admirable then any thing we read in thoſe Books. The years after the Captivity.

For which Reaſons I am apt to think, that the ſtory of Eſther fell out in the time of the ſeventy years Captivity, viz. between the Captivity of Zedekiah and the Return from Babylon in the firſt year of Cyrus King of Perſia; and more particularly about the fiftieth year, or a little after, and neer upon twenty years before the Return: and it is alſo probable, that Ahaſuerus, who marryed Eſther, might be he who is ſaid to be the Father of Darius the Mede, of whom mention is made Dan. 9. 1. for in Hiſtory he is called Cyaxares, which ſeems to be from the Hebrew name קיאחשורוש Cyahaſhurus; the firſt ſyllable Cy (which ſignifies a Prince) being omitted, the reſt is plainly Ahaſurus or Ahaſuerus: and his ſon (whom prophane Hiſtories call Aſtyages) is called by Daniel, Darius the Mede, from whom (as it ſeems) Cyrus did take the Kingdom of the Medes, and alſo of the Babylonians.

If it be objected, That the Dominion of the Medes and Perſians could not in any probability extend ſo far, and be ſo large, in the time of the Babylonian Monarchy, viz. from India unto Ethiopia, Eſth. 1. 1, 2, 3. Mr. Finch (in his Treatiſe of the Calling of the Jews) gives anſwer ſufficiently, in my apprehenſion, thereunto; That the Hebrew word tranſlated Ethiopia, is Cuſh, and may well be taken for Arabia rather then Ethiopia: for which alſo let the Reader ſee the learned Diſcourſe about it of Sir W. R. (lib. 1. c. 3. §. 14.

and c. 8. §. 10.) and the Kingdom and Dominion of Ahasuerus, King of the Medes and Persians, might reach to some parts of Arabia.

But the Objection of the greatest difficulty to me is this, viz. How the Jews in the time of the Captivity could be under the Dominion of the Medes and Persians, seeing they were carryed away by the Babylonians? Unto which, although (I confess) I cannot alledg and affirm any thing as certain by way of Answer, yet I shall propound some things as probable, which I shall commend to the judgment of others. 1. It is probable, that the Province of Elam (whereof Shushan was the Metropolis, Dan. 8. 2.) was before the Captivity taken by the Babylonians, as was prophesied by the Prophet Jeremiah, Jer. 25. 25. and 49. 34. &c. See also what our learned Usher speaks to this purpose in his Annals, Ann. Mundi 3405, and 3451. but after the Jews Captivity might revolt and deal treacherously, turning to the Persians, as perhaps may be intimated by that expression in Isai. 21. 2. The treacherous dealer dealeth treacherously; go up O Elam, &c. and so the Jews therein might come to be under the Dominion of the Persians. 2. Perhaps when they were carryed into Babylon, having their liberty (for though the King was a Prisoner, Jer. 52. 21. yet the common people had a great deal more liberty, both to build and plant, Jer. 25. 4,5,6.) they might remove hither or thither, and so in time many of them might be scattered up and down into several Countries and Nations, and especially in the Country of the Medes and Persians, who were adjacent: To which purpose see what is spoken in Ezek. 12. 14, 15. Jer. 29. 14. and 32. 37. Ezek. 11. 16, 17. Dan. 9. 7. Or, 3. What if it be said, that the Babylonians might sell many of the Jews, whom they carryed Captives, unto the Medes and Persians? by which means they might come to be scattered up and down in those Provinces. See Joel 3. 3, 7. Zech. 11. 5. Or, 4. The Medes and Persians might, after the death of Nebuchadnezzar, win and take from the Babylonians some places where many of the Jews did inhabit. Or, 5. Some correspondence there might be between between the Babylonians and the Medes, eſpecially if that be true which ſome ſame ſay, viz. That Nebuchadnezzar, or rather his ſon Evilmerodach, did marry Nitocris (the daughter of Cyaxares or Ahaſuerus) whereby there might be a free intercourſe between the people under the one and the other; and ſo conſequently the Jews, which were brought into Babylon, might come at length to live up and down in the Country of the Medes. But indeed the Hiſtories of thoſe times being ſo various and uncertain, I cannot determine any thing herein poſitively.

The years after the captivity.

THE RETURN.

IN the firſt year of Cyrus over the Perſian Monarchy (the Babylonians being brought under the Perſians, and the ſeventy years of the Jews Captivity being ended) there was a Proclamation for Liberty, for ſuch of the Jews as would, to return to Jeruſalem to build the Temple. This I reckon to be the year after the ſeventy years were fully ended, becauſe it is ſaid that the ſeventy years were to be fulfilled and accompliſhed, 2 Chron. 36. 21, 22. Jer. 29. 10. and 25. 12. and therefore the Liberty for the Return ſeems to be about the year of the World 3478. as appears by adding the ſeventy years of the Captivity to the year of the World when the Captivity began. 70

The years after the Captivity.

There ſeems, I confeſs, to be a paſſage or two in the Propheſie of Zechariah, which intimate, as if the end of the ſeventy years Captivity was not in the firſt year of Cyrus, but many years after, viz. in the ſecond year of Darius; for ſo the words of the Angel there ſeem to hold forth, Zech. 1. 12. with Verſe 15. How long wilt thou not have mercy on Jeruſalem, and on the Cities of Judah, againſt which thou haſt had indignation theſe threeſcore and ten years: This was ſpoken in the ſecond year of Darius, Verſ. 1. Some thereupon have conceived, that there was a double end of the ſeventy years Captivity, viz. the one in reference to the Captivity begun in the time of Jehojakim, which (they ſay) ended in the firſt year of Cyrus; the other in reference to that which began in Zedekiah's time, which they think might end in the ſecond year of Darius. But in ſhort (omitting this and ſuch like Anſwers that may be given) the meaning of thoſe words I conceive to be plainly this, viz. That the Angel did intend onely the ſeventy years which had been foretold, but now were ended, and that for ſome ſpace of time (viz. ſo much as from the firſt year of Cyrus) and therefore did humbly expoſtulate and plead with the Lord for the finiſhing and perfecting of the City Jeruſalem and the Temple, ſeeing that thoſe ſeventy years were fulfilled, and the full time of the peoples Captivity and Tribulation was come and paſt: and ſo the demonſtrative particle הז doth intimate, pointing at that remarkable and known Period, not as ending juſt at the time then preſent, but paſt divers years before: as the like expreſſion we have afterward, Zech. 7. 3, 5. where there is the ſame particle again, pointing at the ſame Period of the ſeventy years, which we cannot underſtand as ſpeaking of the ſame as ending juſt then when the words were ſpoken, for this was two years after the former, viz. in the fourth year of Darius, Verſ. 1. and the particle זה in the fifth Verſe is is tranſlated (not theſe, but) [thoſe] ſeventy years: and ſo it may alſo as well be rendered, Chap. 1. 12. thoſe ſeventy years, rather then theſe ſeventy years, having reference to the ſeventy years ending in the firſt year of Cyrus. The years after the Captivity.

The Reason why onely the Names of the Kings of Persia, and so also of the Kings of Syria and Egypt, are here mentioned, and not the years of their Reign, is because of the great uncertainty of them in the Historians that write of them: yea, the very Number and Names of the Kings themselves are not certainly to be determined.

Note, That the first and last years of this Period are accounted in the 490 years.

The years after the Return from Captivity.

The VII. Period.

THe Seventh Period, begining at the end of the seventy years Captivity in the first year of the Monarchy of Cyrus, when he proclaimed Liberty for the Jews to return again to Jerusalem, and ending in the year of the Death of JESUS CHRIST, doth consist of 490 years, signified by those seventy Weeks in Dan. 9. 24. &c. which Weeks are generally understood, not of days, but years; each day for a year: which seventy being multiplyed by seven (every week consisting of seven days) do make 490. For it is usual in Scripture to signifie years by days; see Numb. 14. 34. Ezek. 4. 5, 6. and so in the Revelation, the number of years are set out by the number of days, Rev. 11. 3. and 12. 6.

Now because that place in Daniel 9. is so remarkable, and the ground and foundation of this last Period, I shall here set down the words thereof, that we may set our selves to understand the matter, and consider the Vision (as the Angel said when he spake the words to Daniel) especially so far as may concern our purpose.

Vers. 24. Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people, and upon thy holy City, to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision and prophesie, and to anoint the most holy.

25. Know therefore and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem, unto the Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks; and three-score and two weeks the street shall be built again, and the wall, even in troublous times.

26. And after three-score and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off, but not for himself; and the people of the Prince that shall come, shall destroy the City, and the Sanctuary, and the

the end thereof ſhall be with a Flood, and unto the War deſolations are determined.

27. And he ſhall confirm the Covenant with many for one week: and in the midſt of the week he ſhall cauſe the ſacrifice and the oblation to ceaſe, and for the overſpreading of abominations he ſhall make it deſolate, even until the conſummation, and that determined ſhall be poured upon the deſolate.

The years after the Return.

The holy man Daniel, perceiving and underſtanding by Books (eſpecially the Book of the Propheſie of Jeremy) that the number of the ſeventy years Captivity was expired, did ſet himſelf by Faſting and Prayer to ſeek the Lord for the repairing of the Deſolations both of the Sanctuary or Temple, and of the City Jeruſalem, and the Return of the people out of Captivity: whereupon the Lord was pleaſed preſently to ſend him a comfortable Anſwer and Meſſage by an Angel, not onely of the Deliverance from their Babyloniſh Captivity, but alſo from the Spiritual Captivity, by reaſon of ſin and tranſgreſſion, by the Death of the Meſſiah; which ſhould be after the ſet and determined time, viz. at the end of ſeventy Weeks. Seventy Weeks are determined upon thy people (ſays he) and upon thy holy City, to finiſh the tranſgreſſion, and to make an end of ſins, &c.

Now for the underſtanding this Scripture, ſo far as concerns our Chronological buſineſs (paſſing by other things, which otherwiſe were uſeful to be conſidered) I ſhall ſpeak ſomething touching theſe three Chronological Queſtions.

Viz.
1. When or where we are to begin theſe ſeventy weeks, or 490 years?
2. When or where we are to ſet the end and period of them?
3. What is the meaning of thoſe Sections of the ſeventy weeks, into 7, 62, and 1?

The firſt Queſtion is about the begining of the ſeventy weeks, or 490 years: The determination whereof is neceſſary; for if that be uncertain, then will the years of the World from the Creation unto Chriſt be at an uncertainty alſo. Now there are many different apprehenſions about the begining of the ſeventy weeks; and amongſt the reſt four, which ſeem to have moſt authority and probability for the ſame: for all of them are founded upon thoſe words in the 25 Verſe; Know and underſtand, that from the going forth of the commandment to reſtore and build Jeruſalem, &c. For accordingly as men do apprehend the Edict or Commandment to build Jeruſalem to have gone forth, ſo have they determined the begining of the ſeventy weeks. Hereupon

The years after the Return.

Some do begin them

1. At the firſt year of Cyrus over the Perſian Monarchy, when he made a general Proclamation for Liberty for any of the Jews to return to Jeruſalem to build the Temple; and did alſo reſtore the Veſſels of the Temple to be carryed thither, Ezra 1. Thus Calvin, Broughton, Finch, and Piſcator.
2. At the ſecond year of Darius Nothus (ſome think rather Darius Hyſtaſpis) who made a large Decree for the furtherance of the building of the Temple in that year, Ezra 4. 24. with Chap. 6. Thus Scaliger, Junius, and Lively. Mede alſo begins them from Darius Nothus, but not from his ſecond, but ſixth year, when the Temple was finiſhed, in his Treatiſe of Daniel's Weeks.
3. From the ſeventh year of Artaxerxes (ſome ſay he who is called Mnemon, others Longimanus) who in that year granted a large Commiſſion unto Ezra for the furtherance of the Temple, and Sacrifices at Jeruſalem, Ezra 7. 6. &c. Thus Funccius, Perkins, Lansberg, Pye, Rawleigh, Gualter.
4. At the twentieth year of the ſaid Artaxerxes, when he gave Nehemiah a Commiſſion to build and repair Jeruſalem, with Gates, Walls, &c. Nehem. 2. 1. to 9. Thus Pawell, Pontanus, Lydiat.

Now

Now to me it is moſt probable, that the begining of the ſeventy Weeks was at that time when the Angel revealed this Myſtery unto Daniel, which was indeed the firſt year of Darius, Dan. 9. 1. and that was (as is generally conceived) in the ſame year wherein Cyrus entered upon the Perſian Monarchy; and the Reaſons which prevail with me are theſe: The years after the Return.

1. Becauſe (as all grant from Verſ. 25.) the ſeventy weeks did then begin when the commandment did go forth to reſtore and build Jeruſalem; but that was (as I believe) in the firſt year of Cyrus, Ezra 1. 1. &c. where although expreſs mention be not made for the building of Jeruſalem, but of the Temple (as ſome do object) yet it is implyed that they had alſo liberty to build themſelves houſes in Jeruſalem about the Temple, or neer unto it, for their convenient or neceſſary habitation: Indeed the Temple onely might be expreſſed in the Proclamation of Cyrus, but it ſeems more then probable that the building of Jeruſalem alſo was implyed and intended: 1. Becauſe the people of the Jews did upon that Grant go about the building of the City as well as of the Temple, Ezra 4. 1, 12. neither were they charged by their malicious Adverſaries (who did write againſt them, and complained of them to the King) for going beyond their Commiſſion in building the City more then in building the Temple. 2. Becauſe it was propheſied and foretold long before, by the Prophet Iſaiah from the Lord, that Cyrus ſhould build (not the Temple onely, but) the City alſo, Iſa. 44. 28. and 45. 13. 3. Becauſe the Temple was a part, yea a principal part of Jeruſalem. As for the Edict granted in the ſecond year of Darius, and that alſo in the ſeventh year of Artaxerxes, they were not expreſly for the building of Jeruſalem, but for the Temple, and for the furtherance of the Worſhip of the Lord therein, as will appear if the places be obſerved, viz. Ezra 6. 6. to 13. and 7. 11. to 27. and therefore that firſt year of Cyrus may as well be concluded to be the begining of the ſeventy years, from Daniel 9. 25. as either the ſecond year of Darius, or the ſeventh year of Artaxerxes. Neither was was that Commiſſion in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes (which was given to Nehemiah) for the building either of the Temple or City ſo much, as for the re-edifying and repairing of the Walls, which (being built before by them that had returned from the Captivity) were broken down by the Adverſaries, Neh. 1. 3. and 2. 8, 13, 17.

2. If the ſeventy weeks did not begin at that year when the Angel brought that Meſſage unto Daniel, then he had been left at uncertainties, and ſo ſtill in a comfortleſs condition: for what was he the neerer or the better to be told, that after ſeventy weeks (which were to begin he knew not when, or how long time after) the Meſſias ſhould come and make an end of tranſgreſſion? &c. he had been left but as he was before: for he knew before, that the Meſſias was to come and finiſh tranſgreſſion, as appears in that he was a Believer, and did alſo expreſly pray in the Name of Chriſt, Verſ. 17. of this ninth Chap. therefore without doubt the Angel intended, and ſo Daniel alſo underſtood, that from that time (there being no other time mentioned or intimated) the ſeventy years Captivity being at an end, the ſeventy weeks did begin. And therefore (by the way) I look at that Opinion, as a fanſie far enough from the Truth, That the ſeventy weeks in Daniel are cut out for the reſtauration of the ſpiritual Jeruſalem (viz. the Church of Chriſt) from the Babylonian ſervitude of Antichriſt, and muſt end in the full purgation thereof from Antichriſtian defilements, &c. for if thoſe ſeventy weeks (which were revealed unto him as a ſpecial favor and comfort) were not to begin he knew not how many hundred years after that time (for according to that Opinion, the begining of thoſe weeks was not till above 1600 years after) neither did the Angel mention any ſet time at all for the begining of them: therefore the Prophet had been left then at an utter uncertainty, if that very time and year was not the time whence they were to begin: and to what end ſhould the Expiration of the Antichriſtian Apoſtacy (after the end of ſeventy weeks) be revealed unto him, if he knew neither ther when that Apoſtacy ſhould begin, nor yet when the begining of thoſe ſeventy weeks ſhould be; neither of which being revealed unto him?

The years after the Return.

3. If the begining of the ſeventy weeks did not take place at the end of the Captivity, but in ſome of the Perſian Kings Reign, then it cannot be certainly and exactly known (though Mr. Livelie, in his Preface to Perſian Monarchy, ſpeaks confidently of his exactneſs, at leaſt within two years) in regard of the great differences about the times and years of the Perſian Kings, there being no certain account to be had either of the number of the Kings, or of the Years of the Reign of each of them: As may appear by the Table hereunto annexed, touching the ſame.

A TABLE,

Shewing the variety of Opinions about the Number of the Perſian Kings, and the years of their ſeveral Reigning; and alſo of the Continuance of that Monarchy.

The Number of the Perſian Kings

Ahaſuerus	Darius.

So that the difference about the number of the Kings, is as much as is between 14 & 4.

The Difference about the years, or the time, which each King did reign.

	For according unto Some.	Others.
Cyrus did reign	31 y.	3. y.
Cambyſes	17.	6.
Magi	1.	0. 7. m.

Whence

Whence it follows, That it cannot certainly be determined in what year of the World, either the ſecond year of Darius, or the ſeventh, or the twentieth year of Artaxerxes, did fall upon. To which I ſhall add this, which ſtill increaſeth the uncertainty of the begining of the ſeventy weeks, if we begin them not from the firſt year of Cyrus, and the end of the ſeventy years Captivity; viz. That it is not certainly and unanimouſly agreed upon, either which Darius it was, in whoſe ſecond year that Decree in Ezra 4. 24. came forth; for ſome ſay it was Darius Hyſtaſpis, others affirm him to be Darius Nothus, between whom there was a great diſtance in time: or which Artaxerxes it was, in whoſe ſeventh year Ezra had his Commiſſion, and in whoſe twentieth year Nehemiah had another granted him; for ſome call him Artaxerxes Longimanus, and others, Artaxerxes Mnemon, between which two it is acknowledged that there were many years: whereby we ſee there is uncertainty upon uncertainty, and nothing but uncertainties. And if the begining of the ſeventy weeks be uncertain, by placing it, not at the firſt year of Cyrus, but at any of the years of the other Perſian Kings, then theſe Inconveniences further will follow; viz. 1. That there is neceſſarily a great hiatus or Interciſion of the Scripture-account of Time from the Creation unto Chriſt; whereas if they begin at the firſt year of Cyrus, there is a continued chain of Scripture-Chronology from the Creation of the firſt Adam unto the Death of the ſecond Adam. And, 2. This alſo ſeems to follow, viz. That the Fulneſs of Time appointed for the Coming of the Meſſiah, and conſequently of his Sufferings, could not have been ſo certainly known and found out before-hand by any thing expreſſed in the Scripture: whereas his Coming was expected by the Jews, much about the time when he came; and thence (through the malice and ſubtilty of Satan) it was that many falſe Chriſts did ariſe much about that time: and had not that time been intimated in the Scripture, neither could the holy men in the times before Chriſt have ſearched and found out the ſeaſon of his Coming and Sufferings, as it ſeems they did, 1 Pet. 1. 10, 11.

The years after the Return.

The years after the Return.

10, 11, 12. neither yet ſhould the Jews have been ſo blameworthy for not obſerving the times and ſeaſon of Chriſts Coming in the Fleſh, as well as they did diſcern the Face of the Sky, Matth. 16. 3.

For theſe Reaſons I am led to begin the ſeventy weeks at the end of the ſeventy years Captivity, and the firſt year of the Monarchy of Cyrus: the which Mr. Calvin affirms with confidence: Certum eſt (ſays he) 70 annos, & 70 hebdom. ſimul conjungi.

The ſecond Queſtion is about the End of the ſeventy weeks; concerning which there are many different Opinions, and amongſt the reſt theſe three eſpecially:

Viz.
1. At the Baptiſm of Chriſt. So (it is ſaid) Melanct. Salmer.
2. At the Death and Paſſion of Chriſt. Thus Broughton, Piſcator, Pye, Funccius, Willet, Perkins, Speed, Lansberg.
3. At the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem by Titus Veſpaſ. Thus Polan. Finch, Scaliger, &c. Onely Scaliger differs from others in this, viz. That he accounts upon ſeventy weeks and an half to have been mentioned unto Daniel by the Angel, Verſ. 27. and ſo that half week over to have ended at the deſtruction of Jeruſalem.

Now I incline to them that determine the end of the ſeventy years, at the Death and Sufferings of Chriſt, for theſe Reaſons:

1. Becauſe thoſe things which the Angel mentioneth Verſ. 24. are properly the effects of Chriſt's Death; for thus he ſaith, Seventy weeks are determined, (1) to finiſh tranſgreſſion, and to make an end of ſins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity; and (2) to bring in everlaſting righteouſneſs; and (3) to ſeal up the viſion and propheſie; and (4) to anoint the moſt holy. Now Chriſt by his Death, (1) did finiſh tranſgreſſion, made an end of ſin, and made reconciliation: (all which ſeveral expreſſions ſeem to hold out one and the ſame thing:) for by his Death, he gave a Ranſom, and made Satisfaction, and wrought Re-

Redemption for his people; Epheſ. 1. 7. Coloſ. 1. 14, 20, 21, 22. Heb. 9. 26. 1 Joh. 1. 7. Revel. 1. 5. And (2) that alſo is the conſummation of perfect righteouſneſs, and the ground of our being righteous before God, Rom. 3. 25. Phil. 3. 9. 2 Cor. 5. ult. 2 Pet. 1. 1. And (3) thereby was the ſealing up (or Conſummation) of the Viſion and Propheſie, viz. concerning the Meſſiah; for all the Prophets did teſtifie of him, and to him did all the Sacrifices look and point, Acts 10. 43. Luke 22. 37. Coloſ. 2. 17. 1 Pet. 1. 10, 11. And (4) by his Blood he may truly be ſaid to have anointed the moſt holy; as the High-Prieſt (being a Type of him) did anoint the moſt holy place, by preſenting and ſprinkling of Blood; as the Apoſtle, Heb. 9. 1. to 13. doth make the parallel between them. The Reaſon of the Angel's mentioning the Deſtruction of the City and Sanctuary, Verſ. 26. is conceived by divers Learned, to be chiefly to ſet out the dreadful vengeance of God that ſhould fall upon the Jews for putting the Meſſiah to Death: and therefore it is not neceſſary that the Deſtruction of the City and Sanctuary ſhould come within the limits of the ſeventy weeks, but did onely follow as the fruit of their cruelty towards him. The years after the Return.

2. Becauſe it is ſaid, Verſ. 27. that in the laſt week the Meſſiah ſhould confirm the Covenant, and cauſe the Sacrifice and Oblation to ceaſe. Now when was the Covenant confirmed, but at and by the Death of Chriſt? as the Apoſtle ſpeaks expreſly, Heb. 9. 16, 17. And when were the Sacrifices and Oblations cauſed to ceaſe, but when Chriſt did offer up himſelf a Sacrifice unto God upon the Croſs? Heb. 10. 5, 10. for the Body being come, the ſhadows and Types of Chriſt's Death were to be aboliſhed, Coloſ. 2. 17. But if the ſeventy weeks did not end before the Deſtruction of the City, then the confirmation of the Covenant, and the cauſing of the Sacrifices and Oblations to ceaſe by the Death of Chriſt, could not be in the laſt week, as the Angel ſaid: For the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem was (as is generally acknowledged) about fourty years after the Death of Chriſt.

The third Queſtion is about the Sections of the ſeventy weeks; viz. How we are to underſtand thoſe ſeven weeks, and threeſcore and two weeks, and one week? for ſo the Angel doth parcel out and divide the ſeventy weeks.

Scaliger (in Proleg. & l. 6. de Emendat. Temp.) ſeems to make no account at all of thoſe Sections and Diviſions; and ſays, there is no more in them then in the Diviſion of the Maneh (which was a kinde of weight uſed amongſt the Jews) into 20, 25, and 15 Shekels, viz. ſixty in all, mentioned in Ezek. 45. 12. Mr. Mede alſo (in his Treatiſe of Daniel's Weeks) ſeems to nullifie the firſt parcel of the ſeven weeks, making it to be but a general expreſſion of what in the ſixty two weeks (following) is more particularly determined; and therefore reads it (not as our Tranſlation doth, ſhall be ſeven weeks, and ſixty two weeks, but) thus, ſhall be ſevens of weeks, even ſixty two weeks: So that by ſevens of weeks (as he tranſlates it) he meaneth nothing elſe but many weeks. Now although I confeſs it not very eaſie to determine certainly the exact meaning or reaſon of thoſe ſeveral Sections, yet it is out of doubt to me that it was not for nothing that they were thus divided by the Angel ſpeaking from the Lord, and therefore that there was a divine wiſdom in the ſame: but I believe the reaſon of the parcelling them out into ſuch Sections, is the more difficult to us to underſtand, by reaſon that the Records and ſtories of things after the Return, are not brought to light: therefore I ſhall be the leſs ſolicitous to determine the cauſe and reaſon of the Sections.

The firſt Section is ſeven weeks, which make 49 years: poſſibly thoſe ſeven weeks might ſignifie the time from the Return out of Babylon, when Liberty was granted to the Jews for the building of the Temple, unto the finiſhing of it in the ſixth year of Darius, Ezra 6. 15. For after they had begun the work, within a ſhort time they were made to ceaſe, through the complaint of their Adverſaries, until the ſecond year of Darius (which might be about 46 years from the firſt year of Cyrus) and then the King making a new Decree for the furtherance of the Building, it was ſet upon afreſh, and finiſhed in the ſpace of three whole years, or little more, viz.

viz. in the sixth year of Darius: So that in all, from the first year of Cyrus, wherein they might begin that work, unto the sixth year of Darius, wherein it was finished, there might be 49 years, or seven weeks. The years after the Return.

The second Section is of sixty two weeks, after the former seven, viz. from the sixth year of Darius, when the Temple should be finished: and so many weeks, viz. sixty two there should be from that time before the week wherein the Messiah should be cut off. Mr. Lydiat (in Emend. Temp. p. 167.) thinks that these sixty two weeks was the time from the sixth year of Darius unto the preaching of the Gospel by John Baptist: but then it would follow, that John did preach and baptize about three years and an half before Christ was baptized, and did enter upon his Prophetical Office: which is contrary to the received Opinion, viz. That John began to preach and baptize in the fifteenth year of Tiberius, and that Christ also was baptized by him in that very year, Luke 3. 1. I conceive therefore, that we may more safely affirm, That these sixty two weeks were that space from the finishing of the Temple, which did extend to that week wherein the Messiah was cut off.

The third Section is of one week, which was the last of the seventy, wherein the Messiah was to be cut off. Now this week the Angel seems to divide into two halves, intimating thereby, some special thing was to come to pass about the middle of that week, and that might be the Baptism of Christ, and also his entering upon his Prophetical Office to preach and work Miracles: and then in the end of that week (which was the other half) he should be slain and cut off: and so by his Death he caused the Sacrifice and Oblation to cease. And indeed that space of three years and an half, from the Baptism of Christ unto his Death, may be gathered by the Passovers, which are mentioned after his Baptism, viz. these four; although Vossius (in Dissertat. de Temp. Dom. Passionis) affirms confidently that there were but two Passovers which Christ lived to partake of after his Baptism; and Lansberg but three, in Chronol. Sacr. lib. 2. c. 11. But there seems to be footsteps for four: Viz. 1. In

1. In Joh. 2. 13, 23. which probably might be about half a year (more or leſs) after he was baptized: for it cannot be, that that miracle of turning Water into Wine was wrought three days after his Baptiſm, as ſome expound that expreſſion in Joh. 2. 1. [And the third day there was a marriage, &c.] becauſe they finde it to be ſaid, Verſ. 13. that the Paſſover was nigh at hand: For it is certain that Chriſt's Temptation (which was immediately after his Baptiſm, Mark 1. 12.) did continue fourty days together.
2. In Joh. 5. 1. which Feaſt (although ſome do queſtion it, whether it was the Paſſover; yea, and Voſſius affirms it very confidently with a [ſine dubio] that it is the Feaſt of Pentecoſt there meant; which he confirms onely from this, viz. becauſe it follows the Feaſt of the Paſſover mentioned before in Chap. 2. (how weak a reaſon that is, I leave to others to judg:) yet, according to the received Rule, it muſt be taken for the Paſſover; viz. That where a Feaſt is mentioned indefinitely, there it is to be underſtood of the Paſſover; which was the greateſt Feaſt: as Matth. 26. 2. with Verſ. 5.
3. Is that which is expreſly mentioned in Joh. 6. 4. at which place Voſſius (becauſe it pincheth him) is fain to wreſt and wring; for here he findes the Feaſt of the Paſſover after the Feaſt of Pentecoſt (as he would have that to be in Joh. 5. 1.) and before the Feaſt of Tabernacles, mentioned Joh. 7. 2. and therefore affirms it to be his laſt Paſſover before his Death (which was the very next day) and that it is mentioned in Chap. 6. 4. by an ὑστερον πρωτερον: which what colour or ſhadow there can be for, I cannot ſee, ſeeing if it did not belong to the ſtory there related, there was no neceſſity of bringing it in there at all, and might have been as well or rather better left out then put in, as any body may eaſily ſee: And if it doth belong to that ſtory of Chriſt's feeding five thouſand with five Loaves and two Fiſhes, then certainly it could not poſſibly be the laſt

Paſſover

Paſſover he kept, becauſe in that very night he was taken and carryed before the High-Prieſt, but in the night after that Miracle he was walking upon the Sea; as appears by Verſ. 14. to 21. of that ſixth Chap.

The years after the Return.

The fourth is mentioned in Joh. 11. 55. 12. 1. 18. 39. in all which places his laſt Paſſover before his Death is ſpoken of.

Now theſe four Paſſovers do ſhew, that there were three years after the Baptiſm of Chriſt before his Death, and ſo much over as there was from his Baptiſm unto the next Paſſover after, which we may conceive to be about half a year, viz. ſo much as might make up the laſt half week of the ſeventy, mentioned by the Angel unto Daniel.

In theſe ſeventy weeks, or 490 years, there were (1) the Perſian, (2) the Grecian or Macedonian, and (3) ſome part of the Roman Monarchy, ſucceſſively one after another. But how many years are to be allowed to each of them, is not eaſie to determine (by reaſon of the vaſt differences in Hiſtorians, who write the ſtories of them, and eſpecially about the Perſian Monarchy, as is to be ſeen by the Table of the Perſian Account, pag. 216.) neither indeed am I very ſolicitous about the exact determination of them, ſeeing we have the general ſum of the years from the Return out of Babylon to the Death of Chriſt in the ſeventy weeks. The beſt way (as I conceive) to come to a neer gueſs at the years of the Continuance of thoſe Monarchies, is by begining to reckon from the Roman (which ſeem to be the moſt clear) and ſo backward to the Grecian; and the years which remain to make up 490, are to be allowed unto the Perſian Monarchy, about the Continuance whereof there is the moſt uncertainty.

Now we ſhall finde that the Roman Empire, at the Death of Chriſt, had continued about ſeventy years, or thereabout, ſome few over or under, viz. from the firſt year of Julius Cæſar unto the 18 year of Tiberius. And the years of the Grecian Monarchy are generally acknowledged (with little difference) to have been about 290, more or leſs, which together gether do take up about 360 of the 490 years; whereby it appears that there were about 130 years taken up in the Perſian Monarchy: and indeed the Age of Nehemiah (who lived from the Captivity till about the end of the Perſian Monarchy; for he makes mention of Jaddua the High-Prieſt at the time when Alexander the great overthrew the Perſian Empire, Neh. 12. 11. and in Verſ. 22. where alſo he mentioneth Darius the laſt King of the Perſians) do intimate, that the Perſian Monarchy could not eaſily extend beyond 130 years.

The Perſian Monarchy.

FRom the firſt year of Cyrus unto the time that Alexander the great overcame Darius, the laſt of the Perſian Kings, were (as it ſeems, upon the grounds and reaſons intimated already) about 130 years. And becauſe there is ſuch difference both about the Kings that reigned, and alſo about the years of the Reign of each of them, I ſhall ſpend the leſs time about the ſame; onely contenting my ſelf with naming of thoſe who are moſt generally acknowledged; which I conceive may not be altogether unuſeful, in regard that ſome particulars mentioned in the Scripture do ſeem to have reference to ſome of them.

Cyrus.

Whether he had the Kingdom of Babylon by force or alyance from Darius the Mede, or as co-partner with him, is uncertain, by reaſon of the variety and contrariety of relations about the ſame, although the latter may ſeem to be moſt probable. In the firſt year of his Government over the Perſian Monarchy, he proclaimed Liberty for the Return of of the Jews unto Jeruſalem at the end of the ſeventy years Captivity in Babylon, Ezra 1. 1. according to what was foretold about 200 years before by the Prophet, Iſai. 44. 28. and 45. 1. The years after the Return.

Cambyſes.

He is ſuppoſed by ſome to be that Prince of Perſia mentioned in Dan. 10. 13. who hindered the building of the Temple in the time of his Fathers abſence. Some alſo do imagine that he was that Artaxerxes in Ezra 4. 7. to whom the Adverſaries of the Jews did write, whereupon the work of the Houſe of God ceaſed.

Darius Hyſtaſpis.

He is thought to be that Darius King of Perſia, ſpoken of in Ezra 4. 5, 24. and 6. 1, 15. who furthered the building of the Temple, and in whoſe time Haggai and Zachariah did propheſie. There are who call him Ahaſuerus, and ſay it was he who marryed Eſther; the which, I confeſs, may ſeem more probable then that it was any other of the Perſian Kings, in regard of the age both of Mordecai and Eſther: for the further off from the Captivity and Return from Babylon that that ſtory is placed, ſtill the older they muſt be, and ſo the leſs probability there will be for it. But I do rather incline to think it was before the time of the Perſian Monarchy, viz. in the time of the Captivity, as is ſaid before.

The years after the Return.

Xerxes.

This is generally conceived to be that fourth King mentioned in Dan. 11. 2. who is foretold there, that he ſhould be far richer then all the Kings of Perſia that were before him. Scaliger thinks and affirms it very confidently (but his proof is no infallible demonſtration) that this was that Ahaſuerus who marryed Eſther.

Artaxerxes Longimanus.

He was ſo ſirnamed from his Long-hand: He is thought by ſome to be he who is mentioned in Ezra 7. 1. and Neh. 2. 1. and who gave a Commiſſion unto Ezra in the ſeventh year of his Reign, and another alſo unto Nehemiah in his twentieth year, for the furtherance of the work at Jeruſalem. How right Sir W. R. is in affirming this to be that Ahaſuerus, whoſe Queen Eſther was, I leave to the judgment of others.

Darius Nothus.

This man ſome think was that Darius who furthered the building of the Temple, and in whoſe ſixth yeare it was finiſhed, mentioned Ezra 4. 24. and 6. 15. rather then the other Darius, who is ſirnamed Hyſtaſpis, becauſe there is an Artaxerxes between the ceſſation of the work about the Temple, and this Darius, in whoſe time it was furthered, Ezra 4. 7. whereas there ſeems to be no Artaxerxes before the other Darius.

The years after the Return.

Artaxerxes Mnemon.

His firname was given him (as it ſeems) from his Memory: Sir W. R. conceives that this was he, in whoſe Court Nehemiah had the Office of Cup-bearer, and who in his twentieth year gave him his Commiſſion about the repairing of Jeruſalem, Neh. 2.

Darius Ochus.

Concerning whom the Scripture ſeems to make no mention.

Arſes or Arſames.

Of whom the Scripture is alſo ſilent, and ſo ſhall I likewiſe be.

Darius Codomannus.

He is generally accounted to be laſt King of the Perſians; who being wholy routed by Alexander the Great at Arbela, the Perſian Monarchy (together with himſelf) had its Period, having continued (as is ſaid before) about the ſpace of 130 years.

The years after the Return.

The Grecian Monarchy.

Alexander the Great having overthrown the Persians (therefore he is thought to be that He-goat that smote the Ram with two horns, Dan. 8. 5, 6, 7.) thence the account of the Grecian Monarchy begins to take place, about the year of the World 3610. taking it for granted that the 130 Persian Monarchy continued 130 years, which added to the year of the World at the Return from Babylon, and the begining of the Persian Empire, do make up that number of years. The continuance of this Monarchy is accounted to be about 299. more or less.

After the Death of Alexander, his Dominions were divided amongst divers of his Princes and Captains, and after a short time fell into the hands of four, as is also intimated, Dan. 8. 8.

Viz. of
- Seleucus, who had Assyria, Asia the greater, and part of Syria.
- Ptolomeus Lagus, whose Dominion was over Egypt, and the other part of Syria.
- Antigonus, who ruled over Asia the lesser.
- Cassander, whose share was Macedonia and Greece.

But at length all were reduced and brought under the two former of them, viz. Seleucus, who, in Dan. 11. with his Successors, are called the Kings of the North, and Ptolomeus, who with his Successors also are called the Kings of the South.

And because there may be some use of the Names of the Kings of these two Kingdoms, for the better understanding of the Expositions of Daniel (not troubling my self about the account of the years which they reigned) I shall here set down the Names of the Kings in both those Kingdoms.

The

The Kings of SYRIA, called the Seleucidæ.

Seleucus Nicanor, from whom the account used in the Books of the Maccab. seem to run.
Antiochus Soter.
Antiochus Theos: He is said to have married the daughter of Ptol. Philadelphus, as Dan. 11. 6.
Seleucus Callinicus.
Seleucus Ceraunus.
Antiochus Magnus.
Seleucus Philopater, who is called a Raiser of Taxes, Dan. 11. 20.
Antiochus Epiphanes, called a vile person, Dan. 11. 21.
Antiochus Eupater.
Demetrius Soter.
Demetrius Nicanor.
Typhon.
Antiochus Sedetes.
Alexander Sebenna.
Antiochus Gryphus.
Cyzicenus.

The Kingdom of Syria being in Civil Wars, became a prey to Tygranes King of the Parthians, who not long after was subdued by the Romans, and so Syria came to be under the Roman Monarchy.

The Kings of EGYPT, called the Lagidæ.

Ptolomeus Lagus.
Ptol. Philadelphus, who is famous for his great Library, and for procuring the Translation of the Hebrew Bible into Greek by the Septuagint.
Ptol. Evergetes.
Ptol. Philopater.
Ptol. Epiphanes.
Ptol. Philometer.
Ptol. Physcon.
Ptol. Alexander.
Ptol. Lathurus.
Ptol. Auletes.
Ptol. Dyonisius, who slew Pompey treacherously, when he fled to him for refuge.
Cleopatra, she was Minion first to Julius Cæsar, and then afterward unto Marc. Antony: she hearing of the overthrow of M. Antony in the Battel at Actium, made her self away, by applying (as it is said) of Asps unto her breasts: after which Egypt (as it is said) was made a Province under the Roman Empire.

The years after the Return.

Jerusalem

The years after the Return.

[57]

Jerusalem was taken and made subject to the Roman State by Pompey, almost sixty years before the Birth of Christ, and about ninety (more or less) before his Death; and between a dozen and twenty years before the Begining of the Roman Empire under Julius Cesar.

The occasion of the Taking it was (as it is said) briefly this; Alexander the High-Priest, and King of the Jews (being the second that was called King amongst them after the Captivity, for it seems his Father Aristobulus had taken that Title upon him before) left two sons, viz. Hyrcanus and Aristobulus: the elder of them, viz. Hyrcanus, being put by the High-Priesthood by his Brother, makes his address for help unto Pompey (the Roman Generall). He being perswaded, goes and takes Jerusalem (by means of the Divisions in the City) making it Tributary to the Romans, sends Aristobulus Prisoner to Rome, and puts Hyrcanus into the High-Priesthood: but withall Antipater (who was not a Jew, but an Ascalonite) was set up Procurator over the civil affairs of Judea, after whom succeeded his son Herod in his place, who obtained of the Roman Senate to be the King of Judea: and so the Prophesie of Jacob, Genes. 49. 10. about the Coming of Shiloh (the Scepter being departed from Judah) was now neer to be fulfilled: and indeed in the days of Herod the King was Christ born, Matth. 2. 1.

And because mention is often made in the New Testament of divers Herods, I shall here crave leave (by the way) to set down a brief Genealogy of Herod, whereby may be understood the better, what Herod is spoken of in one place, and another.

Herod

Herod (the ſon of Antipater) called Herod the Great, in whoſe time (as is ſaid) Chriſt was born, left four ſons: The years after the Return.

Viz.
- Philip, Tetrarch in Iturea and Trachonitis, Luke 3. 1.
- Archelaus, Tetrarch in Judea
- Liſanias, Tetrarch in Abilene
- Herod Antipas, Tetrarch in Galilee, Matth. 2. 22. This was he that beheaded John Baptiſt, Mat. 14. and who mocking Chriſt, ſent him back to Pilate, Luke 23. 11. This Herod Antipas had a ſon called Herod Agrippa, who killed James, and impriſoned Peter, Acts 12.

The Roman Monarchy.

After the Grecian Empire was ſain, then this of the Roman aroſe, and did indeed ariſe out of the rubbiſh and ruines of the other. The Riſe and Begining of it is accounted to be when Julius Cæſar got the Dictatorſhip or Government of the Romans alone into his own hand; which was about 420 years (more or leſs) after the Return from the Babyloniſh Captivity; as appears by adding the 290 years of the Grecian Empire unto the year after the Return when that Monarchy did begin. I would not here be underſtood to ſpeak definitively to a year or two, but onely about that time, for I am not exactly ſolicitous about the Begining of theſe Empires (whoſe Beginings are not expreſſed in the Scripture) ſeeing we have the begining and ending of this Period, and the ſumma totalis of it, ſo fully ſet down, to be 490 years.

Julius

The years after the Return.

[58]

Julius Cæsar, the first Roman Emperor, began his supream and sole Government about 47 years before the Birth of Christ, or (as is said before) about 80 years before his Death; and continued it (as is generally affirmed) about five years.

[59]

Octavius Augustus, the second Roman Emperor, began to reign about 42 years before the Birth of Christ, and reigned (as is generally acknowledged) about 56 years; but the first twelve of them he governed together with M. Antony, and M. Lepidus (they three being Triumviri, as they were called) the latter 44 years he reigned alone.

JESUS CHRIST, the Eternal Son of GOD, the Saviour of the World, and the promised Messiah, was born of the Virgin Mary in the Fulness of time, viz. about the 457 year current, or 456 compleat, after the Return from the Babylonian Captivity; as appears by substracting the 33 years that Christ lived, out of the 490 years which were cut out from the end of the seventy years Captivity to the slaying of the Messias; and so consequently about the 63 week, and sixth year of that week; and the 3930 year of the World, according to the account which hath been carryed along in this Chain of Chronology: for we found at the end of the 70 years Captivity, and the begining of this VII. Period, that there had been 3473 years compleat from the Creation, unto which these 457 years being added (which is the year after the the end of the Captivity, wherein Chriſt was born) the year of the World at his Birth will appear to be, as is ſaid, 3934. and it is alſo moſt generally received to have been in the 42 year of the Emperor Auguſtus. The years after the Return.

The time of the year when he was born, is no where intimated in the Evangeliſts; neither need we be very inquiſitive after it. It hath indeed been commonly received (eſpecially in latter times) to have been in the tenth month, or December, and on the 25 day of it: but that may very well be doubted of; 1. Becauſe it is not probable that the Shepherds were abroad all night long keeping of their Flocks in the very deep of Winter. 2. Neither is it like that Auguſtus would by his Decree enjoyn all his ſubjects to travel at that time of the year to their chief City to be Taxed. Nor, 3. Is it probable that John did go into the River Jordan with the people that were baptized of him in the very coldeſt part of the year; for He baptized in Jordan when Jeſus was entering upon his thirtieth year, or about the begining of it (not much over or under) Luke 3. 23.

Scaliger, and ſome others, have with more probability (to my apprehenſion) thought, that the Birth of Chriſt was about the ſeventh month, or September: and although the particular time of the year cannot certainly be determined, yet to me it ſeems moſt probable to have been about the latter end of the ſeventh month, which I gather not from the Conception of John Baptiſt (the Argument which Scaliger ſeems to make much of) but from the half week (or three years and an half) which the Angel ſeems to hold out to be between his Baptiſm and Death: For if there was juſt ſo much between them, his Death being juſt at the Paſſover (which was about the end of our firſt month, called March, for the fifteenth day of the Jews Niſan falls about that time of our month) then his Baptiſm muſt be about the latter end of September: Now his Baptiſm was about the begining of his thirtieth year, as is ſaid before.

Chriſt, being about twelve years old, diſputed in the Temple, Luke 2. 42. &c. and therefore it ſeems to have been about the 469 year after the Return, or end of the ſeventy years; as appears by adding twelve to the years after the Return at his Birth; and about the 3946 year of the World.

Tiberius Nero, the third Roman Emperor, ſucceeded Auguſtus after he had reigned 56 years: The begining of the Reign of Tiberius ſeems to be about fifteen years after the Birth of Chriſt: for (as it is ſaid before) he is generally acknowledged to have been born in the 42 year of the Reign of Auguſtus: The time that Tiberius is ſaid to have reigned was 23 years.

Chriſt was Baptized by John Baptiſt in the River Jordan, Matth. 3. 13. when he was about thirty years old: and about the fifteenth year of Tiberius, Luke 3. 1, 23. whether his thirtieth year was compleat and perfect, or ſomewhat ſhort, I cannot determine; yet the words of the Evangeliſt [Καὶ αὐτὸς ἦν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ὡσεὶ ἐτῶν τριάκοντα ἀρχόμενος] And Jeſus himſelf was as it were of thirty years begining (for ſo they may be rendered word for word) do ſeem rather to intimate that he was entered upon his thirtieth year, and that his thirtieth year was begining, or but as it were begun: and this alſo the years of the Roman Emperors do ſeem to confirm; for if we reckon from the 42 year of Auguſtus (wherein it is ſaid he was born) unto the fifteenth year of Tiberius (wherein he was baptized) we ſhall finde that he muſt have but entered upon his thirtieth year: For Auguſtus having reigned (as is commonly ſaid) 56 years, Tiberius did immediately ſucceed him. And for the time of the year wherein he was baptized, methinks the ſpeech of the Angel unto Daniel ſeemeth to hold hold out thus much, viz. that it was about the middle of the year, for his Death was to end half the Week (viz. the latter half of it) which began at his Baptiſm and Preaching: and therefore his Baptiſm muſt be about the month Tizri, which is ſix months before the month Abib (which was the month of the Paſſover, the time when the Jews did put him to death.) Now then the year of his Baptiſm being upon his thirtieth year, ſeems to be about the 487 year after the Return from Captivity; as appears by adding the years of his life at his Baptiſm unto the years after the Return at his Birth; and about the year of the World 3964.

Jeſus Chriſt, the true Paſſover, was (according to the Types and ſhadows in the Jewiſh Sacrifices under the Law) Sacrificed for us upon the Croſs, being Crucified and put to Death by the Jews, through the determinate Counſel of GOD, to finiſh the tranſgreſſion, and to make an end of ſins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlaſting righteouſneſs, and to ſeal up the viſion and propheſie, and to cauſe the ſacrifice and oblation to ceaſe; as was before revealed by the Angel unto Daniel, Dan. 9.24,27. Now it ſeems to have been about three years and an half after his Baptiſm, becauſe the Angel ending the 70 weeks at the Death of Chriſt, ſpeaks of half a week cut out and ſet apart for the confirming of the Covenant, and cauſing the ſacrifices to ceaſe; and that muſt be from his Baptiſm unto his Death: and accordingly we ſhall finde (as hath been ſhewn before, pag. 222.) four Paſſovers (recorded by the Evangeliſt John) which Chriſt did keep after his Baptiſm, viz. Chap. 2. 13, 23. and 5. 1. and 6. 4. and in the 11,12, 13, and 18 Chapters, which mention the fourth and laſt, when he was put to death; which together do make up three full years, and ſo much over as was from his Baptiſm unto the Paſſover next following, which in probability was about half a year. And to this purpoſe alſo, the three High-Prieſts that were between Annas (in whoſe time Chriſt was baptized) and

The years after the Return.

Cajaphas (in whoſe time he was crucified) viz. Iſmael, Eleazar, and Simon, whom Joſephus doth mention, lib. 18. Antiq. c. 3. do intimate, that there might be about three years and an half between his Baptiſm and Death; and not a year onely, and little more, as Voſſius affirms. The ſetting apart alſo of the Paſchal Lamb from the tenth day to the ending of the 14, do ſeem to typifie or point at ſuch a thing. So that hereby we have both the Year, and Month, and Day, of the Death of Chriſt: For the Year, it was the 33 year of his life, and about the middle of it at leaſt, in regard that his Baptiſm was about the Begining of his 30 year (as it is ſaid before) and his Crucifying three years and an half after that. The Month was that which is called Abib or Niſan, being the firſt month of the year, according to the ſacred account of the Jews; for the Paſſover was inſtituted to be kept in that month, which was afterward to be the begining of months, even the firſt month of the year, Exod. 12. 2. And for the Day, the Paſſover was to be obſerved upon the 14 day at Even of that firſt month, Exo. 12. 6, 8, 18. Levit. 23. 5. but indeed he was not Crucified and put to death by the Jews till the 15 day of that month, and ſixth day of the week, which was the day wherein they at that time did keep the Paſſover, in the Evening following; whereas our Saviour himſelf did keep it the Evening before, viz. at the end of the fifth day of the week, and begining of the ſixth, which was moſt according to the Commandment and Inſtitution; for otherwiſe he had not fulfilled all righteouſneſs, but had been a tranſgreſſor. And that Chriſt did not keep it upon the ſame day whereon the Phariſees and Prieſts and Elders did keep it, is plain and evident enough (what ever Toſtatus, or any other, may ſay to the contrary) by what the Evangeliſt John holds forth, viz. That Chriſt was crucified that day which was the Preparation to the Jews Paſſover, and that he lay in the Sepulcher all that day whereon they kept the Paſſover, and reſted as they were commanded, Exod. 12. 16. whereas Chriſt kept it with his Diſciples in that night wherein he was betrayed (which was the night before) Joh. 19. 14. &c. Had the Jews eaten the Paſſover in the Evening when our Saviour viour did, certainly they would not have ventured to have done as they did the day following, which had been the great Feaſt day of unleavened bread, viz. bring him before Pilates judgment ſeat, and cauſe him to be put to death upon that day; yea, neither would Joſeph of Arimathea and Nicodemus (who were pious and devout men) have gone about the burying of him as they did. And whence alſo was it that the Jews made ſcruple of going into the judgment hall themſelves, but Pilate was fain to come out to ſit in judgment in Gabbatha or the Pavement, but becauſe that day being their Preparation day to the Paſſover, they would not defile themſelves, and ſo be hindered from eating it in the Evening following? Joh. 18. 28. and 19. 14. whereby it ſeems that they had not eaten it in the Evening before. Now the ground of the Jews keeping the Paſſover the Evening after that which was according to the Lord's Inſtitution, might be either from that Tradition or Sanction of their Sanedrim, viz. That when the Paſſover did fall upon the Evening after the fifth day of the week (which was the begining of their ſixth day) it was to be tranſlated or deferred to the Evening after, viz. to the begining of the ſeventh day or Sabbath, by reaſon of the difficulty and inconvenience of keeping meat dreſſed, and dead bodies unburyed the two Feſtival days together: the which Tradition or Rule, although Voſſius denies to have been of uſe amongſt the Jews before the time of Chriſt (and therefore could not be the reaſon of their keeping it then the Evening after) yet ſome do affirm it to have been in uſe above 300 years before Chriſt: or elſe perhaps from their cuſtom (as it is ſaid) of deferring the Paſſover till the Equinox, if the fourteenth day of the firſt month did fall before, leſt the old year ſhould not be fully ended, and ſo they might keep two Paſſovers before the Sun had run his yearly courſe: therefore it might be that our Saviour did eat the Paſſover in the Evening, which was the begining of the fourteenth day of the firſt month, according to the commandment of the Lord; but the Jews the night after, according to the Cuſtom and Tradition of their Fathers. But then the Queſtion may be, How Chriſt could poſſibly obſerve obſerve the Paſſover the Evening before the Jews did keep it, who were very zealous for a ſtrict Conformity to the Traditions of their Elders, holding that all were bound to order their Feaſts according to the concluſion and determination of the Senate or Council; eſpecially alſo, if the Paſchal Lambs were to be killed by the Prieſts at the Temple, as ſome affirm? I think we ſhall not need, for anſwering of this, to affirm, that the Jews did permit the Paſchal Lambs to be publiquely killed upon two ſeveral days together; for to me it is not apparent that the Prieſts did kill the Lambs for the Paſſover, but I am apt to believe rather, that they were uſually killed by private perſons, and ſo the Paſſover which our Saviour obſerved, was kept privately, without any publique cognizance, and ſo without any offence of the Jews, though he prevented their time. Indeed the Paſſover was one of thoſe three ſolemn Feaſts which were to be kept at Jeruſalem, Deut. 16. 5, 6, 7, 16. yet we know that the Paſchal Lamb was to be eaten, not in the Temple there, but in any private houſe, as our Saviour did eat it with his Diſciples in a private Chamber. And whereas it is ſaid, that in Hezekiah's and Joſiah's time, and ſo alſo after the Return out of Babylon, the Paſſover was killed by the Prieſts and Levites at the Temple, 2 Chron. 30. 17. and 35. 6. and Ezra 6. 20. by the Paſſover in thoſe places, we may underſtand (not the Paſchal Lambs, but) the Bullocks and other Sacrifices which were offered up about that time, eſpecially the day following, which was the Feaſt of unleavened Bread, which Feaſt, being at the time of the Paſſover, was called by the Name of the Paſſover, Deut. 16. 16. 2 Chron. 30. 1, 2. with 13. Mark 14. 12. Luke 22. 1. and Acts 12. 4. after Eaſter (as our Epiſcopal men tranſlate it, to countenance their Eaſter Feſtival, but) in the Greek it is Paſcha, the Paſſover, viz. after that Feaſt of unleavened Bread (which conſiſted of ſeven days) was over; for the Paſſover it ſelf ſtrictly and properly was over in one night: and ſo alſo thoſe Sacrifices of Bullocks, &c. which were offered at that time, are called the Paſſover, Deut. 16. 2, 3. Numb. 28. 16. to 26. and therefore the Prieſts and Levites might be ſaid to kill the the Paſſover, in killing the Bullocks, Ram, and Lambs, which were offered up at that Feaſt of unleavened Bread; but as for the Paſchal Lamb, that might (I conceive) be killed by others: and this, ſome paſſages in Philo the Jew (who lived and wrote about that very time, or very little after) do ſeem to confirm; for in Lib. 3. de vita Moſis, thus he ſpeaks; Ejus menſis (viz. primi) die quarta decima, ſub ipſum tempus, quo Luna ſuum Orbem ſolet complere lumine, celebratur migrationis publica Feſtivitas, quam Chaldaice Paſcha nominant: quo tempore (non ut alias) plebeii homines victimas adducunt ad altare mactandas à Sacerdotibus, ſed jubente Lege TOTA GENS SACRIFICAT, DUM PRO SE QUISQUE MACTAT HOSTIAM SUIS MANIBUS; Tunc quiſque ſe gerit pro Sacerdote, &c. At the time of the Paſſover, the people do not, as at other times, bring their Sacrifices to the Altar to be killed by the Prieſts, but according to the Law, the whole Nation doth Sacrifice, every one killing his Sacrifice with his own hands; at that time every man doth all the part of the Prieſt. And again, in Lib. de Decalogo, Patriâ Hebræorum linguâ Paſcha dicitur, quando populariter ſingulî ſacrificant, non expectatis Sacerdotibus, ipſi permiſſu Legis fungentes Sacerdotio quotannis per unum diem deſtinatum huic negotio: which is as expreſſly and fully to the ſame effect, as the place mentioned before. Whether the Prieſts or Levites might not poſſibly ſometimes do it, I will not ſay; but that the people themſelvs might not or did not kil their Paſchal Lambs, I cannot ſay. Hence, This killing of the Lamb (as one ſays) was rather a Sacrament then a Sacrifice, as not being performed by a Prieſt, but by private men; and not in the place appointed for Sacrifices, but in private houſes. But enough of this digreſſion by the way.

The years after the Return.

Yea, we have not onely the day, but the very hour and time of the day alſo of his Crucifying expreſly ſet down, viz. from the ſixth to the ninth hour, Matth. 27. 45, 50. which was from about Noon until (according to our account of the hour of the day) three a clock in the Afternoon: ſo that He gave not up the Ghoſt till about three a clock, which was the very very time when the Paschal Lamb was to be killed, for it was to be killed between the two Evenings, as it is in the Hebrew Text, Exod. 12. 6. their first Evening begining about Noon, when the Sun began to decline; and the latter at Sun-set: Now most ordinarily they did offer their Evening Sacrifice about the ninth hour of the day, which was our three a clock, for that is called the Hour of their Prayer, or Evening Sacrifice, Acts 3. 1. So that hereby it appears, That Jesus Christ the true Passover (who is sacrificed for us, as the Apostle speaks, 1 Cor. 5. 7.) doth exactly fulfil and answer the Type, as in other circumstances, so in the very time also.

Now then (to draw to a Conclusion) the Time of the Death of Christ, according to our account which we have carryed along, seems to have been about the 490 year after the Return from the Babylonian Captivity, which is the end of the seventy weeks spoken of by the Angel unto Daniel; and about the year of Christ 34. and the year of the World 3968. as appeareth by adding the years of the seventy weeks, being 490, unto the year of the World at the end of the former Period.

A GENERAL CHRONOLOGICAL TABLE

SHEWING

How many years there were between most of the remarkable Persons and Things

From the Creation of the World unto the Death of Jesus Christ.

THe Use of this TABLE is suddenly to set before us what Number of Years there were between any of the most remarkable matters in the Scripture, viz. by finding out one of the particulars intended, standing on the right hand, and then descend down upon that Line until we come to the number which standeth upon the Line of the other particular term set down on that side of the Table which is towards the left hand; and that number which stands looking towards both the Terms, doth hold forth the number of years from the one to the other: e. gr. If I would know how many years were from the Flood to the Promise made unto Abraham in Ur, I must first look on my right hand, to finde out [From the Flood] and then descending till I come to the number standing upon the Line [To the Promise] on my left hand, which (being 422) is the number of years from the one to the other.

Note; That the number of the years here mentioned, from one particular to another, is inclusive; viz. comprehending both the years of the begining and ending of the same; and therefore do hold forth (for the most part) one year more then the number of the years that were compleat, reckoning the last year which was but begun or current: e. gr. From the Creation to the Flood, it is said there were 1656 years, the last year, viz. the year when the Flood began, being included in the account; whereas it seems there were but 1655 years compleat to the year
